INDUSTRIAL PUBLICATION COMPANY,

16 THOMAS STREET, NEW YORK,

The Steel Square and Its Uses.

By FRED. T. HODGSON, Editor of "The Operative Builder." Third and Enlarged Edition. Illustrated by nearly one hundred large and clear engravings. Cloth, gilt...$1.00

No more cutting and trying! This is the only practical work on the steel square and its uses ever published. It is thorough, accurate, clear and easily understood. Confounding terms and scientific phrases have been religiously avoided where possible, and everything in the book has been made so plain that a boy of twelve years of age, possessing ordinary intelligence, can understand it from end to end.

This new edition, just issued, is illustrated by nearly one hundred handsome engravings, showing how the square may be used for solving nearly every problem in the whole art of carpentry. The carpenter who possesses this book need not waste time and material "cutting and trying." He can lay out his work to a hair's breadth, and "cut to the line."

The work is absolutely indispensable to every person who may have to use a carpenter's square. Joiners, cabinet makers, brick layers. stone cutters, plasterers, lumber dealers, amateurs, and all who build a fence, tinker a gate, or make a chicken coop will find something in this little book that will help and aid them to do their work better and more intelligently than they could without a knowledge of its contents.

The work shows how the bevels, cuts and lengths of any and all kinds of hip, valley and jack rafters may be obtained in the simplest manner; also how stair-strings, raking mouldings and all kinds of mitres may be "cut" exactly, with the least possible labor.

Many difficult and troublesome mathematical problems can be solved by the use of this tool, and the methods of solving them are shown in this work. It describes how painting, plastering and brick work can be measured, and how many mechanical difficulties can be overcome with great ease. It explains how ellipses, parabolas, octagons, circles and many other figures may be described by the steel square.

It is safe to say that this dollar book will easily enable any intelligent mechanic to save ten dollars in time and material during the first three months that he has it in use.

No other book on carpentry and joinery contains half as much REAL PRACTICAL MATTER in double the space.

Steel Squares and Their Uses.

Being a description of the various steel squares and their uses in solving a large number of mechanical problems in constructive carpentry, joinery, sheet metal work, cut stone or brick work. Also showing how many geometrical and other problems may be solved by the use of the steel square. By FRED. T. HODGSON, editor of "The Operative Builder." Finely illustrated. Cloth.....$1.00

This forms Part II of "The Steel Square and Its Uses," but is not in any sense a substitute for the First Part, which still remains what it always has been—a necessity to every intelligent workman. It is an extension and enlargement of the original work, giving new problems, new methods and new wrinkles for shortening work and increasing the accuracy of the workman. It is illustrated in the same handsome manner which characterized the First Part, to which it forms a companion volume.

With these two volumes in his possession the workman has at command the entire practical mathematics of construction, and is prepared to lay out any piece of work more easily, quickly and accurately than it can be done by any other method.

In these days of "Hardwood Finish," the carpenter and joiner who does not make himself acquainted with all the new and latest methods of working and finishing our native woods is handicapped, and will not be as likely to receive as much money for his day's work as the workman who "knows all about it."

Author of "The Steel Square and Its Uses," "Practical Carpentry," "Stairbuilding Made Easy," "The Builder's Guide and Estimator's Price-Book." etc., etc.

PART I.—This part is devoted to Carpenter's Geometry, which is presented in simple form, giving easily understood methods of Describing Mouldings, Gothic Arches, Turned Works, Ornaments; Drawing Instruments; Care of Instruments; Scales, How to Use Them; Various Methods of Copying Drawings—the Blue Process, the Black Process; Waxing; Use of the Pantagraph, etc., etc. It gives not only the rules and theory, but examples of their practical applications in Carpentry and Joinery, showing how to get and work difficult "cuts" and pitches. Over 250 Illustrations Royal 8vo, bound in stiff paper cover $1.00

The aim of the Author is to make the above work the most complete treatise on Carpentry and Joinery published to date, and the publishers have no hesitation in saying that the success which Mr. Hodgson has achieved during the past twenty years in furnishing the mechanics of this country with thoroughly reliable and easily understoood text-books, is a sure guarantee of the excellence of his present effort.

It will be issued in Five Parts, each Part consisting of over 100 large royal octavo pages, printed on fine paper, and strongly bound in stiff paper covers; and as it is the intention of the publishers to place this important work within the reach of every industrious mechanic and apprentice in the land, they have placed the price at $1.00 per Part. Many works in the market, containing no more matter than a single Part, and not so well illustrated, are now selling for from $5.00 to $10.00 each.

EACH PART WILL BE COMPLETE IN ITSELF.

PART II. which is more handsomely illustrated than any volume on Carpentry now before the public, is nearly ready.

The saints' resurrection. 1 CORINTHIANS, 16. The manner of it.

25 For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet.
26 The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.
27 For he hath put all things under his feet. But when he saith, All things are put under him, it is manifest that he is excepted which did put all things under him.
28 And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all.
29 Else what shall they do which are the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

50 Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.
51 Behold, I show you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed,
52 In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.
53 For this corruptible must put on in-

God's presence on the mount. EXODUS, 20. The ten commandments.

10 ¶ And the LORD said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and j sanctify them to-day and to-morrow, and let them k wash their clothes,
11 And be ready against the third day: for the third day the LORD l will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai.
12 And thou shalt set bounds unto the people round about, saying, Take heed to yourselves that ye go not up into the mount, or touch the border of it: m whosoever toucheth the mount shall be surely put to death:
13 There shall not an hand touch it, but he shall surely be stoned, or shot through; whether it be beast or man, it shall not live: when the l trumpet soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.
14 ¶ And Moses went down from the mount unto the people, and sanctified the people; and they washed their clothes.
15 And he said unto the people, Be ready against the third day: n come not at your wives.
16 ¶ And it came to pass on the third day, in the morning, that there were thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud; so that all the people that was in the camp trembled.

"International" German Bibles.

REFERENCE AND TEACHERS' BIBLES.

RECOGNIZING the demand for a series of GERMAN TEACHERS' BIBLES to correspond with the English lines, we have had made an entirely new set of German Bible plates in Bourgeois type. This page is a convenient size, and the book may be easily carried. The references are especially full. The Bibles have a very COMPLETE SET OF HELPS and the BEST MAPS, prepared by men of high scholarship. These Bibles have all the excellent qualities of the English Bibles, in paper, printing, and manufacture. THIS WILL BE THE ONLY LINE OF GERMAN TEACHERS' BIBLES IN THE WORLD. They are made with and without the Apocrypha. There are four series in the line, with thin and India paper editions. They will be found to answer all the requirements of the general trade.

In addition to the Teachers' Bibles, we have also prepared a line of GERMAN REFERENCE BIBLES, with the Apocrypha, and printed on thick and on India paper. An examination will show this to be an exceptionally good line.

ANY OF THESE BIBLES MAY BE HAD WITH INTERNATIONAL PATENT INDEX AT 75 CENTS ADDITIONAL.

Unconquered land. JOSHUA, 13. Balaam slain.

20 The king of Shĭm'rŏn-mĕ'rŏn, one; the king of Ăch'shaph, one;
21 The king of Tā'a-nach, one; the king of Mĕ-gĭd'dō, one;
22 The king of Kĕ'desh, one; the king of Jŏk'ne-ăm of Căr'mel, one;
23 The king of Dŏr in the coast of Dŏr, one; the king of the nations of Gĭl'gal, one;
24 The king of Tĭr'zah, one: all the kings thirty and one.

CHAPTER 13.

2 Bounds of the land not yet conquered. 15 The two tribes and half, and tribe of Levi, excepted. 22 Balaam slain.

NOW Jōsh'u-à was old and stricken in years; and the LORD said unto him, Thou art old and stricken in years, and there remaineth yet very much land to be possessed.
2 This is the land that yet remaineth: all the borders of the Phĭ-lĭs'tines, and all Gĕsh'u-rĭ,
3 From Sĭ'hŏr, which is before Ē'gўpt, even unto the borders of Ĕk'rŏn northward, which is counted to the Cā'naan-ite: five lords of the Phĭ-lĭs'tines; the Gā'zath-ites, and the Ash'doth-ites, the Ăsh'ka-lon-ites, the Gĭt'tites, and the Ĕk'ron-ites; also the ā'vites:
which reigned in Ash'ta-rŏth and in Ĕd're-ĭ, who remained of the remnant of the giants: for these did Mō'ses smite, and cast them out.
13 Nevertheless the children of Ĭs'ra-el expelled not the Gĕsh'u-rites, nor the Mā-ăch'a-thites: but the Gĕsh'u-rites and the Mā-ăch'a-thites dwell among the Ĭs'ra-el-ites until this day.
14 Only unto the tribe of Lē'vĭ he gave none inheritance; the sacrifices of the LORD God of Ĭs'ra-el made by fire are their inheritance, as he said unto them.
15 ¶And Mō'ses gave unto the tribe of the children of Reu'ben inheritance according to their families.
16 And their coast was from Ăr'o-ēr, that is on the bank of the river Ăr'nŏn, and the city that is in the midst of the river, and all the plain by Mĕd'e-bà;
17 Hĕsh'bŏn, and all her cities that are in the plain; Dī'bŏn, and Bā'mŏth-bā'al, and Bĕth-bā'al-mē'on,
18 And Jā-hā'zà, and Kĕd'e-mŏth, and Mĕph'a-ăth,

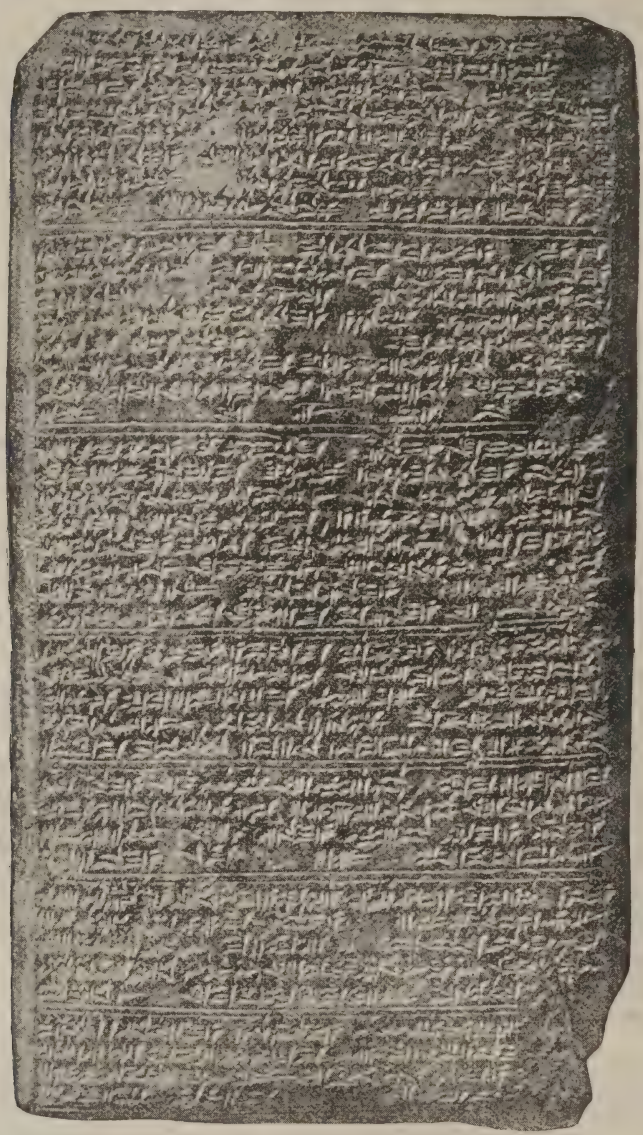

PLATE I.

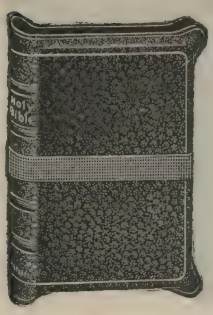

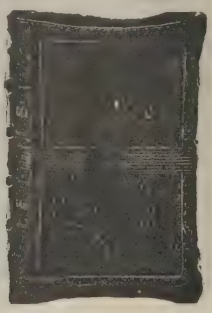

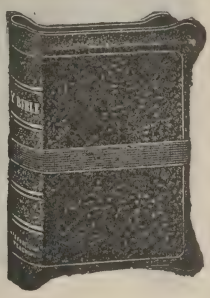

TEL-EL-AMARNA TABLET.

OBVERSE OF ONE OF THE TABLETS FROM TEL-EL-AMARNA, IN UPPER EGYPT.

THESE tablets, of which about 320 were found, are mostly letters from Phenicia, Syria, Palestine, Babylonia, etc., to Amenophis III. and IV. of Egypt, and other persons, concerning affairs in those countries between 1500 and 1450 B.C. The Museum of Berlin possesses three in which the city Urusalem (Jerusalem) is mentioned. The text of the tablet here reproduced, which is one of the best specimens in the British Museum, is a letter sent by Tushratta, king of Mitâni, to Mimmuria (=Neb-mut-Ra, Amenophis III.), king of Egypt, his son-in-law, concerning their friendship, etc., and asking for a gift of gold. A list of the gifts sent on this occasion by Tushratta to the king of Egypt closes the document. Date about 1500 B.C.

Human Progress:

WHAT CAN MAN DO TO FURTHER IT?

By Thomas S. Blair, A.M. (Harvard). The author of this treatise, taking up the above question and finding the present state of human knowledge inadequate to furnish an answer, reasons that the complexity of the facts of human experience has proved too much for the philosophers, and looks about for an instance of better results elsewhere. This he finds in the case of the successful man of affairs. The present work is simply a report of the conclusions reached through the application of business common-sense methods to the inquiry in hand. 12mo, cloth. 573 pages, by mail, postpaid, - - - - - - - - - $1.50

Lessons in Botany.

Arranged by Caroline E. Hilliard, New York. The exercises have been arranged for use in connection with Gray's "How Plants Grow." So far as possible the lessons are based upon careful study of specimens. Blank pages are inserted for drawings and records of observations.

Cloth, 104 pages, - - - - - 75 cents

Bohemian Legends and other Poems.

By F. P. Kopta. Second edition. "Bohemian Legends and Ballads," when published in Austria in 1890, was confiscated by the government. At first, "John Huss," a poem of the collection, was the supposed cause of seizure, but later written notice to the author gave "The Patriots" as the true objection. As few books of Bohemian literature are to be obtained, it is hoped this volume may do something toward making the iterature better known. 12mo, 183 pages, - - - cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents

The Naiad.

A story from the French of George Sand. By Katherine Berry di Zérega. Many years ago, George Sand wrote in her own inimitable style a story called "The Naiad," which is one of the most delightful of the explained class of ghost stories in any language, and it gives, too, in the course of the tale, a very interesting analysis of the relations between classes in France at the end of the ancien régime, when the rising tide of democracy and philosophy was about to overflow the institutions of the monarchy. This very charming little book was worthy of translation, and Mrs. di Zérega has very well performed her task. Her English is crisp and sprightly, and is rendered piquant by an occasional Gallic idiom. The book is dedicated to the memory of Mrs. di Zérega's daughter, the late Lady Frankland.

12mo, cloth, - - - - - $1.00

Rolands Squires.

A Legend of the Time of Charlemagne. By Mrs. Harriet Pinckney Huse. Square, 16mo, illustrated, - - - 50 cents

Told at Tuxedo.

By A. M. Emory. The author's name here given is a pseudonym of one well known to members of the Union League Club, New York Clubs and Society in general, and as well Tuxedo residents. 12mo, cloth, 75 cents.

Tales of the South Seas.

By Thornton J. Hains. 12mo, paper, - - 50 cents

The Philosophy of Art in America.

A dissertation upon vital topics of the day; perhaps of all time. By Carl de Muldor (pseudonym). In it is outlined the whole field of the Fine Arts, carefully and comprehensively, if not exhaustively, treated. It is an eloquent plea for the usefully artistic and the artistically useful. The author is a member of the National Academy of Design, an artist of acknowledged great abilities, a student and a traveller. 12mo, cloth, 50 cents

Angelus Domini.

An Anthology in Art and Verse in relation to the Virgin Mary, selected and arranged by the editor and illustrator of "Songs for Christmas," "Songs of Easter," etc. 286 pages, blue cloth, $1.50; white, full gilt, $2.00; Levant morocco, $3.00; calf, $3.50.

The Protection of Woodlands.

Authorized translation from the German of Kauschinger-Fürst's "Waldschutz." By John Nisbet, D'Œc., of the Indian Forest Service, author of "British Forest Trees, and their Sylvicultural Characteristics and Treatment." The various portions are dealt with in a strictly scientific manner, though at the same time tersely, and from a thoroughly practical standpoint. As there is no special work on Sylvicultural Entomology in English, the chapter on noxious Forest Insects has been somewhat amplified. One volume, 8vo, with colored plates, - - - - $3.50

The Hygiene of Beauty.

By Dr. E. Monin (of Paris), Secretary of the French Society of Hygiene; Chevalier of the Legion of Honor; Officer of Public Instruction. Translated under the immediate supervision of the Author. This manual is divided into two parts, entirely distinct. The first treats generally of beauty and its hygiene; the second gives the practical details of the cosmetic art. 12mo, cloth, 171 pages, - - - - - - $1.00

American Practical Hygiene of To-day.

By C. Gilman Currier, M. D. The author has treated his subject judicially. Accepted truths only are employed in these chapters; very positive opinions are not given unless they are those of a majority of leading thinkers. Therapeutic measures are not discussed unless they come legitmately within the province of hygiene. The author presents in popular form the results of extensive and careful study, observation, and experiment. The subject is one of such great importance and it is here treated so admirably that a copy of the book ought to be in every home. Most of the illustrations have been prepared especially for this work. 12mo, cloth, with many illustration, - - - - - - $1.50

Koch on Cholera.

Translated by George Duncan, M. A., with prefatory note by W. T. Gairdner. M. D., LL. D., F. R. S., Professor of the Practice of Medicine, Glasgow University; President of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh, etc., etc. Dr. Gairdner believes that at once this work will confirm with those who have hitherto believed in him. Prof. Koch's reputation as not only one of the most distinguished, but also one of the most trustworthy authorities of this century on all subjects connected with bacteriology in its application to diagnosis, and also to the prevention of disease; and will also, perhaps, win him some converts even from among those who have (in Dr. Gairdner's opinion quite wrongfully), disparaged the whole of his work on account of the imperfections of a small part of it. The setting forth of the facts are luminous and accurate, and the statement of his argument firm and logical. The treatise is simply a model of sanitary research. 8vo, cloth, 150 pages, - - - - $1.50

Home Treatment for Catarrhs and Colds.

By Leonard A. Dessar, M. D. visiting Laryngologist to St. Marks Hospital and to Mt. Sini Dispensary, etc., etc. This small treatise has been written with a view of supplying the general reader with a trustworthy guide of instructions for the proper care, prevention and treatment of catarrhal troubles of the throat, nose and ears, and their complications. Its aim is not to bewilder the reader with a number of technical terms, but to afford a clear insight into the affections. The drugs and apparatus advocated can be obtained with facility, and at a moderate cost, from the nearest pharmacist, and they are only such as have been proven of positive benefit in the author's experience. The author urges most strongely, that the purpose of this little book is not to supplant the physician, but to acquaint the reader with the principals of promoting the health of the organs. 12mo, cloth, illustrated, - - - - - - $1.00

Perhaps the chief interest to doctors of human medicine in Professor Nocard's book lies in the demonstration of the small part played by heredity, and the great part played by contagion in the propagation of bovine tuberculosis. It seems not unreasonable to suppose that the same is the case for human tuberculosis, and that, if the children of tuberculosis parents were protected from infection by cohabitation or ingestion, the importance of heredity as a cause of the disease, or even of the predisposition to it, would dwindle away into insignificance. 12mo, cloth 143 pages.....1 00

MUSIC.

CHANSONS, POÉSIES ET JEUX FRANÇAIS

POUR LES ENFANTS AMÉRICAINS.

Composés et recueillis par AGNES GODFREY GAY.

In offering this little book to the public the wish has been to "fill the long-felt want" of a collection of French songs and games suitable for American children. The majority of both the songs and games have been sung and played for years and the selections of poetry in the latter part of the book have stood practical test. No pains have been spared to make the words in every way acceptable to our American ideas of proper literature for children; and the music has been carefully revised, and much of it harmonized, by Mr. Grant-Schaefer, whose name is sufficient guaranty for thoroughness. Price.....50 cents.

(*) Initiatory French Readings. Many objections have been raised to the numerous First French Readers, especially those containing little material really French or silly stories despised by bright children, and so on. Due to demands for a book containing material that would rouse the interest of the student by telling in simple yet attractive manner things that would hold attention, this volume was prepared.

In the first part, viz., the picturesque facts of Our Country, the child's groping after an elusive sense is done away with, and, encouraged by understanding easily, he is sure to retain, with little trouble, words and phrases with the sense of which he is already familiar.

The second part, viz., The Discovery of France by some young American travellers, is doubly valuable, as it contains training in the language with pleasurable instruction in the subject itself. Interest will not flag and the reading may be as rapid as desired. 12mo, cloth, 155 pages.....75c.

B.—"The purpose of this book is to facilitate the mastery of the irregular verbs in all their tenses. The 'drill' is conducted by questions on everyday topics, which are to be answered in French. (*)Le Verbe en Quatre Tableaux Synoptiques. By Prof. K. Marion. Sixth Edition. Price .....25c.

This little book, which has already had six editions, and which has been recommended by the Board of Public Instructions of Quebec for use in the public schools of Canada, is highly spoken of by all the French teachers who have used it in their classes. It has the advantage of doing away with the "parrot like" study of the verb and compels the student to think while reciting or conjugating French verbs by presenting the whole system of French verbs in a condensed and comprehensive form by means of tableaux. It is based on the rules of the "Formation of Tenses," which are illustrated by a colored diagram showing the derivation of tenses from the principal parts. All the irregularities to these rules are printed in heavy type so as to strike the eye of the student. The difficulties of the study of French verbs are reduced to a minimum, thus making a saving of one-half the time usually devoted to this important study. It is invaluable to teachers and can be used with any French grammar or text book.

ELECTRICAL BOOKS

NEW YORK.

THIRD EDITION. GREATLY ENLARGED.

A DICTIONARY OF Electrical Words, Terms, and Phrases.

By EDWIN J. HOUSTON, Ph.D. (Princeton),

AUTHOR OF

Advanced Primers of Electricity; Electricity One Hundred Years Ago and To-day, etc., etc., etc.

Cloth. 667 large octavo pages, 582 Illustrations. Price, $5.00.

Some idea of the scope of this important work and of the immense amount of labor involved in it, may be formed when it is stated that it contains definitions of about 6000 distinct words, terms, or phrases. The dictionary is not a mere word-book; the words, terms, and phrases are invariably followed by a short, concise definition, giving the sense in which they are correctly employed, and a general statement of the principles of electrical science on which the definition is founded. Each of the great classes or divisions of electrical investigation or utilization comes under careful and exhaustive treatment; and while close attention is given to the more settled and hackneyed phraseology of the older branches of work, the newer words and the novel departments they belong to are not less thoroughly handled. Every source of information has been referred to, and while libraries have been ransacked, the note-book of the laboratory and the catalogue of the wareroom have not been forgotten or neglected. So far has the work been carried in respect to the policy of inclusion that the book has been brought down to date by means of an appendix, in which are placed the very newest words, as well as many whose rareness of use had consigned them to obscurity and oblivion. As one feature, an elaborate system of cross-references has been adopted, so that it is as easy to find the definitions as the words, and aliases are readily detected and traced. The typography is excellent, being large and bold, and so arranged that each word catches the eye at a glance by standing out in sharp relief from the page.

AN INDEX

TO

THE ELECTRICAL WORLD

From January 1st, 1883, to January 1st, 1897.

This index, which is the result of much patient compilation, contains a list of every article which has appeared in THE ELECTRICAL WORLD for fourteen years. It also includes the references in the Digest of Current Electrical Technical Literature, and thus forms a complete catalogue of reference to the whole mass of modern periodical electrical literature. It is the only index of the kind that has ever been published, either in this or any other country, and is the most useful and quickly available means of reference to electrical subjects, to dates and events connected with electrical progress and development.

The index contains 382 pages, 7½ x 10¼ inches in size, and is substantially bound in cloth.

A limited edition of only 500 copies is all that has been printed, and after these are sold no more can be had.

It is therefore certain that the value of the index, due to the limited number in existence as well as to its utility, will greatly increase as time goes on.

Until further notice the price will be $8.00, which barely covers the exact cost. For this the index will be forwarded, charges prepaid, to any address in the world.

The publishers reserve the right to advance the price at any time without notice.

The index is now ready for delivery, and those who contemplate purchasing will do well to order at once.

Copies of this or any other electrical book published will be sent by mail, POSTAGE PREPAID, to any address in the world, on receipt of the price.

Alternating Electric Currents.

BY

E. J. HOUSTON, Ph.D., and A. E. KENNELLY, Sc.D.

CONTENTS.

Chapter I.—Introductory. Chapter II.—Alternating Electromotive Force and Current. Chapter III.—Unipolar Alternators. Chapter IV.—Power. Chapter V.—Transformers. Chapter VI.—Electric Lamps. Chapter VII.—Electric Motors. Chapter VIII.—Multiphase Currents. Chapter IX.—Multiphase Motors. Index.

Cloth. 230 Pages. 77 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

The marked growth recently made in the commercial applications of alternating electric currents has necessitated a greater familiarity on the part of the general public with this branch of electric science. Most books heretofore written on Alternating Electric Currents have employed in their treatment the higher branches of mathematics to such an extent as to render them unintelligible to the reading public. This volume satisfactorily establishes the fact that the fundamental principles underlying this difficult branch of electrical engineering can be treated with the use of mathematics no further advanced than ordinary arithmetic. Although the book is designed mainly for the general public, yet it cannot fail to prove useful, not only to electrical artisans and mechanics generally, and to elementary electrotechnical students, but even to engineers, as disproving the prevalent belief that it is impossible to treat of alternating electric currents without the extended use of the higher mathematics. In this volume will be found such a description of the working of a central station, the operations of generators, transformers, lamps and motors generally, as will enable the reader to obtain a comprehension of the methods of their operation.

ELECTRIC HEATING.

BY

E. J. HOUSTON, Ph.D., and A. E. KENNELLY, Sc.D.

CONTENTS.

Chapter I.—Introductory. Chapter II.—Elementary Principles. Chapter III.—Electrical Heating of Bare Conductors. Chapter IV.—Electrical Heating of Covered Conductors. Chapter V.—Fuse Wires. Chapter VI.—Electric Heaters. Chapter VII.—Electric Cooking. Chapter VIII.—Electric Welding. Chapter IX.—Electric Furnaces. Chapter X.—Miscellaneous Applications of Electric Heating. Index.

Cloth. 295 Pages. 86 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

The comparatively new art of electric heating has shown so marked a development during the last decade that public attention has naturally been directed to this branch of electrical science. The wonderful development in electric street railways has naturally resulted in the introduction of electric heaters on electrically propelled street cars. So, too, the extended introduction of electric lighting in houses and buildings generally has gradually opened the way for apparatus suitable for electric cooking and heating. Nor has the application of stronger electric currents to more powerful heating effects been wanting. Electric welding and the electric shaping and forging of metals and electric furnaces for the reduction of ores and for the production of various chemical products have brought into prominence the thermal quality possessed by electric currents. The difficult problem of the electrical heating of conductors will also be found treated in this book in a remarkably simple manner, so that, like the rest of the series, the book requires no preparation on the part of the reader in mathematics or electrical science for its complete understanding.

ELECTROMAGNETISM.

BY

E. J. HOUSTON, Ph.D., and A. E. KENNELLY, Sc.D.

CONTENTS.

Chapter I.—Introductory. Chapter II.—Magnetic Phenomena. Chapter III.—Theories of Magnetism. Chapter IV.—Magnetic Circuits. Chapter V.—Electromagnetism. Chapter VI.—Electromagnets. Chapter VII.—The Attractive Power of Magnets. Chapter VIII.—Some Practical Applications of Electromagnets. Chapter IX.—Miscellaneous Magnetic Phenomena. Chapter X.—Phenomena of the Earth's Magnetism. Index.

Cloth. 286 Pages. 96 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

The mysterious force of magnetism has always possessed a fascination alike for the general reader, the electric artisan and the electrical engineer. The existence of the magnetic force has long been known and many theories have been framed to account for magnetic phenomena. Unfortunately, most books on magnetism contain too frequent reference to these theories, especially the earlier ones, and manifest too little consistency in following any particular theory to render the works of much use to general readers. In this volume an endeavor has been made to explain magnetic phenomena by reference to a single theory, and one, too, which permits of quantitative treatment. In this respect, although the scope of the work is such as to make it readily understood by all classes of readers, yet even the electrical engineer will find in its pages much of value. The volume treats briefly of the phenomena of permanent and electro magnetism, the phenomena of the earth's magnetism, the magnetic needle, the mariner's compass, together with a brief review, made in the light of modern discoveries, of the various theories of magnetism. It also embraces the principles underlying the construction and operation of electromagnetic mechanism generally.

ELECTRICITY
IN ELECTRO-THERAPEUTICS.

BY

E. J. HOUSTON, Ph.D., and A. E. KENNELLY, Sc.D.

CONTENTS.

Chapter I.—Introductory. Chapter II.—Electromotive Force. Chapter III.—Electric Resistance. Chapter IV.—Electric Current. Chapter V.—Varieties of Electromotive Force. Chapter VI.—Electric Work and Activity. Chapter VII.—Frictional and Influence Machines. Chapter VIII.—Magnetism. Chapter IX.—Induction of E. M. F. by Magnetic Flux. Chapter X.—The Medical Induction Coil. Chapter XI.—Dynamos, Motors and Transformers. Chapter XII.—High-Frequency Discharges. Chapter XIII.—Electrolysis and Cataphoresis. Chapter XIV.—Dangers in the Therapeutic Use of Electricity. Index.

Cloth. 379 Pages. 128 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

Although many excellent works have appeared on Electro-Therapeutics, yet none have heretofore been prepared containing a complete treatment of the underlying principles of electricity as employed in the electro-therapeutic art. Unfortunately in this age of specialism the time of the electro-therapeutist has been in many cases so limited by an exhaustive study of electro-therapy as to have resulted to a certain extent in a failure to thoroughly grasp the fundamental principles of electricity upon which the art is founded. Although this volume has been prepared for the use of the public generally, yet it will be found of special use not only to the practising physician, but also to the specialist in this department. No attempt has been made in the book to treat of the therapeutical part of the subject, that being left to special treatises. The reader will find in the pages of this book concise but comprehensive explanations in accordance with the most modern theories of electricity and magnetism, of the fundamental principles entering into the practice of the theory and use of electricity as a therapeutic agent.

Electric Arc Lighting.

BY

E. J. HOUSTON, Ph.D., and A. E. KENNELLY, Sc.D.

CONTENTS.

Chapter I.—Early History of Arc Lighting. Chapter II.—The Voltaic Arc. Chapter III.—Elementary Electrical Principles. Chapter IV.—Arc Lamp Mechanism. Chapter V.—Series-Connected All-Night Lamps. Chapter VI.—Constant Potential Lamps. Chapter VII.—Appurtenances and Mechanical Details of Arc Lamps. Chapter VIII.—Alternating-Current Arc Lamps. Chapter IX.—Light and Illumination. Chapter X.—Projector Arc Lamps. Chapter XI.—Arc-Light Carbons. Chapter XII.—Dynamos. Index.

Cloth. 389 Pages. 155 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

The long-felt want for a commercial outdoor illuminant has, as is well known, been met in the now generally adopted system of electric arc lighting. The almost universal adoption of arc lighting for the streets of our large cities has naturally enough created a desire on the part of the public to understand more fully the general methods employed for the production and distribution of the electric current and the mechanism employed on the lamps for maintaining the arc and ensuring a steady and reliable illumination. This work contains a brief history of the early art of electric lighting, a description of arc-light generators, the various circuits employed, the manufacture of the carbon electrodes, together with a description of the lamp mechanisms. The lines on which the present book has been written do not require a previous knowledge of the principles of electricity for its comprehension.

Cloth. 455 Pages. 146 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

The problem of indoor lighting is markedly different from that of outdoor lighting. The principal requirement of the former is that the artificial light should, as nearly as possible, resemble that given by the sun. In other words, the illumination should be general, the space lighted should be free from marked shadows, and, moreover, the source of light should be safe to life and property, steady, reliable and economical. A perusal of the pages of this volume, which is so written as not to require any previous knowledge of electricity for its thorough comprehension, will show the extent to which the incandescent light meets the requirements of a good indoor illuminant. The book contains a brief history of the early state of the art, a description of the different methods employed in the manufacture of the incandescent lamp, including the production of the filament, the preparation and exhaustion of the lamp-chamber, the generators required for the production of the current, the systems of distribution employed, together with a general description of a central station and the apparatus necessary for its operation.

The readiness with which the electric current lends itself to the distribution of mechanical power over considerable distances has caused the development of the electric motor during the last decade to compare very favorably with electric developments in other directions. The electric motor has proved itself capable of meeting the requirements of actual commercial practice, not only for comparatively small, but also for considerable distances. Electric motors are now extensively at work in street-car propulsion, and in other directions requiring the expenditure of mechanical power. This volume contains a discussion of the principles underlying the construction and operation of continuous and alternating-current motors, noticing in the latter case both the synchronous and induction type of apparatus. The general problem for the transmission of power is discussed in such language that even this difficult subject is capable of being readily understood by those not already versed in electrical science.

The extent to which the introduction of the electric street railway has extended the limits of our dense centres of population, and has caused the appreciation of the value of real estate in suburban districts, is perhaps only too well known to the holders of real estate in the centres of our densely populated cities. Perhaps in no other direction has popular curiosity been so thoroughly aroused as at the facility with which heavy cars are propelled, lighted and heated by a mysterious agency, that requires for its transmission only a slender trolley-wire; and wonder grows as to its ability to find its way, apparently unguided, from the central station back again through the intricate turnings and windings of a large city. The general public will find such a description of the machinery employed for the generation, transmission and utilization of the electric current in the present volume as will enable them no longer to continue to be perplexed by the problem which everyday presents itself.

As is generally the case, no matter how marvelous the gift science gives to the world, and no matter how great the excitement its advent creates, it proves to be but a seven-days' wonder. The history of the electric telephone forms no exception to this general statement. The telephone has so wonderfully changed the methods of carrying on business that this volume will prove of great value to the general public in enabling it to obtain a thorough insight into the general system of telephonic communication. The book contains a description of the construction of the transmitting and receiving devices, the calling mechanisms and the switchboard mechanisms at the central station.

Great improvements have been witnessed in the art of telegraphy since the inventions of Steinheil, Wheatstone and Morse. To-day, so complex are some of the methods employed in duplex, quadruplex and multiplex telegraphy, that in many of the books heretofore published the general reader, unless qualified by a prior knowledge of electric science, finds it difficult to comprehend much of what they contain. In this volume the treatment is so clear and the illustrations so copious that general readers will obtain such an understanding of the art as will enable them, though not possessed of any previous knowledge of electric science, to comprehend its general principles. A full description is given of both land and submarine telegraphy, with the apparatus employed. Automatic telegraphy is also amply explained.

Electrodynamic Machinery.

BY

EDWIN J. HOUSTON, PH.D.,

AND

A. E. KENNELLY, Sc.D.

Cloth. 322 Pages. 232 Illustrations. Price, $2.50.

The advent of the commercially perfected dynamo has marked such an era in electric progress, that the desire naturally exists on the part of students generally, and of electrical engineers in particular, to grasp thoroughly the principles underlying its constitution and operation. While excellent treatises on dynamo-electric machinery are in existence, yet a want has been experienced of a book which shall approach the subject, not from the mathematical standpoint, but from an engineering standpoint, and especially from such an engineering standpoint as would arise in actual working with the apparatus. A book of this latter type will be found in the present work, which is the outcome of a series of articles on the same subject by these authors appearing in the Electrical World during 1894–1895. Electrodynamic Machinery, as it is described in this volume, is limited to the consideration of continuous-current apparatus. The authors have endeavored to explain thoroughly the principles involved by the use of as simple mathematics as the case will permit. In order to fix these principles in the mind of the student, and to test his understanding of the same, they have been accompanied by numerous examples taken from practical work, so that a student who will intelligently follow the treatment found in these pages will obtain a grasp of the subject that it would be very difficult for him to obtain otherwise without personal experience. For this reason it is believed that the book will serve as a text-book on continuous-current dynamo-electric machinery for electric-engineering students of all grades.

Electricity and Magnetism.

A Series of Advanced Primers.

By EDWIN J. HOUSTON, PH.D. (Princeton),

AUTHOR OF

"A Dictionary of Electrical Words, Terms, and Phrases,"
etc., etc., etc.

Cloth. 306 pages, 116 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

During the Philadelphia Electrical Exhibition of 1884, Prof. Houston issued a set of elementary electrical primers for the benefit of the visitors to the exhibition, which attained a wide popularity. During the last ten years, however, the advances in the applications of electricity have been so great and so widespread that the public would no longer be satisfied with instruction in regard to only the most obvious and simple points, and accordingly the author has prepared a set of new primers of a more advanced character as regards matter and extent. The treatment, nevertheless, remains such that they can be easily understood by any one without a previous knowledge of electricity. Electricians will find these primers of marked interest from their lucid explanations of principles, and the general public will find in them an easily read and agreeable introduction to a fascinating subject. The first volume, as will be seen from the contents, deals with the theory and general aspects of the subject. As no mathematics is used and the explanations are couched in the simplest terms, this volume is an ideal first book from which to obtain the preliminary ideas necessary for the proper understanding of more advanced works.

The Measurement of Electrical Currents and Other Advanced Primers of Electricity.

By EDWIN J. HOUSTON, PH.D. (Princeton),

AUTHOR OF

"A Dictionary of Electrical Words, Terms, and Phrases," etc., etc., etc.

Cloth. 429 pages, 169 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

This volume is the second of Prof. Houston's admirable series of Advanced Primers of Electricity, and is devoted to the measurement and practical applications of the electric current. The different sources of electricity are taken up in turn, the apparatus described with reference to commercial forms, and the different systems of distribution explained. The sections on alternating currents will be found a useful introduction to a branch which is daily assuming larger proportions, and which is here treated without the use of mathematics. An excellent feature of this series of primers is the care of statement and logical treatment of the subjects. In this respect there is a marked contrast to most popular treatises, in which only the most simple and merely curious points are given, to the exclusion or subordination of more important ones. The abstracts from standard electrical authors at the end of each primer have in general reference and furnish an extension to some important point in the primer, and at the same time give the reader an introduction to electrical literature. The abstracts have been chosen with care from authoritative professional sources or from treatises of educational value in the various branches.

Electrical Transmission of Intelligence

OF ELECTRICITY.

By EDWIN J. HOUSTON, Ph.D. (Princeton),

AUTHOR OF

"A Dictionary of Electrical Words, Terms, and Phrases,"
etc., etc., etc.

Cloth. 330 pages, 88 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

The third and concluding volume of Prof. Houston's Series of Advanced Primers of Electricity is devoted to the telegraph, telephone, and miscellaneous applications of the electric current. In this volume the difficult subjects of multiple and cable telegraphy and electrolysis, as well as the telephone, storage battery, etc., are treated in a manner that enables the beginner to easily grasp the principles, and yet with no sacrifice in completeness of presentation. The electric apparatus for use in houses, such as electric-bells, annunciators, thermostats, electric locks, gas-lighting systems, etc., are explained and illustrated. The primer on electro-therapeutics describes the medical coil and gives instructions for its use, as well as explaining the action of various currents on the human body. The interesting primers on cable telegraphy and on telephony will be appreciated by those who wish to obtain a clear idea of the theory of these attractive branches of electrical science and a knowledge of the details of the apparatus. Attention is called to the fact that each of the primers in this series is, as far as possible, complete in itself, and that there is no necessary connection between the several volumes.

ELECTRICITY

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO AND TO-DAY.

By EDWIN J. HOUSTON, Ph.D. (Princeton),

AUTHOR OF

A Dictionary of Electrical Words, Terms, and Phrases, etc., etc., etc.

Cloth. 179 pages, illustrated. Price, $1.00.

In tracing the history of electrical science from practically its birth to the present day, the author has, wherever possible, consulted original sources of information. As a result of these researches, several revisions as to the date of discovery of some important principles in electrical science are made necessary. While the compass of the book does not permit of any other than a general treatment of the subject, yet numerous references are given in foot-notes, which also in many cases quote the words in which a discovery was first announced to the world, or give more specific information in regard to the subjects mentioned in the main portion of the book. This feature is one of interest and value, for often a clearer idea may be obtained from the words of a discoverer of a phenomenon or principle than is possible through other sources. The work is not a mere catalogue of subjects and dates, nor is it couched in technical language that only appeals to a few. On the contrary, one of its most admirable features is the agreeable style in which the work is written, its philosophical discussion as to the cause and effect of various discoveries, and its personal references to great names in electrical science. Much information as to electrical phenomena may also be obtained from the book, as the author is not satisfied to merely give the history of a discovery, but also adds a concise and clear explantion of it.

THIRD EDITION.

The Electric Motor and its Applications.

By T. C. MARTIN and JOSEPH WETZLER,

With an Appendix by Dr. Louis Bell, bringing the book down to date.

Cloth. 315 large quarto pages, 353 Illustrations. Price, $3.00.

The wealth of information contained in the three hundred and odd large double-column pages of this important work is equalled in few special technical treatises, even those of a professedly exhaustive character. More than one hundred different motors are described and illustrated,—many in great detail—and the different applications are similarly fully treated. Many of the illustrations are full page, and the details of construction, particularly of armatures, are fully illustrated. The treatment is simple, clear, and concise, and little mathematics is employed, the work being essentially of a practical and largely of a descriptive character. The section on alternating motors resumes in a simple manner without mathematical formulæ, the principles upon which they are based, and that on thermo-magnetic motors treats this interesting class in greater detail than can be found in any other publication. An interesting feature is the historical method of treatment, by means of which the different steps in the advance of theories and design can be clearly traced, and the varying results of explorations in many directions instructively followed.

THIRD EDITION. EXTENSIVELY REVISED AND ENLARGED.

THE ELECTRIC RAILWAY

IN THEORY AND PRACTICE.

By O. T. CROSBY and Dr. LOUIS BELL.

Large Octavo. Profusely Illustrated. Price, $2.50.

Few technical books have met with so wide an appreciation as "The Electric Railway," which has had the distinction of being accepted throughout the world as the standard authority on the subject of which it treats. The advances in electric traction made since the second edition of the work have been so notable, that the authors, in undertaking the preparation of a new edition, found it necessary to practically rewrite the book, so that the present edition conforms to the very latest knowledge on the subject, both in the domain of theory and of practice. The original purpose of the book has, however, been strictly adhered to—namely, to place before those interested in electric railways, whether in a technical, financial, or general way, the principles upon which electric traction is founded and the standard methods employed in their application. In view of the probable application in the near future of alternating currents to electric traction, the present edition includes their consideration in this relation, thus largely extending the value of the treatise. The recent developments in electric locomotives and high-speed electric traction, and the application of electricity to elevated railways and to passenger traffic on steam roads, are in this work considered for the first time connectedly with reference to their engineering and commercial aspects. In the first section of the book are developed the fundamental principles of electricity upon which the apparatus and methods of operation are based. The following section is devoted to prime movers, steam, hydraulic, and gas—the modern gas-engine here receiving the full treatment which its growing importance calls for. The remainder of the work is devoted to the engineering, practical, and commercial features of electric traction, all of the factors that enter being considered from the standpoint of the best practice, and the more important ones elaborated in detail. The plan of the book, in fact, includes the consideration of everything relating to the electrical and mechanical principles and details which enter into electric railway design, construction, and operation, the whole being treated from the engineering and commercial standpoint, and without the use of mathematics or resort to purely scientific theory.

Electrical Power Transmission.

By LOUIS BELL, PH.D.

Uniform in size with "The Electric Railway in Theory and Practice." Price, $2.50.

The plan of the work is similar to that of "The Electric Railway in Theory and Practice," the treatment of the subject being non-mathematical and not involving on the part of the reader a knowledge of the purely scientific theories relating to electrical currents. The book is essentially practical in its character, and while primarily an engineering treatise, is also intended for the information of those interested in electrical transmission of power, financially or in a general way. The author has a practical acquaintance with the problems met with in the electrical transmission of energy from his connection with many of the most important installations yet made in America, and in these pages the subject is developed for the first time with respect to its practical aspects as met with in actual work. The first two chapters review the fundamental principles relating to the generation and distribution of electrical energy, and in the three succeeding ones their methods of application with both continuous and alternating currents are described. The sixth chapter gives a general discussion of the methods of transformation, the various considerations applying to converters and rotary transformers being developed and these apparatus described. In the chapter on prime movers various forms of water-wheels, gas and steam engines are discussed with respect to their applicability to the purpose in view, and in the chapter on hydraulic development the limitations that decide the commercial availability of water power for electrical transmission of power are pointed out in detail. The five succeeding chapters deal with practical design and with construction work—the power-house, line, and centres of distribution being taken up in turn. The chapter on the latter subject will be found of particular value, as it treats for the first time in a thorough and practical manner one of the most difficult points in electrical transmission. The chapter on commercial data contains the first information given as to costs, and will, therefore, be much appreciated by engineers and others in deciding as to the commercial practicability of proposed transmission projects. This is the first work covering the entire ground of the electrical transmission of power that has been written by an engineer of wide practical experience in all of the details included in the subject, and thus forms a valuable and much-needed addition to electrical engineering literature.

The Theory and Calculation of Alternating-Current Phenomena.

BY

CHARLES PROTEUS STEINMETZ.

Cloth. Price, $2.50.

This is the first work yet written in any language dealing in a complete and logical manner with all of the phenomena of alternating currents and their calculation in the design of alternating-current machinery. In the first six chapters the various primary conceptions and methods of treatment are developed, the use of complex quantities being explained in a remarkably clear and effective manner. The various alternating-current phenomena are then taken up in turn and the more complex parts of the subject approached so gradually and with such a logical preparation that but little if any difficulty will be met in their understanding. The remaining chapters of the book, forming half of its contents, are devoted to the methods of calculation of transformers, simple alternating and polyphase generators and motors, all of the various reactions involved being thoroughly analyzed and discussed. The work contains the very latest knowledge relating to alternating-current phenomena, much of which is original with the author, and here appears for the first time in book form. The high authority of the author on the questions of which he treats, and the original methods which he pursues in their exposition, give this work a character which will assign it to a high place in electrical literature, in which it promises to rank as a classic.

Electricity and Magnetism.

BY

Prof. ERIC GERARD,

DIRECTOR OF

L'Institut Électrotechnique Montefiore, University of Liège, Belgium.

TRANSLATED UNDER THE DIRECTION OF

LOUIS DUNCAN, PH.D.,

Johns Hopkins University.

With American Additions as follows : A Chapter on the Rotary Field, by Dr. Louis Duncan ; A Chapter on Hysteresis, by Charles Proteus Steinmetz ; A Chapter on Impedance, by A. E. Kennelly ; A Chapter on Units, by Dr. Cary T. Hutchinson.

Cloth. Price, $2.50.

As a beautifully clear treatise for students on the theory of electricity and magnetism, as well as a résumé for engineers of electrical theories that have a practical bearing, the work of Professor Gerard has been without a rival in any language. As a text-book of reference it has been largely used in American colleges, the logical methods of the author and his faculty of lucid expression and illustration simplifying to students in a remarkable manner the understanding of the various subjects treated. The scope of the present translation has been limited to those parts of the original work treating of theory alone, as the practical portions, which deal principally with European methods and apparatus, would not have the same value for American students as for those to whom the book was originally addressed. Several chapters written by American authors are added to the translation. As will be seen above, the authors of these chapters are authorities on the several subjects with which they deal, and the work as thus extended forms the most complete treatise yet published relating particularly to electrical theory as it enters into the domain of the engineer.

PRACTICAL CALCULATION

OF

Dynamo-Electric Machines.

A MANUAL FOR ELECTRICAL AND MECHANICAL ENGINEERS, AND A TEXT-BOOK FOR STUDENTS OF ELECTRO-TECHNICS.

BY

ALFRED E. WIENER, E.E., M.E.,

Member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Cloth, Illustrated. Price, $2.50.

Based upon the practical data and tests of nearly two hundred of the best modern dynamos, including the machines used at the recent World's Fair and those in the largest and most modern central-stations, a complete and entirely practical method of dynamo-calculations is developed. Differing from the usual text-book methods, in which the application of the various formulas requires more or less experience in dynamo-design, the present treatise gives such practical information in the form of original tables and formulas derived from the result of practical machines of American as well as European make, comprising all the usual types of field-magnets and armatures, and ranging through all commercial sizes. The book contains nearly a hundred of such tables, giving the values of the various constants, etc., which enter into the formulas of dynamo-design, and for all capacities, from one-tenth to 2000 kilowatts, for high and slow speed, for bipolar and multipolar fields, and for smooth and toothed drum and ring armatures. Although intended as a text-book for students and a manual for practical dynamo-designers, any one possessing but a fundamental knowledge of algebra will be able to apply the information contained in the book to the calculation and design of any kind of a continuous-current dynamo.

ALTERNATING CURRENTS.

An Analytical and Graphical Treatment for Students and Engineers.

By FREDERICK BEDELL, Ph.D.,

AND

A. C. CREHORE, Ph.D.

Cloth. 325 pages, 112 Illustrations. Price, $2.50.

The present work is the first book that treats the subject of alternating currents in a connected, logical, and complete manner. The principles are gradually and logically developed from the elementary experiments upon which they are based, and in a manner so clear and simple as to make the book easily read by any one having even a limited knowledge of the mathematics involved. By this method the student becomes familiar with every step of the process of development, and the mysteries usually associated with the theory of alternating currents are found to be rather the result of unsatisfactory treatment than due to any inherent difficulty. The first fourteen chapters contain the analytical development, commencing with circuits containing resistance and self-induction only, resistance and capacity only, and proceeding to more complex circuits containing resistance, self-induction, and capacity, and resistance and distributed capacity. A feature is the numerical calculations given as illustrations. The remaining chapters are devoted to the graphical consideration of the same subjects, enabling a reader with little mathematical knowledge to follow the authors, and with extensions to cases that are better treated by the graphical than by the analytical method.

BY

HORATIO A. FOSTER,

"Central Station Management and Finance."

Cloth. 137 pages, 75 Forms and Diagrams. Price, $2.50.

This book contains diagrams for the organization of the staff of electrical central stations, the classification of accounts and reports, with sample forms for each and every department. As the name indicates, the work is devoted mainly to the accounting department, both for central stations and street railways, and outlines a complete scheme for its organization and routine which will enable the management to determine at any moment the condition of business, and particularly the unit cost of the generation and distribution of current. The forms were devised after an examination of several hundred in practical use in many stations, and embody the best points of all. Many forms are of actual size in width, and printed on paper specially ruled, so that they may be used as copy in ordering. In an Appendix is furnished a classification of accounts of electric street railways, together with instructions, forms of books, etc., necessary to carry it out—the other necessary forms being in Part II.

JOHN C. SHEDD, M. S., (Cornell) Professor Physics, Marietta College, O.

Cloth. Illustrated with many diagrams and cuts. Price, $2.00.

This work is the outcome of a sense of need which the writers keenly felt while engaged for several years in the shops and on the testing floors of the large manufacturing companies, and also subsequently in installation and general road work. On the purely theoretical side such works as those of S. P. Thompson leave little to be desired, while from the purely practical side a multitude of so-called practical books flood the market; but works that are at once correct from the standpoint of the theorist and yet valuable to the strictly practical man have not been easy to find. This need is felt by the college graduate as he steps from the plane of the laboratory and lecture room to the hard-pan of the commercial testing floor; it is also felt by the multitude of station managers and engineers, who find the hit-and-miss methods of testing far from satisfactory.

The present work has a twofold object: I. To give a complete theory of the commercial testing floor, with its multitudinous applications of theory to practice. II. To meet the growing demand on the part of operating companies for a manual that shall enable them to do their own repair work and consequent testing. To this end this work presents such tests as can be undertaken without elaborate or expensive instruments.

Part I. is devoted to such fundamental and preliminary conceptions as are needed to help those unacquainted with the general theory. Part II. treats of the testing and use of instruments, taking up Ohm's law, measurement of current, E. M. F., resistance and insulation. The treatment of the ammeter, voltmeter and galvanometer is mathematically simple, and seeks to give the physical conception embodied in the mathematical formulæ. Part III. constitutes the body of the book, and takes up in detail the shop and road tests of dynamos and motors, including the familiar heat test, "pumping back," compounding, efficiency test, etc., etc. The series, shunt and compound-wound machines are taken in order, and the circumstances under which they can be operated considered. To this is added a chapter on locating faults and grounds, which will be of particular service to the lighting station and street-railway operator.

In the field of direct current work this book occupies a unique place, and seeks to fill a long-felt want.

Continuous Current Dynamos and Motors:

THEIR THEORY, DESIGN, AND TESTING.

AN ELEMENTARY TREATISE FOR STUDENTS.

By FRANK P. COX, B.S.

Cloth. 271 pages, 83 Illustrations. Price, $2.00.

Intended for students, this work gives the theory and design of continuous current dynamos and motors as understood and practised in the designing-room, and the methods of testing described are those of the factory testing-shop. The practical side of the various questions treated is always kept in view, discussions having little bearing in this direction being excluded, and the higher branches of mathematics avoided. The application to the design of armatures, field-magnets and motors of the principles developed is explained by reference to numerical problems, thus thoroughly impressing them on the student's mind. Methods of testing a complete machine and of investigating its characteristics are given, with discussions on the effect of various changes in design and operation. The steam-engine being so closely allied to the testing and operation of dynamos and motors, sections on indicator diagrams, steam-power calculations, and belting are included. Almost all of the numerous curves in the book are derived from actual commercial tests.

Electric Lighting Specifications

FOR THE USE OF ENGINEERS AND ARCHITECTS.

By E. A. MERRILL, A.M.,

AUTHOR OF

"Reference Book of Tables and Formulæ for Electric Railway Engineers."

Cloth. 222 Pages. Price, $1.50.

This work has been prepared by an electrical engineer with a very extensive experience in drawing up specifications for one of the great electric-light companies, and will be found an invaluable aid, not only in drawing up specifications, but also in furnishing an outline to assist in preparing plans and estimates. The matter is so arranged that one with no familiarity with electric lighting may rapidly draw up specifications for any system, and for the smallest as well as for the largest and most complex electric installation, as well as specifications for the steam-plant, where one is included. From a comprehensive and remarkably simple outline, the parts applying to an installation are selected by reference to its size, the system, manner of installing wires, etc.; reference to various parts of the book then give the complete matter for the specifications. In an introduction the author gives much valuable information in regard to important points to be observed in selecting the system, voltage, material, etc., for varying circumstances. An analysis is also given of a specific installation, which will serve as a guide for the examination that should be made previous to drawing up specifications, in order to decide how the different conditions of the problem in hand may be best satisfied.

Introduction.—Working Outline.—Specifications.—General Specification.—Installation of Dynamos and Switchboards.—Alternate-current Converter System.—General Specifications for Alternate or Direct Current Dynamos for Parallel System of Distribution.—Arc Dynamos.—Fixtures, etc.—Interior Wiring.—Two-wire, Direct or Alternating-current System.—Three-wire System.—Three-wire System Adapted to Two-wire System.—Arc System.—Conduit System, Two-wire.—Interior Wiring for Central-station Plants.—Pole Lines.—Low Potential, Direct Current, Two- or Three-wire.—Alternating System.—Street-lighting Circuits.—Specifications for Steam-plant.

SECOND EDITION. REVISED.

ELEMENTS OF STATIC ELECTRICITY,

WITH FULL DESCRIPTIONS OF THE HOLTZ AND TÖPLER MACHINES AND THEIR MODE OF OPERATION.

By PHILIP ATKINSON, A.M., Ph.D.

Cloth. 228 pages, 64 Illustrations. Price, $1.50.

This work has been prepared for the benefit of those whose knowledge of electricity is limited to the practical details of telegraphy, telephony, and electric lighting; also those among the liberally educated who desire to review electric science in the light of recent investigation; and those who wish to study its elementary principles preparatory to a more extended course. The author treats the subject in a practical rather than in a scholastic manner, the theories being illustrated and elucidated by reference to practical apparatus and applications. The subject of electric potential, usually so difficult to beginners, is treated very successfully by the author, so that the student after reading this section will find his path much smoother when he enters other branches of electricity not considered in this book. An instructive chapter is devoted to a consideration of the nature of electricity. The Leyden jar is fully treated, and one fourth of the book is devoted to descriptions of static generators and practical experiments with the same. There is an extensive chapter on electrometers, and a very interesting one describing apparatus for illustrating electrical transmission in vacua. An important section of the book is that on the electricity of the earth and the atmosphere, consisting of three chapters—on earth currents, the aurora, and thunder and lightning.

CONTENTS.

ALTERNATING CURRENTS OF ELECTRICITY:

Their Generation, Measurement, Distribution, and Application.

By GISBERT KAPP, M.I.C.E., M.I.E.E.

(Authorized American Edition.)

With an Introduction by William Stanley, Jr.

Cloth. 164 pages, 37 Illustrations, and 2 plates. $1.00.

The rapid development of alternating currents and the great part they are destined to play in the transmission of power have caused an increased interest in the subject, but unfortunately it has heretofore been presented in such a manner as to be beyond the reach of readers without a mathematical education. In the present work, the principles are developed in a simple manner that can be followed by any reader, and the various applications are sketched in a broad and instructive way that renders their understanding an easy task. The few mathematical formulas in the book are confined to appendices. Several chapters treat of various forms of alternating motors, especial attention being paid to the explanation and discussion of multiphase motors. This difficult subject is treated so lucidly that the reader is enabled to form as clear an idea of these new forms of motors as of the simpler continuous current machines. The treatment throughout is thoroughly practical, and the data and discussion on the design and construction of apparatus are invaluable to the electrician and designer. To the student and the general public this work will be a particular boon, bringing within their grasp a subject of the greatest importance and interest.

ELECTRIC RAILWAY MOTORS.

THEIR CONSTRUCTION, OPERATION, AND MAINTENANCE.

BY

N. W. PERRY, E.M.

238 Pages. 60 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

This little book has for an object to provide motormen with an intelligent elementary exposition of the principles upon which are founded the apparatus they are called upon to handle, to give instruction in regard to its care, and for the detection, remedy, and prevention of the faults to which it is subject. The electrical principles upon which the theory of the motor and its operation are based are logically and intelligently developed from the simplest conceptions, and with reference to home-made experimental apparatus, cheaply and easily constructed. Somewhat more than half of the book is devoted to the explanation and development of theory, and the remainder to descriptions of various systems and to practical instructions. The final chapters are of particular value, containing as they do specific directions for the management of motors, the remedy of faults, directions to motormen, instructions for inspectors and superintendents, etc. The work is a great improvement on the style of books usually written for practical men, not only in being scientifically correct, but from the conscientious endeavor everywhere apparent to render thoroughly intelligible to the reader every phase of the subject coming within the scope of the book.

SECOND EDITION, COMPLETELY REVISED.

REFERENCE BOOK OF
FOR ELECTRIC RAILWAY ENGINEERS.

ARRANGED AND COMPILED

By E. A. MERRILL, A. M.,

Author of "Electric Lighting Specifications for the Use of Engineers and Architects."

Interleaved with blank pages for the purpose of making notes. Flexible Morocco, suitable for the pocket. Price, $1.00.

To a busy man the value of a reference book depends largely on the facility with which he can get from it the information he desires. In the larger works the labor involved in seeking out information, which perhaps is scattered through several sections and encumbered with examples and explanations already familiar to the engineer, is often exceedingly annoying, especially when many times repeated. It is the object of this reference book to avoid such annoyances and meet a practical need by collecting and arranging in a concise, logical order those tables and formulas which are in constant use by the electrical railway engineer in making estimates, ordering material, on construction work, etc. All superfluous examples and explanations have been excluded, as well as unnecessary extensions of formulas into tables when such extensions consist only in the simplest mathematical processes. Not only has considerable care been taken in selecting and checking material compiled directly, but several original tables and formulas have been added, which will save many calculations. Furthermore, many tables and formulas have been extended and modified to meet the conditions imposed in street-railway work. The practical arrangement of the work, its condensed style and convenient form, will recommend it to every street-railway engineer. Every heading is in bold-faced type, which easily catches the eye as one glances over the page, thus materially aiding quick reference, and as a further aid a complete cross-index is added. The book is bound in flexible covers, of convenient size to carry in the pocket, and for the greater convenience of practical men has been interleaved with blank pages for the purpose of making notes.

RECENT PROGRESS

IN ELECTRIC RAILWAYS.

Being a Summary of Current Progress in Electric Railway Construction, Operation, Systems, Machinery, Appliances, etc.

By CARL HERING.

AUTHOR OF

"Principles of Dynamo Electric Machinery,"
etc., etc., etc.

Cloth. 389 pages, 104 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

The details connected with electric street railways have become so numerous and the systems so varied that the reader is at a loss when he wishes specific information in regard to many desirable points, which can scarcely be expected, as a rule, in a general treatise on the subject. Hering's "Recent Progress in Electric Railways" is particularly valuable from its treatment of details, and elaborates a number of features that have heretofore received only brief notice in other works,—such as high-speed interurban roads and underground tunnel conduit systems,—while the section on construction and operation is very full, and gives much recent engineering and financial data. The historical notes and statistics on the development of the industry will be found complete and reliable. The hundred or more pages devoted to the consideration of details and recent improvements contain information of the greatest value that otherwise could only be obtained by a laborious search through periodical literature. Here the latest inventions and developments in street-railway motors, apparatus, and fittings are described and illustrated in great detail, thus supplying the omissions from more general treatises.

ORIGINAL PAPERS

ON

Dynamo Machinery

AND ALLIED SUBJECTS.

By JOHN HOPKINSON, F.R.S.

(Authorized American Edition.)

Cloth. 249 pages, 98 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

Very few contributions to electrical literature since the days of Faraday have been of as an important character as those contained in the present volume; and this is true, whether considered from a theoretical or from a practical standpoint. In the first paper that invaluable aid to the study and design of dynamos, the characteristic curve, was first announced, and the two following papers are devoted more or less to developing its applications. These three papers contain a vast amount of information relating to the various points connected with the subject. Though the style is simple and popular, the statements are authoritative and supplied the beginnings of electrical engineering. The fourth and fifth papers, on the theory and design of continuous-current dynamos, furnished the principles upon which the design of such dynamos is now based. The sixth paper established the important principles in regard to coupling alternating-current machines; the next three papers are on the transformer, and the remaining two are on the theory of the alternate-current dynamo and electric-light houses respectively. The majority of the papers contain no mathematical formula, and several others so little as not to prevent their being understood by a non-mathematical reader.

Dynamo and Motor Building

WITH WORKING DRAWINGS.

By Lieut. C. D. PARKHURST, U.S.A.

Cloth. 163 pages, 71 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

One of the most fascinating fields for the amateur is that afforded by electrical science, and the simplicity of construction of small dynamos and motors, in particular, enables him not only to gratify his tastes, but at the same time to construct apparatus that can be directly applied to useful purposes. In Parkhurst's Dynamo and Motor Building for Amateurs clear and concise instructions, accompanied by working drawings, are given for the construction of such forms and types of dynamos and motors as are simply made and yet will produce fairly efficient results. While primarily intended for amateurs and students, the detailed information, particularly in the chapters on armature windings, connections, and currents, and on the design of a fifty-light dynamo, will be of value to every electrician. In the latter chapter the subject of the proper proportioning of the armature and armature wire, the calculation of the magnetic circuit and field-windings, etc., are gone into at length, and in the light of the most recent knowledge and practice. The large and clear drawings showing how to wind armatures are supplemented by tables, so that the beginner will have no difficulty whatever in carrying out the instructions. Every part of the machines, even the most simple, is illustrated and marked with its dimensions.

The Electromagnet.

BY

PROF. SILVANUS P. THOMPSON, D.Sc., B.A., M.I.E.E.

AUTHORIZED AMERICAN EDITION.

Cloth. 280 pages, 75 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

As the electro-magnet is the foundation of all electrical apparatus, the value of a proper understanding of its principles is obvious. In this volume the subject is thoroughly treated in a popular manner, and many very important points clearly demonstrated that previously had been involved in much obscurity—such as the lifting-power of magnets and the principles relating to the design of quick-working electro-magnets. The entire field is well covered, from the design of dynamo and motor-fields to that of the small magnets used in the printing telegraph. The parts dealing with the theories and principles of magnetism and the magnetic circuit are unusually instructive, and in language easily followed. Graphical methods are used to explain the various principles, and even the most involved ones are thus made clear. The information given throughout is in a practical form, so that it may be easily applied to designing by one with no knowledge of mathematics or theories. Sections of the book which should prove very useful to experimenters are those devoted to the consideration of various ingenious electro-magnetic mechanisms.

LECTURE I. Introductory; Historical Sketch; Generalities Concerning Electromagnets; Typical Forms; Polarity; Uses in General; The Properties of Iron; Methods of Measuring Permeability; Traction Methods; Curves of Magnetization and Permeability; The Law of the Electromagnet; Hysteresis; Fallacies and Facts about Electromagnets.—LECTURE II. General Principles of Design and Construction; Principle of the Magnetic Circuit.—LECTURE III. Special Designs; Winding of the Copper; Windings for Constant Pressure and for Constant Current; Miscellaneous Rules about Winding; Specifications for Electromagnets; Armature Rules Resistance of Electromagnet and Battery; Forms of Electromagnets; Effect of Size, Position and Shape of Section of Coils; Effect of Distance between Poles; Researches of Prof. Hughes; Position and Form of Armature; Pole-pieces on Horseshoe Magnets. TELEPHONISTS.

BY

T. D. LOCKWOOD,

Electrician American Bell Telephone Company.

Cloth. 192 pages. Price, $1.00.

The descriptions in this eminently practical book of the various devices connected with telephony are full and clear and to the point, while the different troubles that arise in operation and the means of prevention or remedy are thoroughly and concisely treated. A goodly part of the work deals with the important duties of the telephone inspector, laying out the routine most advantageous to follow under different circumstances, and giving clear and minute instructions in regard to the matters likely to come before him in the discharge of his duties. The amateur will appreciate the chapter devoted to short telephone lines, and the telephonist who turns his hand to bell-work during his spare hours will welcome the section on electric bells which the author has provided for his benefit. An interesting chapter is devoted to the history of electricity from the earliest days to date, and another one to the anticipations of great discoveries and inventions.

EXPERIMENTS WITH

Alternate Currents

Of High Potential and High Frequency.

By NIKOLA TESLA.

Cloth. 156 pages, with Portrait and 35 Illustrations. Price, $1.00.

Since the discovery of the telephone few researches in electricity have created as widespread an interest as those of Nikola Tesla into alternate currents of high potential and high frequency. Mr. Tesla was accorded the unusual honor of an invitation to repeat his experiments before distinguished scientific bodies of London and Paris, and the lecture delivered before the Institution of Electrical Engineers, London, is here presented in book-form. The field opened up, to which this book acts as a guide, is one in which the future may develop results of the most remarkable character, and perhaps lead to an entire revision of our present scientific conceptions, with correspondingly broad practical results. The currents of enormously high frequency and voltage generated by Mr. Tesla developed properties previously entirely unsuspected, and which produced phenomena of startling character. No injurious effects were experienced when the human body was subjected to the highest voltages generated. Lamps with only one conductor were rendered incandescent, and others with no connection whatever to the conducting circuit glowed when merely brought into proximity to the same. The book in which Mr. Tesla describes his marvellous experiments is one that every one who takes an interest in electricity or its future should read. The subject is popularly treated, and as the author is the master of a simple and agreeable style the book is fascinating reading. A portrait and biographical sketch of the author is included.

THE QUADRUPLEX.

BY

WM. MAVER, JR., AND MINOR M. DAVIS.

With Chapters on the Dynamo-Electric Machine in Relation to the Quadruplex, the Practical Working of the Quadruplex, Telegraph Repeaters and the Wheatstone Automatic Telegraph.

BY WM. MAVER, JR.

Cloth, 126 pages, 63 Illustrations. Price, $1.50.

In the description of the quadruplex, as well as in the other articles contained in this book, no attempt has been made to display erudition. Plain, simple and explicit language within the comprehension of all is employed, the aim of the authors being, if they erred at all in this respect, to err on the side of simplicity. The book is one written by operators for operators, but it will also be found an easy source of information to those outside of the telegraphic fraternity who may desire to form an acquaintance with the various systems and instruments described and illustrated. The illustrations are numerous, and with their aid the readers can at once grasp, mentally, the operation of the Quadruplex. The book is handsomely printed on fine paper and substantially bound.

The Universal Wiring Computer.

By CARL HERING,

AUTHOR OF

"Principles of Dynamo-Electric Machines,"
etc., etc., etc.

Cloth. 44 pages, 4 charts. Price, $1.00.

By means of engraved charts the sizes of conductors are determined directly in circular mils or in gauge numbers, for any make of lamp (or any horse power of current), for any loss, for any number of lamps, and at any distances, without calculations, formulæ, or knowledge of mathematics. It is the equivalent of a complete set of tables for all practical cases, with the advantage over these of being much simpler, more compact and handy, than such a cumbersome and bulky set of tables would be. It gives the result in as little time as it would otherwise take to write down the figures to perform the calculation. The book includes also an illustrated article giving general hints on wiring, and a set of original Useful Auxiliary Tables, for determining heating limits, weights of insulation, power reductions, composite wires of large sections, weights and resistances, wire gauges, etc.

CONTENTS.

FOURTH EDITION.

FOR

ELECTRIC WIREMEN,

WITH INSTRUCTIONS FOR WIREMEN AND LINEMEN, UNDERWRITERS' RULES, AND USEFUL FORMULÆ AND DATA.

By CHAS. M. DAVIS.

Fourth Edition, thoroughly Revised and Edited by W. D. Weaver.

Flexible Morocco. 128 pages. Price, $1.00.

The fourth edition of this popular book contains the latest revisions of the insurance rules of the Underwriters' International Electric Association, now almost exclusively used in the United States. An important section has been added on the calculation of alternating current wiring, which for the first time brings this subject within the reach of practical men. A number of the most important tables were prepared expressly for this work, and being copyrighted cannot be found elsewhere. The wiring-tables are arranged in the most convenient manner for practical use; all have been calculated on a basis of 55 watt lamps, and it is believed that this is the first uniform set of tables published. A valuable table here appears for the first time, by means of which the tables of the three standard voltages can be used for any other voltage, and also for other drops than those in the tables printed. The method of determining the sizes of conductors has been proved in practice, and the wiring formulæ for motor circuits, etc., are put in their simplest and most practical form. The formulæ for horse-power of engine and boilers are published for the first time, and while they are based on rational principles, the different value of heating surface in boilers being considered, the results they give are the actual commercial ratings and not the theoretical powers. The tables for the limiting currents for exterior wiring and the candle-power of arc-lamps are also here published for the first time in their present form. Ayer's valuable instructions for linemen (revised) are included with permission of the author. The object always kept in view has been to produce a book for wiremen and electricians of a thoroughly practical character and free from the padding and useless tables that generally accompany such works.

LIGHTNING FLASHES

AND

ELECTRIC DASHES.

A Volume of Choice Telegraphic and Electrical Literature, Humor, Fun, Wit and Wisdom.

Cloth. Profusely illustrated, 160 large, double-column pages. Price, $1.50.

"Lightning Flashes" is principally made up of short, bright, crisp, ably-written stories and sketches from the pens of the foremost writers in the ranks of telegraphic and electrical literature, as well as of several writers of prominence outside of the business. Among the latter are included Mr. Charles Barnard and the late Benson J. Lossing, LL.D. The article by Dr. Lossing on Professor Morse is a valuable contribution to the history of the telegraph; and the other articles, grave and gay in turn, in some cases illustrated by the authors, make this a work of interest to the general reading public as well as to electricians.

BOOKS ON FINANCE

History of Monetary Systems in the various States of the World, B. C. 369—A. D. 1895. By Alexander Del Mar, M. E. Authorized American edition. This is the great authority for the whole world on coinage and the ratio between gold and silver. Mr. Del Mar was at the head of the United States Bureau of Statistics under President Andrew Johnson. The present volume is the result of fifteen years of research at the British Museum and elsewhere. The latest information and most accurate details relating to the Monetary Systems and History of the Various States, their coins and coinages, paper systems, monetary expedients and experiments, the coinage prerogative, principles affecting money, the demonetization of silver, etc., will be found in Del Mar's "Monetary Systems." Cloth, library style, complete index, 444 pages, $2.00.

Banking Systems of the World. By William Matthews Handy. An impartial statement of the conditions under which Bank Notes are issued in every Nation, and the actual workings of the systems; with separate chapters on Postal Savings Banks of the World, also an appendix containing Abstracts of Proposed Currency Reforms. The author's idea has been to furnish a manual of reference. The work is impartial and the statistics are the latest accessible. It is of special interest at the present time, when the banking question threatens to overshadow the silver question. The present work is the only comprehensive work on banking in all nations covering the whole ground in a few words, and contains information which would otherwise be accessible only to those possessing a large library of expensive books. The chapter on "Postal Savings Banks" contains information not accessible elsewhere in books. Crown octavo, extra cloth, 192 pages. Price, $1.00.

Money Found: Recovered from its Hiding-Places, and Put Into Circulation through Confidence in Government Banks. By Thomas E. Hill, author of "Hill's Manual of Social and Business Forms," etc. In this book the writer, a practical business man, proposes a practical system by which the United States may carry on the banking business in the interest of the whole people. He suggests that the government open a bank at every county seat, receive deposits subject to check without interest, and time deposits at three per cent, and make loans at four per cent. up to half the value of all approved collateral that may be offered. The book contains an appendix of valuable statistical matter, with a glossary of financial terms. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 75 cents, flexible leather, $1.00.

A Breed of Barren Metal, or Currency and Interest. By J. W. Bennett. This is a scientific and thorough-going treatise which does for interest precisely what Henry George's works have done for rent. Mr. Bennett shows that the whole theory of interest-taking is based on fallacies. He shows the inevitable result of interest-taking is ruin for enterprise and poverty for labor. He shows that with a currency system framed in the interest of the majority, interest could be abolished and humanity set free. He has written a book that is needed, and is needed now. Cloth, crown octavo, 256 pages, 75 cents; paper, 25 cents.

The Modern Banker: A Story of His Rapid Rise and Dangerous Designs. By James B. Goode. Mr. Goode is a successful writer of popular fiction, and the present book is written in a style that will please the average novel reader, while it carries with it a great deal of forcible argument that will awaken people to the evils of our present system, which allows a few individuals to make enormous profits by controlling the circulation of the people's money. Paper, 180 pages, 25 cents.

The Money Question. The 50 per cent. Fall in General Prices; the Evil Effects. The Remedy: Bimetallism at 16 to 1 and Governmental Control of Paper Money, in order to secure a Stable Measure of Prices—Stable Money. Monetary History, 1850-1896. By George H. Shibley ("Justice"). This book of 743 large octavo pages, with over 80 pages of illustrations and 10 charts, is a complete encyclopedia of financial reform. Cloth, $1.50; paper, 50 cents.

Sixteen to One. Shall the United States Undertake Alone the Free Coinage of Silver at this Ratio? By Richard Lowry. Paper, 12mo., 272 pages, 25 cents.

The People vs. the Goldbugs. By A. D. Warner. A complete arsenal of facts, figures and arguments for bimetallists. The author draws freely from the best writers in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, and condenses his material into 144 convenient pages. Paper, 25 cents; eight copies mailed for $1.00. Special terms by the hundred or thousand.

Money Chart. By Marvin Warren. A book which is accepted by the leading populist newspapers and workers as an authoritative statement of the present position of the People's Party on the money question. Paper, 136 pages, 25 cents.

The Effects of the Gold Standard, or Bimetallists' Catechism. By Dr. W. H. Smith. The cause of panics and hard times, the absurdity of the over production theory, our financial dependence, cornering the gold, the robbery of the silver miners and other producing classes, how England is enriched at the expense of America, why bimetallism gives us the better dollar, legislation by which the American people are legally robbed, these and many other topics fully treated. A remarkable book, full of information, well written, entertaining, logical and highly instructive. Paper, 202 pages, 25 cents.

BOOKS ON SOCIALISM.

President John Smith. By Frederick Upham Adams. The story of a peaceful revolution, establishing the rule of the majority and a national system of production and distribution in the United States. Cloth, 12mo., 290 pages, $1.00; paper, 10 cents. (Trade discount on the paper edition is "special.")

The Garden of Eden, U. S. A., A Very Possible Story. By W. H. Bishop. The present co-operative movements lend new interest to this delightful story of an experiment in socialism without the aid of legislation. Cloth, crown octavo, 369 pages, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

How to Govern Chicago. By a Practical Reformer. This is a study in municipal reform by a writer who takes Chicago for his text. Nearly every page in the book, however, will be found suggestive by reformers in other cities. Paper, 118 pages, 25 cents.

Man or Dollar, Which? A story of the co-operative commonwealth in the United States of the twentieth century, and how it was brought about. A delightful picture of what the world will be when people work to help each other instead of struggling to overcome each other. A unique feature of the book is its story of the universal strike, which proved that the farmers and laborers of the United States acting together are stronger than the money power. Paper, 199 pages, 25 cents.

BOOKS OF AMERICAN HISTORY.

Our Nation's History and Song, or The Campaign Songs Our Fathers Sung. By Joseph M. Clary. This book is of more than ordinary historical interest. The author has collected from original sources, by diligent research in the great library of the Wisconsin Historical Society in the state capitol at Madison, the principal songs actually sung in the successive presidential campaigns from Washington's time down. The relation of song to national life is traced in an interesting series of prefactory chapters, and the body of the work is arranged by campaigns. The songs are made intelligible by a detailed account of the candidates and platforms of each campaign, and a complete table of election figures is given in each case, together with the personnel of each presidential cabinet and the political divisions of every congress from the beginning. It is an invaluable work of reference to any student of American history. Crown octavo, 480 pages, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

A History of the American Tariff, 1789-1860. By Eugene C. Lewis. This history is not written in the interest of any party or theory, the author's sole object being to collect and arrange the principal facts bearing on the subject. Cloth, 12mo., 157 pages, 75 cents; paper, 25 cents.

The Pullman Strike. By William H. Carwardine, Pastor of the First M. E. Church, Pullman, Ill. To the future historian this bit of chronology by an eye witness will be one of the most valuable documents on the closing years of the nineteenth century. The strike at Pullman is described in this book with absolute fidelity, by an impartial observer committed to neither party. Paper, 126 pages, 25 cents.

BOOKS OF MODERN SCIENCE.

Proofs of Evolution. One of a series of popular lectures before the Brooklyn Ethical Association, by Nelson C. Parshall. Contents: The Growth of Evolutionary Thought; Practical Benefits of the Evolution Theory; the Four Great Factors of Evolution; Proofs from Geology; Proofs from Hypnotism Up to Date. By Sydney Flower, editor of the "Hypnotic Magazine." This book is unique in its field. It is written in a bright and entertaining style, simple enough to be intelligible to any reader of ordinary education, instead of bristling with technical terms. Moreover, it is thoroughly scientific, and will serve to correct many of the popular delusions that now attach to the subject of hypnotism. It is in the form of narrative and dialogue. Cloth, 12mo., 161 pages, $1.00; paper, 25 cents.

BOOKS OF FICTION.

Asleep and Awake. By Raymond Russell. A strong and realistic story of Chicago's dark places, daring in its choice of subject but delicate in its treatment. Crown octavo, cloth, 199 pages, $1.00.

The Auroraphone. A Romance. By Cyrus Cole A remarkable story of an invention for telegraphing without the aid of wires (written by the way before the newspapers announced this invention as a fact). The inventor in the story to his surprise, found himself in telegraphic communication with the planet Saturn, and received much interesting information regarding the religious and social institutions of that planet. Cloth, 12mo., 249 pages, 50 cents.

Dan, the Tramp. By Laura Hunsaker Abbott. A realistic story of life in Arizona and the Southwest in times of gold standard "prosperity." Paper, 25 cents.

A Daughter of Humanity. By Edgar Maurice Smith. A story of the life of girls employed in the great department stores which have become a distinctive feature of our cities. Those who prefer to shut their eyes to unpleasant facts will not care for this book. Those who believe in telling the truth and in seeking a remedy for wrongs will find in it much food for thought. Crown octavo, 317 pages, cloth, 75 cents; paper, 25 cents.

The Juggernaut of the Moderns. By Rosa Hudspeth. The title of this novel is misleading in that it suggests heavy reading, while in fact the story is full of action and movement from beginning to end. The book, like all other novels worth reading, has a purpose, but the author does not stop to point out her moral; she tells a story that irresistibly carries its moral with it. Read "The Juggernaut of the Moderns," and you will realize the iniquity of our social code which crushes a woman's life in penalty for an offense which in a man is lightly condoned. Crown octavo, 327 pages, cloth, 75 cents; paper, 25 cents.

The Story of a Dream. By Ethel Maude Colson. A subtle and searching story founded on the idea of reincarnation. The scene is laid partly in Assyria thirty centuries ago, partly in modern Chicago. The same leading characters, a woman and two men, appear in both, and the wrongs of the first life meet poetic justice in the second. Whether the thought is true philosophy or only beautiful myth, the reader must judge; at all events, the story is a charming one. Cloth, 302 pages, $1.00.

Shylock's Daughter. A novel. By Margaret Holmes Bates. It is one of the brightest and ablest reform novels of late years. It is by a practical writer who brings to the reform cause her experience and reputation gained in other literary fields. The hero of the story is a talented young farmer elected by the People's Party to the legislature, where he meets Shylock and his daughter. Cloth, 12mo., 146 pages, 75 cents; paper, 25 cents.

THE NEW TIME: A monthly magazine of Social Progress. Edited by B. O. Flower and Frederick Upham Adams. Subscription, $1.00 a year; net to the trade, 80 cents, received direct. Single copies 10 cents; supplied to the trade, returnable, at 7 cents, through the American News Company.

Adversary, The; His Person, Power, and Purpose. A Study in Satanology. By William A. Matson, D.D. Second Edition. 12mo, cloth, 238 pp. $1.25.

This work treats of a branch of religious instruction essential to an appreciation of the nature of our spiritual conflict on earth, and of the mission of the Son of God to "destroy the works of the devil." While not slighting the more difficult portions, the author endeavors to prove, in a manner adapted to the understanding of intelligent Christians of all classes, that the enemy of God and man is a personal adversary; so recognized in Scripture and by the Christian Church in all ages —powerful and active in all periods of history, and as much now as ever.

The New York Independent says: "The volume is a very thorough study of the subject from historic, theoretic, biblical, and experimental points of view."

The Congregationalist: "The book deserves commendation as a reverent, careful, and enlightening study of its theme; in defending the truth of the devil's personality, so often questioned at present, is conclusive."

The Golden Rule: "It is vigorous, learned, and suggestive. It begins by being interesting. There is nothing dull about it. The basis of the author's work is biblical, and cannot be gainsaid. The book is able. No other volume covers this ground. The store of matter and the evident learning contained in it will be helpful and stimulating."

Aleph, the Chaldean; or, The Messiah, as seen from Alexandria. By E. F. Burr, D.D., LL.D. Fourth Edition. 12mo, cloth, 416 pp. $1.25.

The Advance says: "A clear presentation of the historic Christian Evidences."

The Critic: "The pen of the author of 'Ecce Cœlum' and 'Pater Mundi' has not lost its cunning."

Public Opinion: "The dictation is elegant and forcible, the motive is noble, and its influence must be good."

The Treasury: "This latest production will surpass in popularity all his previous works. With somewhat the same aim as 'Ben Hur,' it will doubtless overrun it in circulation, and outrun it in continuous and permanent interest."

The Michigan Christian Advocate: "The Doctor is a scholar and a graceful writer. He has produced a book of power and beauty. It will be familiarly known five years hence. The impression is lasting. The lessons assuring."

Alumni Record of Drew's Theological Seminary, 1869-1895. Compiled by the Rev. S. G. Ayres. 8vo, cloth, 306 pp. $2.00, net.

The Book News: "The volume is a teeming storehouse of original ideas, useful suggestions, wit, and wisdom, that must prove of invaluable service to preachers and teachers."

The Sunday School Times: "Every Junior in every theological seminary would be better qualified for his work if he would read this little book carefully enough to be qualified to pass an examination in it."

Christian Leader: "The young minister is told not only how to employ the stories but where to look for them as well. No minister who reads it and acts upon its suggestions will fail to preach with greater effect."

The London Press says : "Most admirable sermons ; moderate, earnest, Scriptural. They are worthy of being models for universal imitation."

Christianity and Positivism. By James McCosh, D.D., LL.D., Late President of Princeton College. 12mo, cloth, 370 pp. $1.75.

In the present as well as in preceding defences of her divine origin, Christianity finds in her ranks the men demanded by the time. Among those who have been foremost in her service, Dr. McCosh holds an honorable place. A large part of his life was devoted to the study and the discussion of the main questions involved in this book.

The New York Independent says : "This book grapples directly with the vital questions. Every reader must admire its fairness. It is all the better adapted to popular reading from having been written to be delivered to an audience. Indeed, the thinking is generally so clear, and the style so animated and luminous, that any person of average intelligence and culture may understand and enjoy the discussion ; and no such person who has begun to read the work will be likely to rest satisfied till he has finished it."

Christianity and Science. A Series of Lectures. By Andrew P. Peabody, D.D., LL.D. 12mo, cloth, 369 pp. $1.75.

The three sources of proof from which scientific men draw—testimony, experiment (or experience), and intuition—are made to render their tribute to Christianity, and in a way which, while necessarily brief, is nevertheless so compact and clear and forcible as to be conclusive. A warm heart as well as a clear head shines through these pages, and lights up the calm reasoning with gems of brilliant beauty.

The Christian Weekly says : "One of the best books we have read in a long time—a manly, candid, noble, reasonable defense of the Christian faith. We do not see how any thoughtful person can read it in vain. Dr. Peabody plants himself fairly on the very postulates of scientific men, and proceeds to show how all that they claim for true science is fulfilled in the religion of Jesus."

Christian Thought. Edited by the late Charles F. Deems, D.D., LL.D. 11 volumes. 8vo, 400 pp., each $2.50 net. Special price for set on application, together with table of contents of the volumes.

They contain all the lectures and papers delivered before the American Institute of Christian Philosophy for eleven years, together with other valuable matter.

Canadian Methodist Quarterly Review says : "Christian Thought is for those who think and who want to think, and is emphatically a leader in thought."

Christ and His Religion. By Rev. John Reid. Second Edition. 12mo, cloth, 311 pp. $1.25.

This volume bears the characteristics of the author. The thought is fresh and interesting, evidently the outgrowth of the writer's own intellectual and spiritual life ; it is concrete rather than abstract, centering on the living and historic Christ. The style is remarkable for short sentences and simple words. The work is one of originality and great power.

The Outlook says : "Keen and clear conceptions of truth mark this volume. The author is a man of thought, and his calm and well-balanced views give a charm to his writing. The book is like a fruitful field or a well-kept garden, full of noble plants and beautiful flowers. Nor is it simply ornate ; there is the strength of truth in every page. The reader is carried along by the steady current of thought, and finishes the volume with a sense of having made a delightful journey."

Christ Enough. By Hannah Whitall Smith. 16mo, azure binding, in colors. 15 cents.

The California Christian Advocate says: "Worthy a place in every room table in the land, for it will bless every one who picks it up."

At the earnest solicitation and unanimous request of the Faculty and Students, together with numerous requests from other schools of theology and the public, they were prepared for publication. Religious Herald says: "A rich armory for offensive and defensive warfare against theological error."

Western Christian Advocate: "A book that should be in every minister's library. The doctor's style is singularly pure and candid, and the diction and dignity, scholarship and research is manifest in every page."

Refinement and taste and extensive scholarship can alone explain the chasteness, ease and elegance of style, so free from all verbosity and clumsiness, which mark the production.

Decision of Character and Other Essays. In a Series of Letters. By John Foster. 12mo, cloth, 352 pp $1. 0.

John McClintock, M.D., says: "His writings are marked by strong, original thought, stimulating to the best principles and purposes."

Epistles of Paul the Apostle; a Sketch of their Origin and Contents. By George G. Findlay, B.A. 12mo, cloth, 300 pp. $1.50.

Christian Advocate says: "This is a book especially useful to young preachers."

Zion's Herald: "The book will prove acceptable and useful to both preachers and teachers in the Sunday School. The wheat is sifted from the chaff and prepared for easy and profitable use."

Marcus Dods, D.D.: "A very useful handbook, admirably adapted for its purpose. Professor Findlay, in his perfect Commentary on the Epistle to the Galatians, has given proof of his competency to handle Pauline doctrine, and here he utilizes his great knowledge for the use of beginners."

George Edward Reid, D.D., LL.D., President of Dickinson College: "I have examined with great care and with deep satisfaction Prof. Findlay's excellent and erudite work, 'The Epistles of Paul the Apostle.' To say that I am delighted with the volume would be insufficient to express my satisfaction; while, as the author modestly suggests, the field is not new, he has, nevertheless, succeeded in bringing within the narrow limits of his work a vast array of interesting facts concerning the life and letters of the illustrious Apostle to the Gentiles. I shall keep it within easy reach as one of the best of hand books for Bible study, pulpit preparations, or Sunday School work, it has been my fortune to own. It ought to have a place in every Christian worker's library."

Footprints of Sorrow. By Rev. John Reid. Third edition. 12mo, cloth, 373 pp. $1.25.

The present treatise is not a devotional book, although veins of devotion are found in it. It does not strictly relate to the afflictions of man, to piety on its sombre side, or to the absolute gloom of grief. It rather calls attention to certain phases of sorrow; giving shape to our consciousness upon the subject, and seeking to impress the mind in a way that seems right. Any person, therefore, may read the work, whether he be indifferent, joyful, or sad. The chapters are arranged rhetorically rather than logically, as that method seems the most suitable.

The Christian Intelligencer says: "The author gives gold fresh coined in the mint of his own mind. He considers his subject under all its aspects, first showing the source of sorrow, then the varieties of form it assumes, and its benefits and consolations. The beauty and simplicity of its style, and the vein of touching sympathy that runs through its pages must make it a welcome volume to all sorrowing and afflicted readers. Its exquisite typographical neatness is as refreshing to the eye as its contents are to the heart."

Father Solon; or, The Helper Helped. By Rev. De Los Lull. 12mo, cloth, 367 pp. $1.50.

Zion's Herald says: "We have before us the promised treat in the story told by a distinguished clergyman, and can assert that its anticipated excellencies had not been overstated."

"For Christ's Crown." By David James Burrell, D.D. 12mo, cloth, 484 pp. $1.50.

The Sunday School Chronicle says: "They are like good nails, straight and pointed, full of illustrations, and such as children will delight to hear."

The Expository Times, London, England: "The Golden Nails Series is one of the happiest of recent enterprises in book publishing. It is a series of volumes of sermons to children; attractive, modern, and evangelical. Every volume has had a good reception, and every volume increases one's admiration for the enterprise. We have always felt that if three things were made imperative—freshness, truth, and cheapness—there was a great field for children's sermons. For we know that there were children and children's preachers who were hungering and thirsting after them as after righteousness itself."

Golden Nails, and Other Addresses to Children. By George Milligan, B.D. 12mo, parti-cloth, 188 pp. 60 cts. See "Golden Nails Series."

Gospel of Common Sense, The; As Contained in the Canonical Epistle of James. By Charles F. Deems, D.D., LL.D. 12mo, cloth, 320 pp. $1.50.

Christian Standard says: "It is about as much a book of sermons as a commentary and about as much a commentary as a book of sermons, and in either capacity it is profitably suggestive."

The Evangelist: "Dr. Deems has blended scholarly correctness of exegesis with the plainest and most practical unfolding of the lesson, social and individual, of the Epistle of James. He has made a useful book."

The Critic: "The volume is too bright to be dubbed a commentary. It crackles in every one of its chapters with wit and point, with note and illustration, and is thoroughly out of the ruts as to style and method."

The Presbyterian: "The book deserves thoughtful consideration. Dr. Deems brings to them exposition and applicative power of happy illustration, careful investigation, good judgment, ripe experience, elegance of diction, and versatility of talent."

Joseph Cook: "Dr. Deems' eminent common sense never appeared more profitable than in his fresh, incisive, and most timely discussion of St. James' Epistle as the Gospel of Common Sense. The book is at once popular and scholarly, broad and deep, radical and conservative."

It is like a garden of sweet and fragrant flowers, and there is dew everywhere.

Free Methodist says: "It expresses thoughts and feelings of great beauty and tenderness."

King's Son, The; or, A Memoir of Billy Bray. Compiled chiefly from his own memorandum. By F. W. Bourne. Thirty-first edition. Revised and enlarged. 12mo, cloth, 160 pp. 75 cts.

We cannot describe this book in better language than the Editor of the New York Independent did in a recent issue. He says: "It is a history of one of those 'miracles of grace' of which John Newton declared himself an example. It is one of those homely tales of the thorough-going transforming powers of Christian grace which Spurgeon has done more than any living man to celebrate. It shows how the poor man may become rich, the drunkard sober, the miserable examples of peace and joy, and how the social and individual problem of human life may be solved by the divine agency of faith. It is a stimulating book whose power lies, like Bunyan's 'Pilgrim's Progress,' in its simple presentation of the eternal verities and realities of Christian life and experience."

The Congregationalist says: "The book would do good if lent about freely."

Ocean Grove Record: "Such a book will be read and talked about when theological or scientific treatises are overlooked."

The late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon said: "Sometime ago we gave a 'resume' of this singular biography, and our friends at once bought it. Those who did not do so had better hurry up. Scarcely do we remember a biography more amusing and yet more edifying."

Live Coals. By T. De Witt Talmage, D.D. Large 8vo, 678 pp. Illustrated. Cloth. $2.00.

This work is divided into seventy-six telling chapters on as many different subjects of absorbing interest.

Christian Advocate says: "Their power for good can scarcely be overestimated. When heard or read they produce a powerful impression, and are of the kind best adapted to reach the masses in these days of absorbing worldliness and eager pursuit of gain."

Lost Chapters Recovered from the Early History of American Methodism. By J. B. Wakeley, D.D., with a Memoir of the Author by William E. Ketcham, D.D. Illustrated with steel and wood engravings. 8vo, cloth, 640 pp. $2.00.

The book contains the earliest authentic records of Methodism in this country. It is a perfect treasure. It is most valuable to the antiquarian, to the historian, and especially to the great Methodist family. It has a denominational interest. It introduces to us the carpenter preacher, Philip Embury; the soldier preacher, Captain Webb; to Boardman, Pilmoor, and many others; their lifeless forms seem to be reanimated and we see them living, breathing, speaking, and acting as they were a century ago. We behold them laying the foundation of the temple of Methodism in this new world, on which has been erected a noble superstructure. This work is more than a mere local history. It describes the early and great men of Methodism in whom the great Methodist family have a common interest. Contained in the numerous chapters is a history of Methodism in the City of New York. The work will be valuable for the future historian. It is rich in historic lore, presenting significant and curious items relating to the introduction of Methodism in this country.

Western Christian Advocate says: "It is a treasury of many facts which are indispensable to a clear understanding of Methodism."

Christian Advocate (St. Louis): "This is a new edition of one of the most valuable contributions to the history of American Methodism. Until its publication we had only the merest outline of the rise and early years of Methodism in New York City. Now we have it nearly as complete as one can desire, making the record more perfect than of any other important early centre. What was before shadowy and conjectural stands out in perfect relief."

Nature and the Bible; A Course of Lectures. By J. W. Dawson, LL.D., F.R.S., F.G.S. 12mo, cloth, illustrated, 238 pp. $1.75.

The Interior says: "The book is not a partisan publication. It will be found by those opposed to be perfectly candid and fair admitting difficulties in their full force, and not seeking to evade, misinterpret, or exaggerate any fact or argument. He discusses his topics as a student of nature and not from the standpoint mostly occupied by theologians."

Pastor's Pocket Manual for Funerals. Compiled and edited by Joseph Sanderson, D.D., LL.D. Introduction by William M. Taylor, D.D., LL.D. Flexible leather. 60 cts., net.

This work is for the pastor's pocket and use when going to discharge the duties of his office at the funeral service. The Selections of Scripture are brief, varied, and so arranged that one or more may be used as circumstances may suggest. They are adapted to deaths occurring in very diversified conditions of life and at very different ages. The funeral services of the various churches are given in an abbreviated form, and also several Committals in frequent use. The Germs of Addresses, or outlines of sermons, original and selected from sermons of eminent clergymen, follow the order of the selections.

Golden Rule says: "It is a book that will be exceedingly valuable to all pastors."

William M. Taylor, D.D.: "Dr. Sanderson has earned the thanks of the brethren for the sketches, both original and selected, which he has furnished in this volume, and which will be helpful to them in the choice and treatment of a theme specially adapted to such an occasion. Valuable above all price is the catena of consoling passages which is here furnished. We commend this suggestive handbook to all whose office it is to guide the thoughts and lead the devotion of mourners when they go forth to bury their dead out of their sight."

Western Recorder: "Yesterday having unexpectedly a leisure hour, we attentively read through a copy. We were surprised to find how uniformly excellent all the sermons and sketches were. The volume contains sixteen sermons; the following are titles:

Sleep and Waking. The Seat and Exit of Evil. Temptation. Conscience. The Christian Use of Food. The Christian Use of Society. Domestic Service—Masters and Servants. Domestic Service—Servants and Masters. A Good Old Age. Repentance and Forgiveness Once Needed. Repentance and Forgiveness Occasionally Needed. Repentance and Forgiveness Daily Needed. Addresses for a Harvest Home. The Decisive Question. The Marks of the Lord Jesus. The Revelation of the Unseen.

The Late Rev. C. H. Spurgeon said:—"Not only does Dr. Vaughan expound his texts in the ablest manner, but he introduces passages of Scripture so aptly that he suggests discourses. We cannot too highly commend him. He does not grapple with difficulties but inculcates the lessons."

The Guardian says:—"There is a self-controlled abstinence from rhetoric in Dr. Vaughan's sermons, accompanied by a power and freshness of thought, which gives them the reality that other writers sometimes seek through a strained 'unprofessionality' of tone. Dr. Vaughan's last volume, Plain Words on Christian Living, strikes us as no less scholar-like in style, and more instructive in matter, than its predecessors."

Pivot Words of Scripture. By Rev. Philip B. Power. 12mo, cloth, 353 pp. $1.25.

The Epworth Herald says: "A most excellent and helpful volume. We heartily commend it."

The Christian Work: "It is pointed, crisp, and fresh, and dealing with living issues."

The Sermons are the product of the heart and brain of ministers of several Churches. They were originally published from time to time in the PREACHER'S MAGAZINE, and are now sent forth in this form. We trust that they will be suggestive to those whose duty it is to preach, and also may be useful for private reading.

New York Observer says: "It makes a very interesting book, one valuable both in itself and as showing the tone of the contemporary pulpit."

The Baltimore Methodist: "The Sermons are all excellent, and such a galaxy of talent in one volume is not common. The very names of the contributors carry worth and weight with them."

Probation and Punishment; or, The Future State of the Wicked and the Doctrine of a Second Probation. By S. M. Vernon, D.D. 12mo, cloth, 300 pp. $1.50.

Revelation by Character; Illustrated from Old Testament Lives. By Robert Tuck, B.A. 12mo, cloth, 308 pp. $1.50.

The leading idea in these studies is that every man has his own marked individuality, and his precise mission to his generation in that individuality.

The Treasury says: "He is fair and reasonable."

The Congregationalist: "He writes clearly and exhibits the candid temper of the true scholar, but does not lack positiveness of conviction."

Zion's Herald: "It is a handy little compendium for the clergyman to have when he wishes to preach a series of sermons on characters of the Bible; it will prove of considerable value."

Golden Rule: "These strong, concise, and easily-remembered sentences could well be made the pivot on which a whole discourse should turn. The book is one of the best studies of character that we know of. It is in every way a superior piece of work."

The Methodist Times (London): "The plan of this work is novel and interesting. Preachers may get many seed-thoughts from it, and they may also learn from the work that an occasional sermon on a Bible character is welcome to every kind of a congregation."

Review of Reviews: "If we could apprehend the character of the men of the Old Testament, we should find that they carried to us revelations in what they were. In the spirit of this quotation from his preface, Mr. Robert Tuck presents a series of twenty-four studies, simple and wholesome, of the Bible heroes in whose personality some distinct and great moral principles were emphasized. He selects 'Righteous Abel,' 'Spiritual Abraham,' 'Bargaining Jacob,' 'Energetic Caleb,' 'Wily Joab,' etc. The lessons thus deduced he applies to ordinary every-day life."

Romance of Providence, A; Being a History of the Church of the Strangers, of New York, of which Charles F. Deems, D.D., LL.D., was pastor. Edited by Joseph S. Taylor. 12mo, cloth. Illustrated. 256 pp. $1.25 net.

The Methodist Protestant says: "The book is suggestive to pastors everywhere for its excellent Church methods, a detail of which is given. Such monographs of Churches generally have a purely local interest, but this is general and well repays the reading."

Science and Faith. By Prof. A. J. Du Bois. Paper. 20 cts., net.

Social Law of God. Sermons on the Ten Commandments, by the Rev. E. A. Washburn, D.D., late Rector of Calvary Church, New York. 12mo. cloth, 212 pp. $1.00.

The Treasury says: "There are few expositions of the Decalogue surpassing it in comprehensive clearness of diction and force of practical tendency."

New York Observer: "It is a production of the mind, rich in the treasures of critical learning, and a wide-reaching subject to the teaching of truth."

Union Signal: "It is a forcible work, its strength laying not so much in persuasive eloquence as in clear, calm logic. Its sermons will be a real aid to the student of Bible truth."

Survival, The; or, Heathen Superstitions in Christendom. By Daniel S. Martin, Ph.D. Paper. 20 cts., net.

Success of the Gospel and the Failure of the New Theologies. By Bishop John F. Hurst, D.D., LL.D. Paper. 10 cts., net.

Christian Advocate (New York) says: "The great literary charm of all Bishop Hurst's work is clearly manifest, while in intellectual strength and evangelical fervor it reaches the highest point. The large historical learning of the Bishop is drawn upon for illustration, while his allusions to general literature throw their light upon the subjects which suggest his sentences. As a vigorous and masterly comparison of the relative power of the old and new theologies, we know of nothing as fresh and as strong, and those who read will find faith strengthened and devotion stirred."

Spirit of the Age, The. By David James Burrell, D.D., Pastor of the Marble Collegiate Church, New York. 12mo, cloth, 381 pp. $1.50.

The sermons in this volume are reported as delivered. They cover a wide range of subjects and will be found helpful, instructive, and stimulating.

The Congregationalist says: "They are striking in form and impressive in discourse."

The Independent: "There is a great deal of heart, pith, and point in these sermons."

Central Presbyterian: "They are short, sound, and perspicuous, always preaching Christ and Him crucified."

The Epworth Herald: He gives men something to think about in every sermon, and puts it in a clear way. Good, healthful reading."

New York Christian Advocate: "He has a happy faculty of getting at the central truth of a passage, and then stating it tersely and pointedly. He uses vigorous, forceful Anglo-Saxon. He gives men something to think about in every sermon, and puts it in a clear way."

New York Observer: "Dr. Burrell, as a pulpit orator, is a burning and shining light. His hearers get inspiration and illumination from his utterances. We like the terse and pungent English, the flashes of illustration, the clear cut sentences, the direct dive for the heart of the text, which always seems to yield its sweetest and most nutritious meat for this earnest student of the Word."

Sanctified Spice; or, Pungent Seasonings from the Pulpit. By Madison C. Peters, Pastor of Bloomingdale Reformed Church, New York City. 12mo, cloth, 216 pp. $1.00.

The Lutheran Observer says: "They are bright, sprightly, and sharp thrusts at the follies and wickedness of the day, and sparkle with wit and humor, as well as sarcasm and rebuke. They are spicy reading, and will serve as a mental and moral stimulus and quickener to anyone, especially ministers."

Zion's Herald: "These selections are indeed spicy, and if the clergyman who publishes them reads or delivers them with a proper oratorical fervor, they must arouse fear, faith, antagonism, and agreement. He speaks clearly; he speaks plainly. He is very orthodox in the essentials of orthodoxy; believes in hell and says so, and does not believe in Spiritualism and says so. We recommend these breezy, inspiriting, and strong paragraphs to all. Their style is popular, but there is a good deal of sense packed in the paragraphs."

Silver Wings. Addresses to Children. By Rev. Andrew G. Fleming. 12mo, parti-cloth, 191 pp. 60 cts.

A volume of value for its suggestive addresses. See "Golden Nails Series."

The Evangelist (New York) says: "A careful perusal of these lectures leaves the impression that it is not science, but the crude speculations and unwarranted interferences of scientists and their ill-instructed followers that conflicts with religion. True science supports and confirms religious truth."

Study in Pedagogy, A. By John H. Vincent, D.D., LL.D. 12mo, cloth, 73 pp. 60 cts.

Sunday-school as an Institution, What Shall We Do With the. By George Lansing Taylor, D.D. Fourth edition. Square 16mo, paper. 20 cts., net.

The Central Methodist says: "This is the clearest and most vigorous presentation of the whole Sunday School question in a nutshell we have seen. It is a work that ought to be in the hands of all preachers, since its practical treatment of the difficulties of our present system, and the proper remedy to be applied, make it valuable to them."

Synoptical Lectures on the Books of Holy Scriptures. By Donald Frazer, D.D. New Edition. Large 12mo, cloth, 2 volumes, 308 pp., 312 pp. $4.00.

From the Author's Preface: "Archdeacon Farrar has been so good as to say that, till he fell in with 'Synoptical Lectures,' he 'did not know of any volume of sermons, either in Patristic, Scholastic, Reformation, or post-Reformation theology which contains a series of discourses dealing seriatim with the Messages of the Books.' The idea originally occurred to us from observing how much the popular conceptions in religion rest on fragmentary sentences, used as texts, and how little has been done to show, either to the clergy or the laity, the comprehensive sweep of revelation. Commentaries, to serve their purpose well, must be minute, and reach a bulk which deters the ordinary reader. So this book was attempted, to suit not professional students merely, but all educated Christians, and convey to them something like a compendious knowledge of Holy Writ. The plan, as expressed in a former edition, is 'to survey each Book of Scripture, so as to apprehend generally its scope and contents: as one may view a city from the top of a tower in order to gain an idea of its arrangement and its salient features, that he may thereafter more intelligently traverse it and explore it in detail.' For help in such detailed study one must repair to the commentator and preacher."

The Treasury says: "The Author has done a noble work, not only for professional students and educated Christians, but for all who desire to gain a clear knowledge of the Book that makes wise unto salvation."

Supernatural Morality. Some considerations of Herbert Spencer's "Data of Ethics." By W. H. Platt, D.D., LL.D. Paper, 40 cts.

The Christian Standard: "A real aid. It suggests subjects and their treatment. One can use such a book without incurring the suspicion of plagiarism."

Methodist Protestant: "The Sermons and Outlines of Sermons are by prominent preachers of the day, and have been selected by the editor with discriminating care."

Methodist Recorder: "Every minister who is called to preach a Thanksgiving sermon, and wants to see how others do it, will find this book exceedingly useful."

Central Christian Advocate: "This volume of discourses covers the entire scope of the services peculiar to Thanksgiving Day. It furthermore suggests many texts and topics appropriate for use in connection with that autumnal festival. Those who have in mind the preparation of sermons or addresses for that occasion, will find the volume ripe with suggestions and fruitful with hints and helps, such as may start the student upon a track of his own."

Tool Basket, The; for Preachers and Teachers. Oblong, flexible cloth, 100 pp. 50 cts.

A collection of 300 Sermon Outlines, Pegs of Thought, Sunday School Addresses, etc., etc. These notes and outlines have been gathered from various sources and grouped together in a convenient form for the express purpose of helping to fix upon some suitable subject; thus affording assistance in time of need and emergency.

The Rev. Mark Guy Pearse says: "Admirable; the sought of thing that is invaluable to busy workers."

The Methodist Recorder: "An admirably conceived manual. We think that preachers will find many a helpful implement and illustration for their sermon preparation. The "outlines" are indeed outlines, or rather hints only, and they will prove a help in gathering ideas and suggestions for the division of subjects and so establish a framework which their own resources must fill in and complete."

Undesigned Coincidences in the Writings of Both the Old and New Testament. An Argument for Their Veracity. By Rev. John J. Blunt, with an introduction by Joseph Sanderson, D.D., LL.D. 12mo, cloth, 361 pp. $1.50.

Voices of the Soul Answered in God. By Rev. John Reid. Fourth edition. 12mo, cloth, 374 pp. $1.25.

The New York Observer says: "That the soul of man can find its hopes realized, its wants satisfied, its fears quieted, and its measures filled in God, and in God alone, is the leading thought of this calm and powerful book. The presentation is most serious, original, and suggestive."

Prof. William G. T. Shedd, D.D.: "It is a work of originality and power. I have rarely perused a treatise which has issued so evidently as this has from prolonged searching, reflection, and strong, earnest conviction. The author has discussed the serious themes of evangelical religion in a manner that invests them with fresh interest for the believer and also for the unbeliever, for his method is psychological. The appeal to consciousness is direct, continual, and penetrating; so that both the natural and spiritual man will be interested, each in his own way."

What Shall I Tell the Children? Object Sermons and Teachings. By the Rev. George V. Reichel, A.M., 12mo, cloth, 303 pp. $1.50.

The Presbyterian Journal: "The illustrations are new and commend themselves."

Zion's Herald: "The volume abounds in facts and suggestions. The language is simple and clear."

The Herald and Presbyter: "A volume suggestive in preparing talks and sermons to the young and will be welcomed by many."

The Epworth Herald: "A title is suggested at the beginning of each chapter. The 'object used' is given after such title, then the 'Scripture basis,' which is a more flexible designation than text, follows. The author then gives, in simple language, suggestive and helpful, a description of the object. The chapter headings are varied and cover many subjects. The pastor will here find suggestions for his 'five-minute sermon' previous to the regular service, or his talk to the Junior Epworth League or Christian Endeavor meetings."

Woman's Work in the Modern Church. By Jane M. Bancroft, Ph.D. Paper. 15 cts., net.

Weights and Wings. By Charles F. Deems, D.D., LL.D. Large 8vo, 348 pp. Illustrated. Cloth. $2.00.

Southern Christian Advocate says: "A very handsome volume, whose contents are well worthy of the faultless dress in which the publisher has sent them forth. No professing Christian who reads it thoughtfully can remain in doubt as to whether his Church membership is a help or a hindrance to his pastor—'a weight or wing'—as he prosecutes his laborious and painfully responsible mission. The whole tendency of the book is to improve the relations of communicants to their pastors."

LAIRD & LEE'S

ANNUAL CATALOGUE

FALL 1897

"EXCELLENCE AND FAIR DEALING"

263-265 WABASH AVE. CHICAGO

WM. H. LEE. PROPRIETOR

Our First Jubilee

1887 ...Ten Years of Steady... 1897 Growth

In presenting our ANNUAL FALL CATALOGUE to the Trade and Public in general, we cannot restrain a deep feeling of mixed pleasure and pride; for this year ends the first decade of the existence of our publishing house. For ten years we have worked aggressively and persistently, with a view of placing our establishment in the front rank of American publishers. Our business now extends to most foreign countries, and the long list of regular customers inscribed on our ledger is the undeniable proof that success has crowned our efforts. We have endeavored, to the best of our abilities, to give the Trade the HIGHEST CLASS OF BOOKS in our line, and to treat one and all with equal fairness and consideration. Although the present business depression is undoubtedly the most severe ever known in this country, we take pleasure in announcing that at no time during our career has our business been in a more satisfactory condition, and in celebrating the first Jubilee of the organization of this firm, we pledge ourselves to renewed efforts, worthy our past record, and extend hearty thanks to the many friends, in the Trade and at large, who have contributed so liberally to our success.

Opie Read's Select Works

PURE AND DELIGHTFUL FICTION — 6 — SIX GENUINE AMERICAN CLASSICS

"His narratives read more like pages from real life than romance."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

MR. READ stands among the first of the American Novelists of to-day. His work is the soul of humor and of sentiment. His situations are dramatic and his character sketches positively unique. Since "THE JUCKLINS," Mr. Read has given the world "MY YOUNG MASTER," of which The Boston Budget says: "It has that hold upon the heart and mind that leaves one the better for his reading."

THE JUCKLINS AS A PLAY

"The Jucklins is a hit. Even at present (first time in Chicago) it is in many ways superior to 'Pudd'nhead Wilson,'" etc.—Chicago Tribune.

"The audience gave itself up to riotous laughter and tears."—Chicago Record.

"An emphatic verdict of approval. Jucklin has no prototype in contemporaneous literature."—Chicago Times-Herald.

"Stuart Robson is simply delicious as Lem Jucklin. Rosy-faced, sanguine of spirit, tender as a child and as innocent. . . . . "—Chicago Chronicle.

Of Madame Ronner's Cats The Illustrated London News says: "The artists who have succeeded in rendering the cat may be counted on the fingers of one hand—the Japanese Hokusai, the Swiss Mind, the English Burbank, the French Lambert, and the Dutch Mme. Ronner; and the greatest of these, the one who has succeeded absolutely and all around, is the last, the lady."

JUPITER JINGLES;

Or A TRIP TO MYSTERY-LAND

By ANNETTA S. CRAFTS

THE HEAVENLY TWINS.

A-pol-lo ruled the sun, they say,
Di-a-na ruled the moon,
So she was Queen at night, you see,
And he was King at noon.

A pretty pair of twins were they,
Both beautiful and bright,
But how could they help being both
When having so much light.

Di-a-na had a hunting dress,
Di-a-na had a dart;
Di-a-na went a-hunting
In a solid silver cart.

She drove four stags before her,
Four stags with horns of gold;
And so she was a Queen by night,
By day, a huntress bold.

THE OLD GODS AND GODDESSES OF GREECE AND ROME were never pictured so amusingly as in these Merry Verses, made to be caught up by wide-awake little ears. Without a knowledge of Mythology much in Art and Literature remains a closed letter; and to teach it in play, at an age when memory is so quick, is to render an invaluable service to the men and women who are to grow out of the "tots" we love so dearly.

Allen, Charles Dexter.

EX LIBRIS: ESSAYS OF A COLLECTOR.

With twenty-one copper-plate prints direct from the coppers, on Japanese vellum. Printed on heavy deckle-edged paper, and bound in green and white cloth. Reading-matter, 157 pp. Ordinary edition, $3.00. Special edition, $15.00.

A new volume on the subject of book-plate collecting by the author of "American Book-Plates," vice-president of the Ex Libris Society of London, member of the Grolier Club, New York, the American Historical Association, the Connecticut Historical Society, etc. It deals in a leisurely and delightful way with the interesting book-plates of all countries, and not being intended for a reference work is free from technicalities and those lists of plates and engravers which only the collector appreciates.

The book is issued with all those refinements of book-making which endear choice volumes to the book-lover. Special permission has been granted Mr. Allen to use in this book some plates by famous engravers and plates owned by gentlemen well known in the book world, who do not allow their book-plates to get into the hands of the collectors.

There are examples of the work of Thomas Bewick, Charles W. Sherborn, Edwin Davis French, W. F. Hopson, Edmund H. Garrett, Sidney L. Smith, J. Winfred Spenceley, J. Gill, and others. These are printed in the highest style of the art and in themselves make a noteworthy collection of book-plates.

It is issued in an ordinary edition of seven hundred and fifty numbered copies, and a special edition of but fifty copies signed and numbered by the author and publisher, containing three additional plates. This latter edition was sold before day of publication.

Bagby, Albert Morris.

MISS TRÄUMEREI. A WEIMAR IDYL.

Third edition. Cloth. pp. 292. With photogravure portrait of author. $1.50.

The scene of Mr. Bagby's story is Weimar. His heroine is an educated New York girl who goes to study music with Liszt, meeting with many admirers, and finding her best development in that famed circle The Lisztianer, which surrounded the great teacher. The love story is wholesome, and to the music student and the music lover there will be added interest in gaining pictures of Scharwenka, Friedheim, Rosenthal, Arma Senkra, Aus der Ohe, and the rest of the famous "inner circle." Those who read the notable Liszt articles by Mr. Bagby in the Century Magazine will particularly enjoy this Weimar idyl.

"Thoroughly interesting, and worthy of a place in literature." — N. Y. Mail and Express.

"What interests me most in the book is the sketches of the great musician, and the picture of the art life that surrounds him." — Jeanette E. Gilder.

"The tale of love is as fresh and fragrant as the roses of Weimar. The glimpses of Liszt will be of permanent value." —Washington Post.

"Mr. Bagby's literary concerto is infinitely charming in all its variations." — Boston Herald.

"It is so descriptive and the language is so refined and poetic, that it exercises a charm over one as though living in the dreamy, musical atmosphere of beautiful drowsy Weimar, which it so picturesquely describes. I cannot speak too highly of this beautifully written and romantic tale." —The Week, Toronto.

"The story itself is capital; well conceived and interesting. . . . It gives what is evidently a correct impression of a life that has forever vanished from the earth." — Nathan Haskell Dole, in The Boston Commonwealth.

"'Miss Träumerei' is the musical novel of the year." — The Minstrel, London.

Blodgett, Mabel Fuller.

FAIRY TALES.

With a title-page, cover, and twelve illustrations designed by Ethel Reed. Printed on heavy, deckle-edge paper, and bound in cloth. $1.50.

Mrs. Blodgett, the author of "In Poppy Land," has here gathered twelve delightful stories for children, which narrate the experiences of many fascinating characters. Wands are wafted, people and things change, fairy godmothers appear, ogres are killed. All these happen in the traditional fairy-story way, but they are told of in such a thoroughly up-to-date style as to seem new. The imaginative illustrations by Miss Reed add greatly to the enjoyment of the text.

"It is a very pampered and pernickety young person that will not be delighted with the fairy tales of Mabel Fuller Blodgett. Time and space fail to unfold the delightful nonsensical wisdom of the leading actors in these tales, and one can only wish that all good children may sometime meet Prince Peppermint, his Queen Sarsaparilla, and all the witches and ogres that glide so gaily through this book." — The Critic.

"It is gratifying to find that fairy lore, so easy to overlay with heavy disquisition, is receiving sympathetic treatment from some American hands." — New York Tribune.

"These little stories of adventures with fairies, magicians, witches, and wicked usurpers of power are all charmingly told, with that picturesque quality which peculiarly appeals to the childish imagination highly in the ascendant." — Boston Herald.

"The volume is a work of art in every respect." — The New York Press.

From "Fairy Tales." Illustration by Ethel Reed.

AT THE QUEEN'S MERCY: A TALE OF ADVENTURE.

Bound in cloth. pp. 261. $1.50.

Bolton, Charles Knowles.

THE LOVE STORY OF URSULA WOLCOTT.

A tale in verse of the time of the "Great Revival" in New England. Illustrated by Ethel Reed. pp. 31. $1.00.

A new volume of historical and narrative verse concerning the courtship of Ursula Wolcott, daughter of a governor, wife of a governor, mother of a governor, sister of a governor, and aunt of a governor, — all of Connecticut. Its author is Mr. Charles Knowles Bolton, librarian of the town of Brookline, Massachusetts. It is printed in a dark brown ink, in an old style antique type, on heavy, hand-made paper of natural tint, with deckled edges and uncut leaves. The book is appropriately illustrated by Miss Ethel Reed, who has drawn also the title-page and cover designs.

A special limited edition of fifty copies of this book on large, hand-made paper, with wide margins, deckled edges, and uncut leaves, will be issued shortly. Orders will be received at two dollars until one-half of the edition is exhausted, when the price will be advanced without further notice.

"Much of the attraction of Mr. Bolton's little volume lies in the admirable illustrations and letter-heads by Miss Ethel Reed. These designs are in the 'poster' style, and in their cleverly massed effects and bold outline have considerable charm and originality." — The Literary World.

"There is genuine poetry in Bolton's book, and he has made a lovely idyl out of historical incidents." — Hartford Courant.

"This quaint story, with the quiet atmosphere of earlier days, has a modern leap-year termination that will commend it to the new woman of 1896." — The Spirit of '76, New York.

"The poem is written in blank verse, and reveals a pleasant familiarity with New England rural life, as well as real power in portraying scenery in words, and it is simply and effectively expressed." — Congregationalist.

Bouton, John Bell.

UNCLE SAM'S CHURCH; HIS CREED, BIBLE, AND HYMN BOOK.

16mo. Cloth. In buff and blue, or in white and blue. pp. 75. $ .50.

This book presents patriotism as a religion, yet, as the Boston Transcript says, "It is not a religious book, as its name would seem to indicate, but an appeal to the patriotic feeling of the country." The author declares that a national cult must be made to take the place of an impossible state religion; that the whole American people need a new baptism of patriotism; and he shows in this little book how cheaply, easily, and quickly this can be done by methods hitherto untried. The idea is a sound one, and the book timely.

"I don't know when I have seen so much sense in so few pages."— Edward Everett Hale.

"For its beautiful, clear, and vivid style and lofty sentiments, it must win attention; its wise propositions should be put in execution." — Rev. S. F. Smith, D.D. (Author of "America").

"It is good all the way through; the suggestions are most wise and timely." — Rev. George Hodges, D.D. (Dean Episcopal Divinity School, Cambridge).

"Here are seventy-two pages packed with the best practical suggestions about the proper way of educating our people (especially our new and young ones) in genuine patriotism." —The Critic.

"A timely work that should be placed in the hands of every American citizen." — New Haven Journal.

"It is brimming with feasible plans for our country's betterment, . . . a book to be read, studied, and followed." —Chautauquan.

Carman, Bliss.

BALLADS OF LOST HAVEN: A BOOK OF THE SEA.

Including such famous poems as: "A Son of the Sea," "Legends of Lost Haven," "The Marring of Malyn," "The Yule Guest," and others. Net, $1.00.

BEHIND THE ARRAS: A BOOK OF THE UNSEEN.

With designs by T. B. Meteyard. Printed on heavy antique paper, deckle-edged, and bound in light green boards, with a cover design in dark green. pp. 102. Net, $1.50.

This book, gathering a score of Mr. Carman's latest verses, makes a rich volume. The subtitle, "A Book of the Unseen," explains the subject of these poems, which, for the most part in a minor key, are full of thought, of suggestion, and of connection between soul and spirit. The sympathetic designs by Mr. Meteyard admirably catch the subtle suggestions of the text and add greatly to its expression.

"If poetry is to be judged by quality, Mr. Carman is a singer of the rarest sort." — Hartford Courant.

"As a maker of ballads, imaginative and full of haunting melody, Mr. Carman is easily the master among his contemporaries." — The Critic.

"The collection is of exceptional merit, and besides its poetic quality has two excellent characteristics: it awakens interest and compels thought." — Halifax Herald.

"With an outdoor atmosphere of rigor and vitality, the color, the sound, and the motion of nature, comes Mr. Carman's new volume of verse. The predominant note of his work in the present instance is an exultant recognition of the unity of things, a cheerful acquiescence in the higher pantheistic faith." — Toronto Globe.

LOW TIDE ON GRAND PRÉ.

A book of Lyrics. By Bliss Carman. With a title-page designed by Martin Mower. Deckle-edged, gilt top. Bound in cloth. pp. 132. Net, $1.00. Also fifty copies on old English hand-made paper, each copy signed by the author. Square 8vo. Net, $3.50.

A new edition of Mr. Carman's first published book of poetry, with three poems not contained in the first edition.

Clarke, Ednah Proctor.

AN OPAL AND OTHER VERSES.

Price $1.00, net.

Including the following poems: "An Opal," "The Dancer," "Sunset on the Bras d'Or," "'Where the Bee Sucks,'" "A Good-bye," "The Humming-Bird," "Sappho," "Maid Marian's Song," "Noon," "Circe," "At the Breath of a Flower," "The Mocking-Bird."

Some of these virile lines have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly, The Century, and in Harper's Bazaar. The most of them, however, have never before appeared in print. They possess a distinctive charm which one finds only in verses written by those of more than ordinary talent. They are varied in theme and in treatment, and will be appreciated by all who enjoy spirited and refreshing sentiment.

"A girl Landor now, it is possible for her to be, in the infinite enlargement of the mind of the modern woman, the author of an Homeric twentieth-century epic. I defy the coldest critic to lay down 'An Opal' without an accelerated heart-beat and a thrilling brain." —Time and the Hour.

"There is a swift response in Miss Clarke's nature to that sensuous charm which is most conspicuously identified with the genius of Keats. . . . Altogether she is a new voice in the younger choir of the time to which it is pleasant to hearken, in which it is cheering to recognize an uplifted, uplifting tone." — New York Tribune.

Crane, Walter.

SHAKESPEARE'S COMEDY OF THE MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR,

Presented in eight pen designs by Walter Crane. Each design mounted on heavy cardboard, title-page and cover designed by Walter Crane, the reproduction of these eight subjects limited to six hundred copies for sale in England, America, and elsewhere, each copy signed and numbered. Issued in connection with George Allen of London, England. Cloth, net, $6.50.

These eight designs of Mr. Crane's illustrating the robust comedy of the Merry Wives have been reproduced by the new Dallastype process, which preserves in a particularly faithful manner the lines and shading of an original pen drawing. This edition is strictly limited, the plates having been destroyed after its printing.

Echegaray, José.

THE GREAT GALEOTO, and FOLLY OR SAINTLINESS.

Two plays done from the Spanish verse into English prose by Hannah Lynch. Brought out in connection with John Lane, of London. Heavy paper, uncut edges, bound in light pink buckram. pp. 196. Net, $1.50.

These two plays, a critical but appreciative introduction to which has been written by the translator, Miss Hannah Lynch, are selected from the work of José Echegaray, the Ibsen of Spain, a noted mathematician, an able statesman, and a playwright with a record of fifty plays conceived and given to the public after a time in life when most men begin to take matters easily. The prevailing note of these plays is their undiluted dramatic quality. In them we see the imaginative, gloomy, strutting Don; we see Spain as the Spaniards feel it. Spaniards declare that not for two hundred years — not since Lope de Vega — has their drama produced a serious rival to this man.

"American readers are to be congratulated upon having his [Echegaray's] works translated." — Boston Journal.

"There is a fine idea in 'The Great Galeoto' finely worked out. Has the quality of a really classic work — severe simplicity." — London Daily Chronicle.

"'The Great Galeoto' is a thoughtful and interesting play. The story is detailed with equal art and feeling. It is an intensely sad, but a noble and a moving piece of dramatic work." — St. James Gazette.

"The reader will lay down the book with a literally rose-colored view of Spanish literature." — Literary World.

Emerson, Ralph Waldo.

TWO UNPUBLISHED ESSAYS.

With an introduction by Edward Everett Hale. Title-page designed by Theodore B. Hapgood, Jr. pp. 81. Printed on deckle-edged paper, and bound in cloth, gilt top. $1.00.

These two essays, hitherto unpublished, on the character of Socrates and the present (1821) state of ethical philosophy, were written by Emerson while a student at Harvard College, in the competition for the Bowdoin prizes. Dr. Hale in his introduction writes: "I cannot but think that, if we had not his name, if this manuscript had struggled through anonymously and were printed to-day, we should have sense enough, wit enough, and insight enough to recognize the author."

"Will prove particularly valuable to a student of Emerson's writings, because they throw a very distinct light upon the early stages of his intellectual development." — Boston Beacon.

"Emerson's reputation will not at all suffer by their comparison with his later work." — Boston Herald.

"Both essays are thoroughly characteristic of the later Emerson, and both show indications of those qualities of style with which the country has become so familiar. For lovers of the Concord philosopher and poet this little volume will have great value." — The Outlook.

"These essays cannot fail to be read with keen interest and pleasure by every lover of Emerson, and surely every man is his lover who sympathizes with dignity, height, and breadth of thought, and beauty of expression." — Brooklyn Citizen.

"They are intensely interesting in their exhibition of the mind of the young man at this important formative period of his development." — Boston Transcript.

Gray, Norman D.

'96 CHARADES.

In verse. Printed on deckle-edged paper, with a cover design by George H. Hallowell. $1.00.

As Mr. Gray says in his preface, "Charades are not for the moment to be read and cast aside, but furnish amusement for hours together around the open fire of winter or at the summer picnic."

"We commend Norman D. Gray's charades. They lack neither wit nor elegance, and they give pleasure to the reader." — The New York Sun.

"The charades are bright, varied, and original." — Boston Journal.

"The charades, besides being clever, have the merit of real verse." — New York Press.

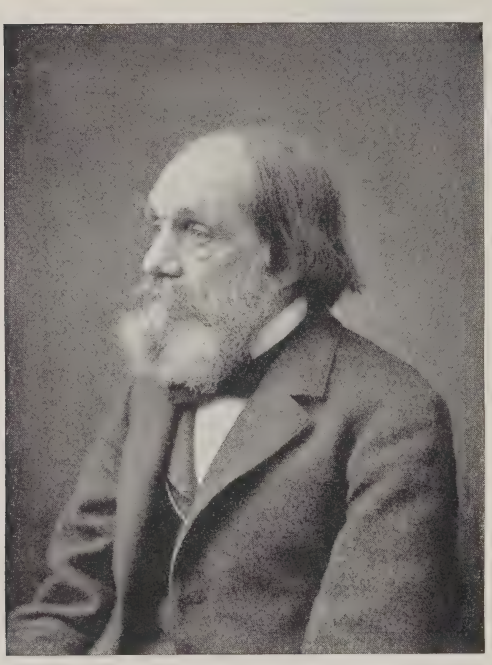
"The reading of the riddles herein propounded in graceful verse will tax the utmost ingenuity of the reader, but their reading once attempted will not be given up until accomplished. . . . Some of the charades are veritable little lyrics. . . . The most general culture, the widest information is required by him who would solve all these charades." — Philadelphia Evening Telegram.

"The puzzles are very ingenious. . . . This volume is sure to be widely known." — Boston Globe.

"They are exceptionally clever in conception and felicitous in treatment." — Philadelphia Press.

Guiney, Louise Imogen.

JAMES CLARENCE MANGAN.



His selected poems, with a study by the editor. With a portrait of the poet, and a title-page designed by T. B. Hapgood, Jr. (John Lane, London.) Net, $1.50.

The following original poems are included: "Twenty Golden Years Ago," "The Time of the Barmecides," "The Howling Song of Al Mohara," "The Irish National Hymn," "A Vision of Connaught in the Thirteenth Century," "The Nameless One," "The Wail and Warning of the Three Khalendeers." And among the translations are: "Lament for the Princes of Tyrone and Tyrconnell," "The Fair Hills of Eire, O," "My Dark Rosaleen," "The Maid of Orleans," "The Erl-King's Daughter," "The Ride around the Parapet," "And then no More," and "A Lamentation for the Death of Sir Maurice Fitzgerald."

Hale, Edward Everett.

IF JESUS CAME TO BOSTON.

Printed on heavy paper, with wide margins, and bound in dark red cloth. Gilt top. pp. 45. $ .50.

This book is virtually a protest against the spirit of the book, "If Christ came to Chicago," written by Mr. W. T. Stead. It points out the good, not the bad, of city life; or, as one reader has expressed it, "it shows how much Christ there is in the every-day life of a great city." It is written in the charmingly simple English style of which Dr. Hale has been for so long a time a distinguished master.

"This is a good antidote for Mr. Stead's book." — Magazine of Poetry and Literary Review.

"One of Dr. Hale's vivid and realistic sketches that seem, as one reads, to be a narrative of genuine experiences." — New Haven Journal and Courier.

"The book sympathetically describes the beautiful symmetrical machinery for the relief of the friendless and needy, as well as some movements that may as yet be imperfect in certain details, but which, having the spirit of the Master to guide them, will eventually become worthy of Him." — The Delineator.

"A representation, in terse but telling form, of some of the good things which Christian people of various names are doing for their fellow-men in the name of the Master. Dr. Hale knows how to put the bright and promising features of the case effectively and encouragingly without overstating them in the least." — The Congregationalist.

MY DOUBLE, AND HOW HE UNDID ME.

Republished with a new preface and portrait of the author. Bound in gray paper boards with ribbed leather back. $.75.

This unique, entertaining, and well-known tale, which was originally published in the Atlantic Monthly thirty-four years ago, has become almost as well established among American short-story classics as "The Man without a Country" itself. To this is added a delightful preface in which Dr. Hale chats pleasantly of the changes in literary fashion which have taken place since 1862, when this story was first printed.

"Dr. E. E. Hale has written a great many good things, but in our opinion nothing better than the inimitable 'My Double, and How he undid me.'" — Boston Advertiser.

"It is thirty-four years since that delightful bit of pleasantry made its appearance, and it certainly has stood the test of time." — Chicago Post.

"Everybody who has reached years of discretion and who reads at all has probably read, at least once, Dr. Hale's story of 'My Double, and How he undid me'; but those who have read it even many times may be pardoned for repeating the experience, if he or she can get hold of a copy of the exquisite limited edition recently issued." — Boston Beacon.

"When this appeared in the Atlantic Monthly thirty years ago, it was one of the best stories. It is still." — Book News.

"Its popularity seems to have increased rather than diminished, as the years have rolled on." — Boston Gazette.

"One of the best things Dr. Hale ever did." — Hartford Courant.

"The genial humor of the narrative and the practical pith which it contains deserve being helped on to immortality." — The Congregationalist.

"It is not likely that Stevenson got the idea for his 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde' from Dr. Hale's book, but the more startling plot of the Scotchman might easily have been deduced from this droll satire." — Chicago Tribune.

"The choicest bit of humor we have enjoyed for many a day." — Cleveland Medical Gazette.

COLONEL INGHAM'S VISIT TO SYBARIS.

Harrison, Mrs. Burton. (See latest publications, p. 41.)

A VIRGINIA COUSIN, and BAR HARBOR TALES.

Printed on deckle-edged paper and bound in cloth. Gilt top. pp. 202. Title-page design by Theodore B. Hapgood, Jr. $1.25.

In "A Virginia Cousin," the author has combined some felicitously true pictures of New York society life with other and tenderer pictures of her native South in such a complete manner and yet so directly, that the book is distinctly captivating. In the other stories of this book the scene is changed to Bar Harbor, a subject which in itself is surrounded by an atmosphere of romance and pleasant memories. In these stories — "Out of Season" and "On Frenchman's Bay" — Mrs. Harrison has dealt with different kinds of characters from those in the opening story.

"Those who delight in Mrs. Burton Harrison's charming ease and felicity as a novelist will find her even more to their taste as a short story writer." — Boston Herald.

"Her stories have an air of authority which is always acceptable to lovers of realistic fiction." — New York Tribune.

"We urge the reader to take the pretty little volume in his or her own hand and personally enjoy the pleasure and even the delight of 'A Virginia Cousin,' rather than ask for a sketch of it in anatomical form. There is a constant point and glitter in her sentences which successfully rivals the spirited flow of her narrative and the animation of her conversations." — Boston Courier.

THE MERRY MAID OF ARCADY, HIS LORDSHIP, AND OTHER STORIES.

Printed on deckle-edged paper and bound in cloth. Gilt top. pp. 348. $1.25.

This is a companion volume to the book described above, and includes the following: "The Merry Maid of Arcady," "At a Winter House-party," "Leaves from the Diary of Ruth Marchmont, Spinster," "Worrosquoyacke," "Thirteen at Table," "The Secret of San Juan," "'The Stranger within thy Gate,'" and "His Lordship."

Howe, Mrs. Julia Ward.

IS POLITE SOCIETY POLITE? AND OTHER ESSAYS.

Printed on deckle-edged paper and bound in brown paper boards, old style, with back title label. With a new portrait of the author taken especially for this book. pp. 202. $1.50.

In this volume have been collected a number of lectures written for different organizations and delivered in many parts of the country by Mrs. Howe. These include the following: "Is Polite Society Polite?" written for the New England Woman's Club of Boston; "Paris;" "Greece Revisited," first read before the Town and Country Club,

Newport, R.I.; "Aristophanes" and "Dante and Beatrice," both written for the Summer School of Philosophy at Concord, Mass.; "The Halfness of Nature," first read before the Boston Radical Club; and "The Salon in America," written for the Contemporary Club in Philadelphia.

A peculiar interest is given these essays from the fact that they are the product of the ripest experience and thought of a woman who is one of the last of that great generation of New England authors who have made American literature.

"These essays are on a variety of subjects, chiefly literary and social, and they reveal the sincerity as well as the frankness of the author and illustrate the high quality of her literary culture." — The Congregationalist.

"The collection of essays will add to the general appreciation of one of the most genial and gracious women in America." — Philadelphia Ledger.

"It is superfluous to say that all the essays are distinguished by culture, grace, and spirituality." — The Book Buyer.

"All the grace, as well as the philosophy, which characterizes Mrs. Howe's lectures is in these eight essays." — Boston Transcript.

"There is hardly a chapter in it that does not show the woman's heart beating with warm, high resolve, presenting a nobler standard of conduct, exhorting to sincerity and depth of character." —Christian Register.

"A coruscation of bright and living thoughts, timely and sensible reflections, and admirably instructive criticism." — Boston Courier.

"To the task of imparting a cheerful and helpful philosophy to her hearers and readers she has brought a cultivated and keen intelligence, aided by a sanity of human insight that leads her into none of the troubled waters of latter-day discussions of arts or manners. . . . Mrs. Howe's philosophy is good, sound common sense, neither illuminating nor evocative of the dark problems of life, but a good philosophy for the average man and woman who live a refined and cultivated existence." — Footlights.

"The book is replete with wholesome common-sense ideas, and merits careful perusal." — San Francisco Call.

"The book will be gratefully welcomed by all of Mrs. Howe's admirers, and by all those who have ever enjoyed the privilege of hearing her read a single essay in this collection, insomuch as it gives a permanent life to this product of her ripest experience and thought — characteristic, sympathetic, and brilliant expressions from a woman who is one of the last of that great generation of New England authors who have made American literature." — Boston Budget.

"Her careful comparisons, upon which wide learning and deep experience are brought to bear, making them almost conclusive in their estimates, are such as no other American woman is qualified to make." — Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

Johnson, E. Pauline.

THE WHITE WAMPUM: A BOOK OF INDIAN VERSE.

Bound in copper-colored cloth, with a title-page and cover design by E. H. New. Published in connection with John Lane, of London. pp. 88. Net, $1.50.

Miss Johnson's chief subjects in this volume of poems are drawn from the Canadian Northwest, the scene of a new-born literature. They readily lend themselves to color and picturesque movement, which qualities are very agreeably found in the verse of Miss Johnson, or "Tekahionwake," as she is called in the Mohawk tongue. Miss Johnson is an Indian princess of one of the proudest of the old tribes, and, although she has had the advantages of Canadian culture, she has always retained her hold on the life of the forest. These poems present a series of pictures of the life of the first Americans, executed with remarkable sympathy and precision.

"Miss Johnson is a poet of unusual ability, and infuses all she writes with a wonderful charm and individuality to which none who reads this book of Indian verse can be insensible." — The Chautauquan.

"They display delicacy of sentiment and felicity of expression in a remarkable degree." — The Dial.

"Always interesting, breathing the true spirit of poetry. She does not depend upon some word trickery for commendation. It is very certain that she feels every line she has written, and that through her poetry she has voiced feelings long pent up, but which find eloquent expression in her verse." — Atlanta Constitution.

Kovalevsky, Sonya.

VERA VORONTZOFF.

Translated by the Baroness Anna von Rydingsvärd. Cover, title-page, and end pieces designed by the Baron von Rydingsvärd. Printed on deckle-edged paper, and bound in cloth. Gilt top. pp. 197. Net, $1.25.

A novel by that eminently gifted woman, Sonya Kovalevsky, whose mathematical and scientific acquirements astonished the world, but whose life, as she confessed, had been a failure. This is a vividly Russian story, portraying life and love in that country of imprisonment and exile.

"Smoothly and romantically the story runs, covering the life and thoughts of Vera Vorontzoff as only one woman can analyze the inmost thoughts of another woman. There are gloomy pictures in the book, and shadows flit across the thread of the romantic tale and mingle with the brightness thereof. Not to read it is to miss much that is ennobling and much which illumines Russian life and Russian womanhood." — Boston Journal.

"The American edition is a very pretty piece of book-making." — The Nation.

"We may smile at the ill-balanced enthusiasm that impels the heroine of this tale to self-immolation in her chosen cause, but we cannot escape the impression that this is one of the most genuine books ever written, or refrain from paying tribute to the high qualities of mind and heart that it reveals." — The Dial.

"Such books as 'Vera Vorontzoff' treat of political crimes with sympathy for the criminals, but yet in a vastly different spirit from the false Russian romance of picturesque Nihilism which is so popular. There are true pictures of Russian daily life here, and in them lies the chief interest of the novel to Western readers." — New York Times.

"The admirable quality of the book-making cannot be too highly commended. There is something severely Russian and uncompromising in the red, blue, black, and silver of the cover. The design is of the hieroglyphic order that demands a key to fully appreciate." — Literary World.

Thoroughly illustrated by Henry Sandham, R.C.A., with head pieces drawn by Willard Emery and Arthur T. Clark, and end pieces by Miss Gwendoline Sandham. Bound in cloth. Gilt top. pp. 126. $1.50.

This is a stirring tale of adventure in Peru, among the mummy mines and mummy miners, written by one who knows intimately the scene of the narrative. It is not alone interesting for the story it tells, but also for the insight it gives to an almost unknown bit of life and country. The illustrations, most of which are full-page, add greatly to its interpretation.

"The spirit throughout is alert and gay, and the sympathy with delicately strung natures charming; even the literal translation of a foreign idiom (a very dangerous experiment) adds to the grace and naturalness of Mr. Lummis's tale." — New York Evening Post.

DR. VERMONT'S FANTASY, AND OTHER STORIES.

Printed on English deckle-edged paper; bound in brown cloth, with gilt top. pp. 334. Issued in connection with J. M. Dent & Co., London. Net, $1.50.

"Miss Lynch has proved in previous work that she has at command the most precious of gifts, — the gift of charm. These stories are all, more or less, interpenetrated by it. We feel, rather than see, this impalpable yet possessing influence as something that is in the air, — the spiritual elements of Prospero's island." — Daily Chronicle, London.

"Such presentations of the sweet and simple side of French provincial life as this, from an English point of view, are only too rare. All the studies composing the volume are exquisitely tinted in local color, and drawn with real French surety and fineness; for the author has evidently studied French literary models as well as French manners and types and customs." — The Bookman.

"Gracefully written, with stories, . . . which show a singularly sympathetic understanding of French character . . . they have a delicate distinction of style and a subtle charm of atmosphere that make them very pleasant reading." — Pall Mall Gazette.

THE TRUE MOTHER GOOSE: SONGS FOR THE NURSERY, OR MOTHER GOOSE'S MELODIES FOR CHILDREN.

The true text, without addition or abridgment. Illustrated and edited by Miss McManus. With 170 illustrations in black and white, and a historical preface describing the origin of these noted rhymes and the various editions of them. $2.00.

"We must not let this taking book pass out of notice without at least one more word of commendation for its lightness and openness and for the wondrous pictures which adorn its pages. That they are after their artist's own heart is perfectly clear; and there is not a trace of imitation of any other Mother Goose pictures we ever saw about them, and over them the childish eyes will bend with silent delight, and even the eyes of father and mother, to say nothing of grandfather and grandmother, brighten up with new pleasure as they revive the sensations of their own childhood and enter once more into the unspeakable joys of the age of five years." — Literary World.

"This handsome volume is, so far as the text goes, an exact reprint of a collection under the same title, published in Boston in 1824 by Munroe & Francis, but in type, illustration, and binding it is up to the end-of-the-century demand for artistic book-making. . . . The book is one which will be in strong demand." — Boston Transcript.

Nodier, Charles.

TRILBY, THE FAIRY OF ARGYLE.

Translated from the French by Minna Caroline Smith. Bound in Scotch plaid boards. pp. 111. $ .50.

Trilby of Argyle was the original Trilby. The book was written in 1822, by Charles Nodier, whom Victor Hugo called his master, and it belongs to the school of pure romance of the first quarter of the century. This vivaciously imaginative Scottish tale was written just after its author's return from Scotland, while he was still under the spell of Scottish folk-lore and fantasy.

A few copies of the first edition, bound in the Dress Stuart plaid, remain. These will be sold at $1.00 each.

"There is a power and originality about the book which is felt from the first, while the variety of style displayed in the stories is surprising." — Congregationalist.

"There is in Mr. Roberts's stories of life in the Canadian logging-camp a wonderful freshness of atmosphere: one seems to hear the rush of the flooding water; to see the dazzle of the blue, wind-swept, sun-thrilled sky; to smell the pungent pleasantness of fresh-sawn pine. . . . The book is among the worthiest collection of tales, alike from the standpoint of ethics and of literature, that has been given to the public in many a literary day." — Boston Transcript.

THE BOOK OF THE NATIVE.

Poems, lyrics, and ballads, representative of the Canadian poet. Printed on deckle-edged paper, and bound in green cloth. pp. 156. $1.00. Canada: The Copp, Clark Company, Limited, Toronto.

The lyrics and ballads included in this volume are selected from Mr. Roberts's poetic output of the past three years. They represent his strongest and most individual work. The division giving its title to the book contains the most concrete expressions yet found for the impassioned nature-worship which characterizes the best work of the Canadian group of poets. The other divisions of the book deal chiefly with human emotions and human action.

"A collection of songs like these by Mr. Roberts comes with something of the sweetness and refreshing quality of an oasis in the desert. . . . His measures are invariably well-turned, proclaiming the poet who is also a writer. But it is obvious that he is not thinking solely of his 'art,' that he is really giving himself up to the enchantment of his theme and letting it tell itself spontaneously through his lips. He goes back to 'the companionship of earth,' and the fruits of his intimacy with the source of all floral loveliness are none the less poetic because they have the very murmur and color of the actual earth in them." — New York Tribune.

"Charles G. D. Roberts has well earned the right to be called the Poet Laureate of Canada." — Independent.

"A book that the lover of genuine poetry may well delight in. . . . No contemporary poet has manifested a more felicitous use of the imagery of nature than has Mr. Roberts. Such poems as 'When the Cattle Come to Drink,' 'The Little Field of Peace,' 'July,' and 'An August Wood Road,' have the breath of out-doors in them, and are as enjoyable as fresh air and sunshine and flowers." — Boston Beacon.

poet. . . . It is therefore highly interesting to learn that Mr. Charles G. D. Roberts is bringing out a history of Canada. . . . His work is likely to possess just that unusual quality to which we have referred. It will be conscientious, and it will be written out of a sensitive poetic temperament." — New York Tribune.

"A prettily imagined and prettily told story. . . . It is an encouraging sign that the pure and noble woman is once again attracting the attention of authors. Mizpah is drawn with a most tender and loving hand, and she is the heroine of a story that is well worth the reading, — a story with an interesting plot, admirably told, in good style and in simple, direct, and forcible language." — Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

This book includes a few of the author's poems which have been published separately from time to time, several exotic French poems, and a number of translations from Horace and other classic poets.

"Mr. Scollard has carried the epic and the lyric hand in hand, and at every turn and phase of the successive idylls there are dainty touches of natural description which will sustain his fame as a master in word-painting. . . . Mr. Scollard never forgets, even in the stormiest bloody-angles of his epic, the sadly-sweet face of nature looking on in mute reproach at the carnival of human passion. . . . WIVES IN EXILE: A COMEDY IN ROMANCE.

Printed on deckle-edged paper. pp. 329. Net, $1.25.

"Upon an inconceivable basis a quantity of very genuine dialogue, incident, and description is wrought with a sensuous touch which is delicately alluring." — Time and the Hour.

"This is a delicious bit of nonsensical comedy with situations ludicrous enough to bring smiles to the face of the Sphinx. It is so absolutely absurd that it entertains those who are weary of realistic tales. . . . The book ought to prove a panacea for the blues." — Boston Journal.

"This is one of the most delightful comedies in romance of the season. . . . One is drawn into the fascination of the book with its very first chapter, and he enters as vigorously as the characters themselves into the spirit of daring, adventure, and fun, whose results make the two little women of the story real heroines, after all. The conception of 'Wives in Exile' is one that cannot fail to win an immediate and a staying interest." — Boston Courier.

"It is a delightfully romantic little comedy that William Sharp has put forth under the title 'Wives in Exile.' The wives are two adorable creatures, upon whose contrasted loveliness of person and temperament Mr. Sharp expends the enthusiasm of a discreet admirer; and their exile, which is quite voluntary, consists of a yachting trip among the Hebrides on a craft managed and officered wholly by women. This escapade is undertaken as a rebuke to the respective husbands of the yachtswomen, and when the husbands at length get wind of the affair and start in chase, the incidents throng upon one another with true dramatic effect. Mr. Sharp's humor is admirable. It is never strained, always light in touch and equal to the occasion, and his portrayal of the different members of the crew of the Belle Aurore, — more particularly of Mrs. Moriarty, that marvellous navigator and incomparable cook, and Miss Macfee, the dour Highlander, — is full of color and vivacity. It is long since the reading public has been treated to a bit of fiction so piquant in motive, so dainty in workmanship, and so thoroughly well sustained up to the dramatic and effective climax. Any one who can read 'Wives in Exile' without bubbling over with mirth, or getting new light on the vexed problem of the 'ewig weibliche,' must indeed be devoid of artistic appreciation and psychological insight. It is pure, clean fun, of a refined intellectual type, and it leaves no unpleasant aftertaste." — Boston Beacon.

"Not even Clark Russell could have woven a brief yachting experience into a more enjoyable romance. . . . Not even Stockton is a more legitimate creator of fun than Mr. Sharp. With him it is the nettle of brisk dialogue, differentiated types of character, unalloyed roguery, minus even a grain of vice, and the atmosphere of improbable reality, that enchants. After laying 'Wives in Exile' down, one glances out of the window with the feeling that it is a joy to live and above all to dare. Is Mr. Sharp a true prophet of the right way to enchain happiness?" — Boston Herald.

Printed on laid paper, with cut leaves, and bound in dark red basket cloth, with cover design of coat-of-arms of the heroine. pp. 327. Bound in cloth, $2.00; bound in vellum, $10.00.

"It is American in its subject, it is by an American, and it presses very close to the place reserved in the mind of the American public for 'the great American novel,' if, indeed, it does not actually fill it. Both author and publisher are to be congratulated upon this important contribution to contemporary fiction." — Hartford Post.

"The past week brought one of the best books of weeks, even of months. It is a book which will grow into favor, and cumulative with the admiration of each successive reader will become one of the stories best liked of many, most fondly turned to when others pall." — Washington Times.

"It is marked in conception and execution alike by a trait which, without reserve, we may name beauty. The quality of charm which pervades the romantic tales of the Old World is just what distinguishes 'King Noanett.' The real spirit of the book, the temper which gives it inevitable romantic charm, comes from no documents at all, but straight from nature. The beauty of this book in its conception is like the beauty of our woods and our Printed on deckle-edged Holland paper, with uncut leaves. Bound in Imperial vellum. Enclosed separately in pasteboard boxes, and sold singly or in sets. Each, $1.25.

Love lexicons and hand-books of endearing quotations are common and often tiresome. It is particularly interesting, therefore, to pick up such a novel book as either of these, which gives the opinions of the world's best writers on the subject of friendship, — a word which has been so haggled over and abused, so exaggerated in meaning and so undervalued, that one sometimes questions what friendship really is. These books in the dainty form in which they are issued make them particularly charming gift books.

MAGDA (HEIMATH).

Translated by Charles-Edward Amory Winslow. Printed on deckle-edged paper. Bound in crimson cloth, with title-page and cover design by Louis J. Rhead. The only English translation authorized by Herr Sudermann. pp. 161. $1.00.

This play, one of the masterpieces of late German literature, is the first number in the Sock and Buskin Library. "Magda" came into particular notice during the theatrical season of 1895–6 owing to the fact that three of the world's leading actresses, Bernhardt, Dusé, and Modjeska, included it in their repertoires.

"A play which has had the rare distinction of being represented in this city within a few months in four languages, and by those of the most eminent living actresses. Sudermann's 'Heimath' has just been admirably translated." — N. Y. Post.

"Mr. Winslow's translation is refined and appreciative, an excellent preliminary to the Italian performance. Mme. Modjeska would do well to replace the wretched translation she used by this one as more scholarly and elegant." — Philadelphia Ledger.

"The English text is free from all hint of the German idiom and reads with surprisingly good literary finish. It is one of the few modern plays that is well suited for acting and also most interesting to read." — Life.

"The anomalous situation forces the dramatic explosion. A thoroughly spirited piece of stage work is seldom so effectively read in a book as is this brilliantly translated little play." — Book Buyer.

THE HOUSE OF THE TREES, AND OTHER POEMS.

Decorative cone design title-page by Ethel Reed and Bruce Rogers. Printed on deckle-edged paper and bound in cloth. Gilt top. pp. 94. Net, $1.00.

Those who love the scenes and sounds of nature, and enjoy the sweet thoughts she bestows upon her sincere admirers, will take great pleasure in this volume of exquisite poems from the pen of Miss Wetherald, who is one of the leading writers of verse in Canada. Miss Wetherald is thoroughly in touch with nature, and from this feeling of nature-kinship writes musical rhymes that sing themselves into the mind of the reader. The book, with its delicate light green cover, light green title-page, and light green titles, expresses admirably the out-of-door breeziness of the poems.

"The inspiration and life of this breezy collection of short poems . . . might appropriately be traced to reading Thoreau's 'Walking,' or George MacDonald's 'Phantasies.' Yet neither poet nor poetess could conceive and bear from their sources such healthy progeny as these poems without an absorbing armor with nature's own self." — Philadelphia Press.

"There is so much sweetness in these short pieces, so much clear and beautiful expression, that they will win their way to a choice place in the minds and hearts of those who read them. Nearly every poem has something which detains the reader. The author has caught the spirit of the outer world and has tried to make it the record of her own thoughts and feelings." — Boston Herald.

DIOMED: THE LIFE, TRAVELS, AND OBSERVATIONS OF A DOG.

With 100 illustrations by J. Linton Chapman. $2.00.

The book purports to relate the life, observations, and travels of an English setter dog, written by himself, and embraces his whole career from birth to death, covering a period of twelve years.

The scenes depicted embrace puppyhood, education, rabbit hunting, quail, grouse, snipe, woodcock, prairie-chicken, and turkey shooting, with many other varieties of sport. The dog ranges the whole American continent, tells of the local peculiarities of people and climate, as well as game, in Virginia, Minnesota, North Carolina, Florida, Texas, and elsewhere, and describes the men, beasts, and things which made up his life-story in a manner which is absolutely original. He often rises above the mere narrative of sport, and sometimes dwells for a long time in the field of philosophical reflection.

The book embraces eighteen chapters, and is profusely and beautifully illustrated with original works by J. Linton Chapman, whose illustrations were made under the author's direction.

One chapter is devoted to describing how Tracy, the famous painter of field sports, went about painting his now celebrated picture of "November on the James," and it is illustrated by the original preliminary sketches for the background and foreground, and culminates with the perfected painting. Another chapter describes life upon the private hunting car of a millionaire sportsman. Another takes the reader far away upon the western frontier. Another to the Mexican border. Another to Florida, and yet others to old Virginia; describing the old places and old people of that land of which the public never grows weary of hearing. The ending is at historic Jamestown and Williamsburg, where everything else in America began.

Many of those who have read the manuscript of this book have likened it to "Black Beauty." In some respects the criticism is correct, for the author shows the intimate knowledge of dogs which was displayed concerning horses by the author of "Black Beauty." But this book brings in a much larger number of people and deals with the human race much more freely than "Black Beauty."

LOWELL LECTURES: PICTURES OF RUSSIAN HISTORY AND RUSSIAN LITERATURE.

$2.00.

A series of eight lectures delivered in 1896 at the Lowell Institute, Boston; Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.; Columbia University, New York; Washington Club, Washington, D.C.; University of Chicago; Steinway Hall, Chicago; Twentieth Century Club, Chicago; All Souls' Church, Chicago; Art Museum, St. Louis, Mo.; Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.; and Carnegie Hall, New York.

Aside from its highly instructive value in delineating the rise and growth of Russian literature and its influence upon the history of that country, the book is written in a way which renders it most delightful reading.

A HERO IN HOMESPUN: A TALE OF THE LOYAL SOUTH.

A historical novel, with ten full-page illustrations by Dan Beard, and map. Printed on deckle-edged paper with cut leaves, and bound in cloth. $1.50.

In this story is set forth for the first time the civil war as it affected the Union people of the South. The theme is unhackneyed, and of absorbing interest. The historical background is true to fact, and changes with the progress of events in the war. The characters are sturdy types of mountain manhood and womanhood. Many of the incidents are historical, original, and picturesque. There is constant human interest, with humor and pathos.

Several generals of the civil war, with Parson Brownlow and Andrew Johnson, are among the characters. The delineation of "the fighting parson" is particularly strong and lifelike. The story follows the order of events in the war as it touched Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia, Ohio, and the adjacent states, and has no little historic value. The scenes vary from those of the home to those of the battlefield. Wild Cat Mountain, Mill Spring, and other minor engagements of the early war are described with historic fidelity, and the great battles of Knoxville,

Nashville, Stone River, the fighting about Cumberland Gap, and other events in the experience of the Army of the Cumberland, are truthfully depicted, and belong to the life story of the characters.

The scouting, bushwhacking, guerilla warfare, strained social relations, political affiliations, religious experience, domestic life, and love-making of the time, are all touched upon. It is believed that so adequate a picture of the mountain region of the South at the time of the civil war has never before appeared in print.

The book breathes a strong spirit of loyalty to the Union, but is conceived in the kindliest sympathy for the different classes in the South, to whom the war involved such terrible choices and consequences, and especially for that large class, so little known, but so invaluable to the Union cause, — the loyal people of the Southern States. The devotion of these people to the Union, and the service which they rendered, form one of the most thrilling stories in the nation's history.

Harrison, Mrs. Burton.

A SON OF THE OLD DOMINION.

Printed on deckle-edged paper, with gilt top, and bound in basket-cloth, three colors. With a cover design by T. B. Hapgood, Jr. pp. 355. $1.50.

A Colonial novel, dealing with the pre-Revolutionary period; describing dramatically the early border warfare between the Indians and settlers, and setting forth the events which led up to the revolution among the Virginian colonists. It describes most graphically famous scenes, incidents, localities, and historical characters associated with the early history of the war; and further interest is added to the story by the fact that Mrs. Harrison has been able to draw upon private documents in the possession of her family for information in regard to incidents in the life of General Washington, who figures as a prominent character in the book. Patrick Henry and many other noted persons connected with that stirring period of American history are referred to by name. A charming love story is woven in, and the delightful glimpse of the private life of Washington gives the book a peculiar interest at this time.

"Mrs. Harrison has inhaled the very spirit of Virginian life in ante-Revolution days, and not so much penned it as exhaled it upon the pages of this delightful book. . . . The author is at her best in picturing the chief women of this story. . . . Her Colonel Washington is strong, and simple, and stately, as we love to think of him. . . . The style of the book is quaint, without being affected, and its vocabulary, as well as its peculiarities of expression, is true to the time. It is, without question, Mrs. Harrison's best work, and, as a study in American historical literature, though of later date, deserves a place by the side of Mr. Stimson's 'King Noanett.'" — Boston Transcript.

"Mrs. Burton Harrison may certainly be styled the typical American woman novelist, so apt and true is her portrayal of the characteristics of the average American man or woman, and so thorough and familiar her knowledge of American history and social customs. She tells her stories, too, in a delightful way that makes their perusal charming to any reader. . . . This present work is her latest and best, it being, on many accounts, one of the finest American historical novels that has appeared in a decade." — Boston Courier.

"This story is at once the most entertaining and the most ambitious work that Mrs. Harrison has performed." — Boston Journal.

"The chief value of A Son of the Old Dominion lies in the fine historical atmosphere which certainly testifies to masterly artistic workmanship." — N. Y. Independent.

THE MEDICAL NEWS.

A National Weekly Medical Periodical containing 24–28 Quarto Pages of Reading Matter in each Number. Published every Saturday.

THE MEDICAL NEWS bears to THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF THE MEDICAL SCIENCES the relation of a newspaper to a magazine, and occupies equally a leading position in the esteem of the profession. Recognized throughout the country as the best weekly exponent of medical intelligence, THE NEWS finds its readers and contributors in every State in the Union. THE NEWS maintains a corps of regular correspondents in all medical centres and is in early possession of all information of interest. Subdivided into the departments of Original Articles and Lectures, Hospital Notes, Progress, Clinical Memoranda and Therapeutical Notes, Editorials, Society Proceedings, Correspondence, Reviews and News Items, THE MEDICAL NEWS is well equipped for furnishing its readers with a complete account of the medical life and progress of the times.

The fact that it answers the needs of physicians in active practice is shown by an increase in its subscription list which has justified a reduction in price to Four Dollars per annum. It is now the cheapest as well as the best large weekly medical magazine. No means of gaining information is overlooked, and everything is presented in such manner as to convey intelligence in the most attractive and useful form.

The American Journal of the Medical Sciences.

A Monthly, containing in each issue 112–128 large Octavo Pages, Fully Illustrated.

With the first issue for 1897, THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF THE MEDICAL SCIENCES entered upon its seventy-eighth year, still the leader of American medical periodicals. In its long career it has developed to perfection the features of usefulness in its department of literature, and presents them in unrivalled attractiveness. It is the medium chosen by the leading minds of the profession on both sides of the Atlantic for the presentation of elaborate Original Articles; its Reviews are noted for discernment and absolute candor, and its Classified Summaries of Progress present, each month, an epitome of medical advances gleaned by specialists in the various departments. According to unquestionable authority, "It contains many original papers of the highest value; nearly all the real criticisms and reviews which we possess; and such carefully prepared summaries of the progress of medical science and notices of foreign works, that from this file alone, were all other publications of the press for the last fifty years destroyed, it would be possible to reproduce the great majority of the real contributions of the world to medical science during that period."

SUBSCRIPTION RATE REDUCED TO $4.00 PER ANNUM.

It is safe to say that in no other publication of its kind can an investment be made with the certainty of so rich a return. When it is taken in connection with the weekly MEDICAL NEWS, the reader can rest assured that nothing of importance in the life of the great medical world will escape his attention. To lead every subscriber to prove this fact for himself, the Commutation rate has been greatly reduced, being fixed at the exceedingly low figure of Seven Dollars and Fifty Cents per Annum, in Advance.

LEE AND SHEPARD'S FALL ANNOUNCEMENTS

TWO NEW BOOKS BY

OLIVER OPTIC

At the Front

By OLIVER OPTIC Blue and Gray Cloth Gold Dies Illustrated Price $1.50

"AT THE FRONT" is the fifth of the series of "The Blue and the Gray — on Land," and the last but one of the six volumes. It is a continuation of the narrative contained in the preceding books, wherein is given the history of the Riverlawn Regiment from the formation of the two companies as a squadron, in which it rendered its first service for the preservation of the Union, till in the present volume it becomes a full cavalry regiment of twelve companies, with three battalions, a colonel, a lieutenant-colonel, and three majors.

After the enemy was driven out of Kentucky the regiment was sent to Nashville and ordered to Murfreesboro', taking part in the battle of Stone River, which the author described in a remarkably effective and interesting manner.

The personal adventures of the characters introduced in the preceding volumes will interest the readers probably more than the details of battles and skirmishes. In the enlargement of the regiment, most, if not all, of them rise to higher rank. They are engaged in some sharp engagements, and they do credit to themselves, and owe their promotion to their conduct on the field of battle as well as to their strict adherence to the line of duty. But none of them are permitted to do impossible things. All of them do not escape the perils of the field, and even the colonel has to lie some weeks upon his bed from the effects of a severe wound.

As will be seen from the above, the book is full of chances for exciting incidents and adventure, of which the author avails himself, making the volume one of the most stirring and interesting of the series.

COMPLETION OF THE ALL-OVER-THE-WORLD LIBRARY

or, Adventures in Eastern Seas

By OLIVER OPTIC Bound in Gold and Colors Illustrated
Price $1.25

"PACIFIC SHORES" is the twelfth and last volume of the All-Over-the-World Library. As indicated in the preceding volumes the purpose of the voyage described is the education of the hero, Louis Belgrave, who has come into possession of his grandfather's property. The present volume covers an extended stay in Japan, where all the principal points of interest are visited. From the land of the Mikado the party proceeds to Australia and New Zealand and thence to America, stopping for a week's stay at the Fiji Islands. The young travellers have their full share of exciting adventure, while the author never loses sight of his purpose in writing the series; that is, the conveyance of useful information, much of it obtained during the author's recent trip around the world. The end which Mr. Adams had in view is shown very clearly in the following extract from the preface:

"If Louis Belgrave had obtained knowledge without building up his moral character and without keeping the religious sentiment alive in his soul at the same time, of what avail would have been his learning to him? We regard him at the end of his long voyage as a model hero. He has been fair, honest, just, humane, with a strong interest in all that was good and true. He is 'summed up' at the end of the last chapter, and with the character he has built up as he enters upon the duties and responsibilities of manhood, we leave him, assured that he will be an upright citizen, a useful and not merely an ornamental member of the community, and a valuable, if not always a popular, individual in the society in which he moves."

CLIFTON JOHNSON'S NEW BOOK

The District School as it was

By WARREN E. BURTON New Edition Edited by CLIFTON JOHNSON With illustrations Cloth $1.25

THIS bright and vivid description of one of the early institutions of New England was first published in 1833, and met with a very favorable reception, the first edition being followed by several others, both in this country and in England. It has been out of print for some years, but of late there having arisen quite a demand for it, or a work of a similar character, Mr. Johnson has edited the work, introducing illustrations, showing the character of the text-books from which our forefathers gathered their early education. As time slips away, and all vestiges of the early customs are removed, these reminiscences of bygone times have an increasing interest and value. The descriptions are unusually simple and clear, and at the same time contain a humor that makes them good reading, aside from any historic attraction. The hope of the author as expressed in the preface to the original edition is certainly realized, "that it will ever be of historical use to rising generations, educated under better auspices as exhibiting a true and graphic picture of the District School as it was."

Country Clouds and Sunshine

By CLIFTON JOHNSON Author of "The New England Country" "What they Say in New England" etc. Cloth Illustrated with nearly one hundred Half-tones from Photographs by the Author Cover Design in Gold and Color Boxed $2.50

ONE might go a long way without coming across truer descriptions of New England farm and village life than these. The charm lies in their very plainness and simplicity. Back of them lies a wonderful keenness of observation. This is realism applied to desirable subjects. The young folks who wouldn't enjoy and appreciate the "Chapter of Sentiment" must be utterly devoid of any; while the country minister would equally appreciate the chapter devoted to him, whether he would admit that the picture exactly fitted him or not. Every chapter has its local flavor and interest. The illustrations are fine, and the book-making is superb. — Watchman, Boston.

A Book of Signs, Sayings, and Superstitions

FOR convenience in reference, the matter has been classified under numerous headings, an abridged list of which may fairly well connote the exact scope of the collection. Some of the topics are tea-grounds, dreams, charms, fortune-telling, wishes, snakes, money, death, warts, the moon, counting-out rhymes, nursery tales, and old songs. It is a unique book, and there is something in it to interest everybody, while to all lovers of folk-lore it will be a storehouse of interesting matter. — Boston Journal.

A New Volume of Verse by

SAM WALTER FOSS

Dreams in Homespun

By Sam Walter Foss Price (about) $1.50

"THE same characteristics that distinguished his previous volumes are generally observable throughout this one. The author's talent consists largely in treating common every-day themes poetically. He invests with a halo of homespun beauty, the scenes and incidents in the lives of average men. The humorous element is seldom long lacking from Mr. Foss's verse, and there is usually a trace of philosophic suggestiveness behind the humor. He is strongest, perhaps, in depicting the shrewd and quaint, but wholesome and healthful, humor of the New England farmer. The author's early life upon a farm comes back to him with its hard and unlovely features softened, perhaps, and with its idyllic beauties glorified by the illusions of distance and memory."

Whiffs from Wild Meadows

This book comprises 272 pages, is beautifully bound, with an elegantly designed cover, and artistically illustrated It contains all the author's best poems written since the publication of "Back Country Poems" Cloth Gilt Top Boxed $1.50

MR. FOSS is one of the newest, as well as one of the truest, of our New England verse writers, and his latest volume will find a multitude of appreciative readers. It is marked by the same characteristics that made his former volume, "Back Country Poems," so popular — every-day common sense, good-natured satire, genuine humor, a keen appreciation of the petty foibles and weaknesses of mankind, and, above all, genuine human sympathy. The three or four "occasional" poems at the close of the volume in their unconventional swing and happy rhyming remind one irresistibly of Holmes, and there are lines that even Holmes would have been glad to own. — Boston Transcript.

Back Country Poems

This book contains 258 pages, has 12 full-page and many other illustrations, and many of the author's best known poems Cloth $1.50

OF all the poems published for a long time none deserve warmer praise and more careful reading than the delightful songs that make up this quaint and natural book. Now sad, now gay, everywhere pleasing, the verses charm and cause us to wish that the 258th page did not bring the end. — Public Opinion.

The Genesis of Shakspeare's Art

A Study of his Sonnets and Poems

By EDWIN JAMES DUNNING With an editorial preface by Mr. A. W. STEVENS Cloth Gilt Top $2.00

THIS is a thoughtful analysis of Shakspeare's Sonnets, showing the connection between them and his "Venus and Adonis" and "The Lover's Lament." The author, while arguing upon his clearly expressed theory of a well-defined unity of thought and purpose running through them all, gives us several very bright and entertaining essays upon the poetic ideal, which will be appreciated for their literary quality by other than Shakspearian scholars; indeed, the work will appeal to every student of literature as being of fundamental importance. When it is understood that, in order to write this work, Dr. Dunning, who is blind, was obliged to commit to memory the one hundred and fifty-four sonnets and "The Lover's Complaint," at the same time holding "Venus and Adonis" well within his memory, it seems little short of marvellous. A well-known literary worker says: "Dr. Dunning has produced an original and profound book on Shakspeare as a poet which will exalt every reader's idea of him as a man."

Water-Color Painting

By GRACE BARTON ALLEN With illustrations and cover design by the Author Also containing colored plates showing 72 washes of modern water colors Cloth $1.25

THIS volume, which is a practical text-book on the art of painting in water colors, is intended for the use of amateurs, and of those water-color teachers who are not yet sufficiently accustomed as instructors to realize how much the average pupil does not know. Taking for granted absolute ignorance on the part of the reader, it explains, as far as may be done in print, the technicalities of this branch of art in simple and intelligible language, treating of colors and materials, as well as of flower, landscape, and figure painting in polychrome and monochrome. The author, who has had experience with both public classes and private pupils, aims to convey information in so clear, direct, and minute a way that there shall be no possibility of misconception, and has illustrated the book with chapter-headings and tail-pieces which serve as a commentary on the text. The washes of color given in the volume will prove to be of great value to the amateur as well as to the artist.

The Oil Medium

A Practical Treatise on the Theory and Processes of Oil Painting

By BURLEIGH PARKHURST pupil of William Sartain, of Bouguereau and Tony-Fleury and of Aimëe Morot Formerly Lecturer on Art in Dickinson College Author of "Sketching from Nature" etc. Fully illustrated and containing colored plates showing specimens of 120 oil colors Price $1.25

A BOOK which, though primarily intended to be of practical use to the amateur painter, will be found to be also of value and interest to the student of pictures. The painter will find it a guide to the principles and processes of the craft of painting, written by one who has practised them, and in the spirit of a teacher, without being abstruse, it will give the reasons for things as well as the things themselves.

He who would paint a picture and he who would judge of one must know the same things, — the one practically and the other theoretically, — and both will find what they need in this book, clearly, thoroughly, and practically set forth.

Its illustrations are marked for artistic excellence, while its directions and instructions are so clear and precise as to enable the amateur to pursue the art without other instructor. Abundant information is given in reference to materials, which includes colors, brushes, mediums, etc., and how to use them. Valuable suggestions are furnished as to the requirements of decorative art, and useful hints follow on the correct designs for tableware. — Boston Transcript.

FOOTPRINTS OF THE PATRIOTS

Beside Old Hearthstones

By ABRAM ENGLISH BROWN Author of "Beneath Old Rooftrees" etc. Illustrated $1.50

IN "Beside Old Hearthstones" Mr. Brown continues to trace the footprints of the patriots in the history and tradition handed down through their descendants. This volume covers a region not so familiar to the public, but teeming with interest. At very many homes are met descendants of the participants in the stirring scenes of the Colonial and Revolutionary Wars. These people tell the trials of the early days as they affected their ancestors, whose record has never before been given to the world. They also bring forth many tangible reminders of those days when independence was obtained. Notably among the many is a veritable sword of Bunker Hill, never brought to light since it was taken from the hand of its owner, who perished on June 17, 1775. It is no wonder that the descendants of the old heroes are proud of their origin and hold these traditions and mementoes of a truly heroic age as priceless. It has been the aim of the author to seek out these descendants, and to gather many narratives which have not been incorporated in any history, and which would otherwise be lost.

Beneath Old Rooftrees

Original sources furnish the large part of the information here given, making a contribution most valuable indeed to the body of Revolutionary story. — Christian Advocate, Pittsburg.

The Story of Jane Austen's Life

By OSCAR FAY ADAMS Author of "Chapters from Jane Austen" "Presumption of Sex" etc. New Edition With Eighteen Full-Page Illustrations Bound in Polished Buckram $2.00

A NEW edition of Mr. Oscar Fay Adams's "The Story of Jane Austen's Life" presents in a very satisfactory form, and with eighteen full-page illustrations, a very well-written and attractive biography. Mr. Adams made thorough personal study of his subject and of the localities associated with Miss Austen, and has given his account of her life a great deal of freshness. He is in thorough sympathy with her, both as a woman and as a writer; no one else could have done her justice from either point of view. In the new edition the bibliography has been enlarged, and the biography now meets the most fastidious taste as a piece of book-making. — Outlook.

A Chat about Celebrities

or The Story of a Book.

By CURTIS GUILD Author of "Over the Ocean" "Abroad Again" etc. etc. Price $1.50

FIFTY years' service in the journalistic harness gives Mr. Guild a fund of observations and reminiscences of many celebrities, literary, military, artistic, and dramatic. Mr. Guild has a keen eye for the points of a good story, and he tells many an excellent one of the men he has known during the last half century. His style is bright and crisp, and the gossipy, chatty book will meet with well-deserved favor. — Phila. Public Ledger.

On Plymouth Rock

By Col. Samuel Adams Drake Author of "Watch Fires of '76" "Decisive Events in American History" 4 vols. "Our Colonial Homes" etc. etc. Illustrated 60 cents

"THERE are some things which the young people of this country should know by heart," Mr. Drake says in his Preface. How much the story of our Pilgrim Fathers transcends all others was lately emphasized by the high honors paid to the faded manuscript of Governor Bradford, upon the occasion of its return to its rightful owners. Mr. Drake's idea has been that this simple, but touching, story would best impress itself upon young minds by keeping in close touch with the spirit of Bradfords, Mourt's, and Winslow's narratives. This he has done under the above suggestive title.

The Spinning-Wheel at Rest

POEMS by EDWARD AUGUSTUS JENCKS Cloth Bevelled edges Fifty illustrations with portrait of author $1.50

THIS is one of the most beautiful and attractive volumes now issued from the New England press. It carries fifty exquisite illustrations (twenty-four full-page), quite new, and many of them unique. Most of the poems have been given to the public from time to time through the magazines. Modes of Motion

Mechanical Conceptions of Physical Phenomena

By Prof. A. E. DOLBEAR Tufts College Author of "Matter, Ether and Motion" "The Art of Projection" "The Telephone" etc. Illustrated $1.00

THE book "Modes of Motion" is intended for such persons as have an interest in phenomena of all kinds. It makes clear how one kind of energy is converted into another kind, and the conditions needed for transforming it.

A chapter on the luminiferous ether presents the wide difference there is between it and ordinary matter, in its structure, its limits, and its modes of operation, in a way that greatly enlarges one's view of the possibilities in nature. It goes farther; and points out the necessity there is for assuming a source of energy behind both matter and ether in order to account for physical phenomena as we witness it.

Lastly, electrical and magnetic phenomena are presented as depending upon simple mechanical conditions.

The Supernatural

A Rational View of the Divine Word and of the Dual Nature of Man

By KATHOLICOS With an Introduction by the Rev. J. W. REYNOLDS M.A. Prebendary of St. Paul's Price $1.50

THIS book will more than reward any one who will give it a good and faithful reading. It is not, as Mr. Reynolds remarks in his introduction, "a laborious, argumentative treatise on a difficult subject, but an intelligent, well-reasoned explanation, pleasant and easy." The author's great point is rather the exposition than the demonstration of the supernatural. He assumes its reality. — N. Y. Independent.

A NEW NOVEL BY MISS TOWNSEND

Dorothy Dracut's Tomorrows

A sequel to "Dorothy Dracut's Todays" or "Sirs, Only Seventeen" By VIRGINIA F. TOWNSEND Author of "Darryl Gap" "Only Girls" "Mostly Marjorie Day" etc. Cloth $1.50

MISS TOWNSEND has many admirers, and anything new from her pen will be received by them with great pleasure and interest. She always introduces us to characters that we like to associate with. She does not seem to expend much energy in giving us psychological analyses, but manages to call out our hearts to them. She throws upon our senses the charm of youth and beauty without diminishing our reverence for the soul within it, or permitting us to forget that it is a blossom of Divine Thought. Her plots are always ingenious and full of interest, and incidents and situations follow swiftly in her stories. Her books are always pure, and her latest production will not disappoint her many readers, it being full of incident, following the careers of several of the characters in whose fortunes Miss Townsend's readers are interested. Although in a sense a sequel to "Dorothy Dracut's Todays," it is a work complete in itself.

MRS. DENISON'S LATEST

Captain Molly

A Love Story

By MARY A. DENISON Author of "That Husband of Mine" "That Wife of Mine" etc. etc. Cloth $1.00

MRS. MARY A. DENISON has been for many years a favorite with the public as a story writer, but the passage of years has detracted nothing from her bright and entertaining style of writing, and has added much to the strength of her pen. The reputation of some of her later books — as "That Husband of Mine" and "That Wife of Mine" — has been almost as great in England as it has at home. In "Captain Molly" Mrs. Denison has struck a new vein, and the story promises to be as popular as anything she has ever written. It is a love story as sweet as a freshly blown rose, and in which are many effective dramatic situations. The heroine is a beautiful and popular society girl, who becomes an enthusiastic worker in the Salvation Army; the hero is a young surgeon, who loves her devotedly, but gets no encouragement. The result we leave the reader to ascertain by reading the story. The book will cause many to regard with more favor the work of the Salvation Army. The scene is laid among the East Siders of New York, but the characters are not all drawn from that classic locality.

THE WAR OF 1812 SERIES

Guarding the Border

or The Boys of the Great Lakes

By EVERETT T. TOMLINSON Illustrated $1.50

DR. TOMLINSON, in his authorship of this series, has essayed to furnish the young American mind with an accurate historical account of the causes leading up to, and the events transpiring during, the war of 1812, and he gives a type of juvenile literature that is of incalculable benefit to the youth of the land. Dr. Tomlinson was for years principal of Rutgers Academy, and he is quite conversant with the character of literature that is most desired by the youth, and he is also a judge of the manner of presentation that will best hold the attention of his readers. This is the fifth volume in the above series, and we follow with interest the adventures of the Field and Spicer boys in their efforts for their country.

LIBRARY OF HEROIC EVENTS

Stories of the American Revolution

By EVERETT T. TOMLINSON Illustrated Boards 30 cents net Cloth $1.00

DR. TOMLINSON thinks that there is a decided need for a revival of patriotism today, and that there can be no deep love of country without a thorough appreciation of what it has cost to found and develope our land. The story of the men who shouldered their muskets and went forth to battle for liberty has been often told, but this volume deals with the incidents of the home life, of the struggles of the women and children who were left behind, and of the privations, heroism, and bravery called forth by the circumstances of those trying times. As examples of the highest bravery and heroism these stories cannot fail to enkindle a patriotic spirit in the hearts of the young readers.

An Oregon Boyhood

By REV. LOUIS ALBERT BANKS Author of "Common Folks' Religion" "White Slaves" etc. Cloth Illustrated $1.25

DR. BANKS takes his readers into an entirely new field in "An Oregon Boyhood," in which he gives the present generation a description of the scenes and adventures of boyhood and youth in that far Western country. The youth of the present day who knows that the journey to Oregon is only a six days' ride in a palace car can hardly realize that the author's father crossed the country in 1852 in a "prairie schooner" drawn by oxen, and consumed six months in the journey from Arkansas to the banks of the Willamette, where he settled. The descriptions of the occupations of a growing boy in a new country are fresh and vivid. Commencing with early life in a log cabin, the author "grows up with the country." The hunting and fishing instinct is early developed, and many exciting adventures which could take place only in such a country are recorded. School life, mountain climbing, winter sports and occupations, life in the mining camps in the early days of gold mining, early salmon-fishing, are among the subjects described, which make this an intensely interesting book for young and old.

THIRD VOLUME IN THE SILVER GATE SERIES

The Happy Six

By PENN SHIRLEY Cloth Illustrated 75 cents

"PENN SHIRLEY is a very graceful interpreter of child life. She thoroughly understands how to reach out to the tender chord of the little one's feelings, and to interest her in the noble life of her young companions. Her stories are full of bright lessons, but they do not take on the character of moralizing sermons. Her keen observation and ready sympathy teach her how to deal with the little ones in helping them to understand the lessons of life. Her stories are simple and unaffected."

In all the books of these series the spirit is manly, sincere, and moral. There is enough of incident and adventure to make them lively and interesting, while the principles of truthfulness, integrity, and self-reliance are quietly inculcated. In a word, they are such books as parents would wish their children to read.

Henry Wood's Books

Studies in the Thought World or Practical Mind Art

By HENRY WOOD Author of "Ideal Suggestion" "God's Image in Man" "Edward Burton" "The Political Economy of Natural Law" etc. Cloth $1.25

THESE papers by Henry Wood deal with thought education, mental science, and spiritual evolution in their practical aspects. Their restorative forces are explained and applied to human life. No one can read this book without receiving a great mental and spiritual uplift. Mr. Wood is an original thinker and an idealist, and has the faculty of presenting vital topics in a marvellously graphic and interesting manner. The higher unfoldment of man is ably treated from the scientific standpoint. The moulding power of thought and its systematic exercise as related to health and happiness are also clearly set forth. As with his other works, which have had a wide circulation, the literary construction is extremely felicitous. Thinkers have a treat in this work, and when once begun one's interest increases to the end.

God's Image in Man

Some Intuitive Perceptions of Truth

By HÉNRY WOOD Boston U.S.A. Author of "Ideal Suggestion" "Edward Burton" "The Political Economy of Natural Law" etc. etc. In Cloth 258 pages $1.00

AN honest, able, and promising effort to free faith from unnecessary incumbrances. — New York Independent.

Mr. Wood has done us a service, and we trust that many will receive from the same and subsequent volumes spiritual quickening. — The Critic (New York).

A volume full of deep and suggestive ideas from the standpoint of the theology of the divine immanence. — The Christian Union (New York).

Edward Burton

By HENRY WOOD Author of "Political Economy of Natural Law" etc. Sixth edition In cloth 299 pages $1.25 In paper covers 50 cents

IT seems to us that "Edward Burton" will be generally regarded as a story of more than ordinary merit. The conventional realistic lines are rejected. But of high thinking in fields of optimistic outlook and of religious meditation, expressed in the idealization of character, there is abundance. "Edward Burton" would be called a religious novel. The fundamental thought is the outworking of souls toward light and love from the bondage of oppressive dogma and unreasoning belief. But, unlike many religious novels, the story is not dull, nor does the movement drag. — The Christian Union (New York).

The Political Economy of Natural Law

By HENRY WOOD Author of "Ideal Suggestion through Mental Photography" "God's Image in Man" "Edward Burton" etc. Cloth $1.25

MR. WOOD'S task has been accomplished in admirable style. The work is one that breeds reflection. Its perusal broadens the horizon and lifts the thinker into lofty altitudes — altitudes where mind is seen to be the worker, and labor, land, capital, and coin to be but the tools; where altruism is stimulated and the sweetness of charity is realized, and the fact of racial unity is felt, and a glimpse is had, as from Pisgah's summit, of the final fraternization of humanity. — Chicago Evening Post.

Ideal Suggestion Through Mental Photography

A Restorative System for Home and Private Use preceded by a Study of the Laws of Mental Healing

By HENRY WOOD Author of "God's Image in Man" "Edward Burton" Cloth $1.25

THE first part of the book is a study of the laws of mental healing, in which the author considers in a thoughtful and most interesting manner the obstacles to progress; the body; the power of thought; planes of consciousness, and therefrom formulates inferences and conclusions that must impress the reader for their philosophical soundness. The second part, "Ideal Suggestion," with practical directions, embodies the laws of mental healing in a restorative system, formulated and arranged for home and private use. Visionary and impracticable aspects of the subjects are eliminated, and a scientific basis found. The book is a valuable addition to the substantial literature of the subject. — Boston Home Journal.

Gymnastics

A Text-Book of the German-American Gymnastics specially adapted to the Use of Teachers and Pupils in Public and Private Schools

Edited by W. A. STECHER Secretary of the Committee on Physical Training of the North American Gymnastic Union and published under the auspices of that Association Fully illustrated Quarto Cloth Price $3.00

THIS is a compilation of contributions of 16 of the best-known teachers of German-American gymnastics in this country. The volume contains 308 illustrations which were designed by Mr. Stecher, who, happily, combines the experience of the teacher with that of the artist.

It will be noted that most of the contributors are public-school teachers. A few are instructors in the normal schools. That the public-school teachers will find an abundance of helpful material will be seen from the fact that 7 pages are devoted to tactics, 19 to calisthenics, 51 to wand exercises, 18 to club-swinging, 12 to dumb-bell exercises, 5 to ring exercises, 11 to fancy steps, 22 to games, and 20 to double wand and hoop exercises. The material is so arranged as to make the work useful for gymnasiums for women as well as for men. — Boston Advertiser.

THE Hutchinsons bore an important part in a great work in an era of our country's history that only the older ones among us can recall and that will never come again. Their work is a part of history, and these two volumes have a value as such, as well as a place on our shelves of memoirs where they will rank among the most interesting and unique. — Portland Transcript.

Baby's Kingdom

Designed and illustrated by ANNIE F. COX A new and elegant edition Oblong quarto Blue and white, or gold cloth Gilt edges $3.75 Turkey morocco $9.00

THERE may be given the little stranger's date of birth, and with it the figures of its weight. Day by day the loving mother can place on its pages the various stages of baby's growth — the weight from time to time, the first step, the first tooth, its gifts, its first attempts at speech, its first words, and all those wonderful events of baby life which shall serve as an accurate record of the facts for her own gratification and for the future benefit of him or her the memory of whose beautiful days is thus treasured up. The designs are of the highest artistic skill, and the sentiments expressed on its pages are at once novel and pleasing and add greatly to the interest of the illustrations. The conception and execution of this work reflect the highest credit on the author, and in the future it will possess a peculiar value to him or her whose baby biography was here recorded by a tender, loving mother's hand. — Boston Home Journal.

"FOR SWEETHEART OR FRIEND"

Because I Love You

A CHOICE COLLECTION OF LOVE POEMS Edited by ANNA E. MACK New Edition Cloth White and Gold Boxed Price $1.50

WHAT lover is there that will not welcome the beautiful little white and gold volume of love verses, edited by Anna E. Mack, under the satisfying title, "Because I love you"? Love is ever an excuse for right or wrong doing, but in this case the result is so beautiful that no excuse is needed. Miss Mack has selected with discriminating taste some of the sweetest, tenderest lines in our literature, all dealing with the one imperishable subject. The authors from whose works these selections are culled include all the best-known writers, and, in addition to the old familiar names, a number of new ones make this book fresher than most anthologies. — Cincinnati Tribune.

The Mystery of Handwriting

A Handbook of Graphology, being a Plain and Practical Guide to the Art of Interpreting Character from Handwriting

By J. HARINGTON KEENE ("Grapho") Illustrated with autograph writing of famous persons Oblong quarto Cloth Attractive cover-design by Gunn Price $2.00

HOW "Grapho" succeeded in making such wonderful analyses of character from a study of the handwriting is no longer a secret. He has explained it all in "The Mystery of Handwriting: a Handbook of Graphology;" but it is doubtful if the closest student of it will ever attain the success of Mr. Keene, for he probably never knew himself exactly how much was due to unconscious intuition and how much to conscious knowledge. But all outside this psychological mystery, all that came from Mr. Keene's observation and experience, is here presented in clear, concise, practical form, and the student must be dull indeed who cannot in a short time be able at least to gain a general knowledge of the unknown writer of a letter. The book is very attractively printed and illustrated in oblong quarto. — New York World.

NEW EDITIONS OF THESE POPULAR BOOKS
NEW STYLES AND NEW DIES

GENIUS comes in with "Little Prudy." Compared with her, all other book-children are cold creations of literature; she alone is the real thing. All the quaintness of childhood, its originality, its tenderness and its teasing, its infinite uncommon drollery, the serious earnestness of its fun, the fun of its seriousness, the naturalness of its plays, and the delicious oddity of its progress, all these united for dear Little Prudy to embody them. — Col. T. W. Higginson, in North American Review.

The text is clearly engraved in Old English, and each page is, as it were, framed in an artistic design, in which the graces of form, with lines or disks of chaste gilding, and flowers in lovely colors, make a picture of glowing harmony, like the frontispiece of an illuminated missal.

SUN-PRINTS IN SKY TINTS

By Irene E. Jerome. Over thirty illustrations engraved on wood, accompanied by appropriate selections in poetry and prose. Elegant cover design. Size, 7⅛ x 11¼ inches. Price, $3.00.

In this new volume, "Sun-Prints in Sky Tints," the harmony between the sentiment of the selections and that of the illustrations is remarkable, evincing not only artistic power and refined taste, but a rare poetical understanding. — Boston Transcript.

PLASTIC SKETCHES. By J. G. and J. F. Low, the famous tile artists, being a series of designs, making forty-seven original photogravures, 10 x 12 inches, in satin portfolio. Price $10.00.

"This house has recently issued an Art Work, which is unique in the field of art literature, and is one of the handsomest, most tasteful, and most liberal publications of the season. We refer to 'Plastic Sketches,' a veritable portfolio, consisting of a series of Albertype pictures reproduced from the famous Chelsea tile-pictures first given to the world about six years ago by Messrs J. G. and J. F. Low, of Chelsea, Mass. By aid of the camera, wonderful copies of these tiles have been made so natural in appearance that he who delightedly turns the pages of this magnificent work cannot easily dispossess himself of the fancy that they stand from the paper in actual relief. This work is destined to become famous everywhere, and among all people, art students, designers, and lovers of the beautiful of all classes." —Philadelphia Item.

ELIJAH KELLOGG.

"Mr. Kellogg never wrote a dull story. His tales are adorned with noble thoughts and sublime teachings, that, while the story secures the attention and fully entertains the reader, excite the boy, all unconsciously, to strive to be a good man. We recommend his works, above all others, to parents who are purchasing reading for their boys."— Nashua Telegraph.

"There is a manliness of tone in Elijah Kellogg's books for boys that we like very much. His heroes are not those whom the death of some rich and distant relative, or a sudden turn of fortune's wheel, makes rich and influential. They hew out their own fortune, struggling honestly with difficulties, and rising by means of them to a higher manhood."— Chicago Standard.

HANDBOOK OF BLUNDERS

Designed to prevent 1,000 common Blunders in writing and speaking By HARLAN H. BALLARD, A. M., Principal of Lenox Academy, Lenox, Mass. 50 cents.

"If he who corrects one blunder in the use of the English language deserves well, how much does he deserve who corrects a thousand?"— Book Notes.

"The habit of accurate and grammatical speech is one that deserves to be a good deal more assiduously cultivated than it is. So easy is it to fall into colloquialisms, and current inaccuracies, that few, we fancy, will turn over the pages of this little handbook without finding some weakness of their own in the use of English exposed. The volume will be worth its slight cost several times over to any one who will study and heed its suggestions." — Boston Journal.

UNIVERSAL PHONOGRAPHY

Or, Short-hand by the "Allen Method." A self instructor, whereby more speed than long hand writing is gained at the first lesson, and additional speed at each subsequent lesson By G. G. ALLEN, Principal of the Allen Stenographic Institute, Boston. 50 cents.

☞ There is scarcely any requirement so helpful to the student, scholar, scientist, or professional man, as short-hand writing. Heretofore, all methods have required so long a time before one could become so proficient as to make it of any advantage, that men in middle life, or busy men, have not been able to give the time to learn it; but, by the "Allen Method," one can almost in "the idle moments of a busy life," certainly in an hour a day for two or three months, become so expert as to report a lecture verbatim.

Well-arranged series of exercises are given in free gymnastics, wand exercises, ring exercises, dumb-bells, procession, mutual-help exercises, bean-bags, marching, and a practical chapter on dress suitable for gymnastic exercises to be taken in. All these exercises have been carefully selected and thoroughly tested, and can be safely practised by any person in ordinary health." — Journal of Education.

"Mr. Bigelow's book is a practical treatment of the subject, and enlarges the reading-public's obligations to him." — Atlantic Monthly.

Or, Thoughts upon Space, Time, and Eternity. With an Introduction by THOMAS HILL, D. D., LL. D., late President of Harvard University. 50 cents.

A Frenchman's Struggle with the English Language. Interesting as a narrative, instructive as a handbook of French conversation By Professor E. C. DUBOIS. 50 cents.

"A decidedly amusing as well as instructive narrative, showing the trials and vexations a foreigner must endure in learning our language. The idea of the author in thus presenting the two languages in dialogue form was a happy one, and will be as good a study for the Yankee as the Frenchman. The two languages are presented on alternate pages line for line, and create equal interest." — San Jose Mercury.

FIVE-MINUTE DECLAMATIONS

For School and College Selected and adapted by WALTER K. FOBES, Teacher of Elocution and Public Reader, author of "Elocution Simplified," etc. 50 cents.

"Each comprise one hundred selections, not one of which requires over five minutes in declaiming. The selections are made from orations, speeches, and sermons with fine judgment, and with an eye to bringing out feeling, passion, fire, etc. Each selection has been subjected to the test of reading aloud, and is a declamation in the proper sense of the term." — Home Journal.

FIVE-MINUTE READINGS

For Young Ladies Edited by WALTER K. FOBES. Uniform with "Five-Minute Declamations" and "Five-Minute Recitations." 50 cents.

"This volume evinces general reading and good taste in the author. It differs from some of its class in that many of the selections are from modern authors. We do not see why readings that are suitable for girls should not, generally, be adapted to boys also. Yet the title is a good 'catch.' The selections are among the most chaste and elegant in the language." — Journal and Messenger.

EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY

THE NATION IN A NUTSHELL

"It begins with an account of the earliest known or supposed inhabitants of our continent; treats briefly but clearly of the eras of colonization and colonial growth; describes the causes and rise of the Revolution, the formation of the Constitution and government, the Presidents, the wars of 1812 and Mexico, and the Civil War; and brings the record of events down to the present day. It has also chapters on our growth in literature, the arts and sciences, material interests and inventions, and on the political changes which have taken place in recent years. It is intended for such readers as desire, by a rapid glance, to survey the main features and landmarks of American history, and who have not the time to peruse the more comprehensible histories." — New Bedford Mercury.

MISTAKES IN WRITING ENGLISH AND HOW TO AVOID THEM

For the Use of all who teach, write, or speak the Language By MARSHALL T. BIGELOW, Author of "Punctuation and other Typographical Matters." 50 cents.

"This is one of the most practical and systematic books in its kind that has as yet appeared. It is particularly commendable in avoiding the chance arrangement of matter which has so confusingly characterized other guides devoted to the same subject. Here everything is set forth in proper order, and reference is aided by the admirable grouping of the various sources of error under appropriate headings. This little volume will be found a serviceable friend on the library table of every writer." — Sat. Evening Gazette.

By WILLIAM MORRIS DAVIS, Instructor in Harvard College. Illustrated. 50 cents.

BRIDGE DISASTERS IN AMERICA

The Cause and the Remedy By Prof. George L. Vose. Author of "Manual for Railroad Engineers and Engineering Students," etc., etc. 50 cents.

"How to ensure the safety of bridges and to prevent loss of life by those who pass over them, surely ought to be a question of most vital interest, and Prof. Vose's thorough knowledge of the subject enables him to give a practical solution of the problem. It is a book that should be carefully read by all and especially by those who are in any way responsible for the maintenance or construction of bridges. He demonstrates that bridges can be constructed in such manner as to prevent the disasters which are repeatedly occurring, and that ignorance, shortsightedness and criminal negligence are alone responsible for the large loss of life in recent years on account of faultily constructed bridges."—Springfield Union.

A FEW THOUGHTS FOR A YOUNG MAN

By Horace Mann. A new edition. 25 cents.

"This volume is full of the wisest counsel, given in very attractive and winning language, which is embellished with sparkling wit and interesting anecdote. It is a rare little book, by an eminent author, and is worthy of a place in every household. The treatise has been so often sought after by the general public, that it is again republished in its original form. The late Mrs. Mann, who wrote the preface to her husband's book, says, 'Nothing the author ever wrote has been so universally popular.'"

HANDBOOK OF DEBATE

Including a debate upon the Character of Julius Caesar. Adapted from J. Sheridan Knowles. Arranged for practice in Speaking, for Debating Clubs, and Classes in Public and Private Schools. With Notes for the Forming and Guidance of Debating Societies, and a list of subjects for debate. 50 cents.

"This work may be considered a model worthy to be adopted for use in societies and clubs organized to cultivate powers of elocution and oratory, and to teach the art of skilful debate, the knowledge of which enables the possessor to wield great influence in public and deliberative assemblies. As a ready handbook for debating societies' use it is unequalled."

ENGLISH SYNONYMS DISCRIMINATED

By Richard Whately, D. D., Archbishop of Dublin. A new edition. 50 cents.

While especially adapted to the use of writers and those who desire to express themselves in exact and discriminating terms, this book will be of interest to every one who may wish to gain more precision in the use of our language. In compiling this valuable work, the accomplished author has departed from the customary methods, and has not contented himself with giving merely the apparent synonyms in the language, but elaborates on the nice distinction in the meaning of common words, usually considered synonymous terms. In this feature consists the especial importance of Dr. Whately's volume.

PRIMARY LESSONS IN ZOÖLOGY TEACHING

For Teachers in Common Schools. By Walter P. Manton, M. D., F. R. M. S., F. Z. S. Author of "Field Botany," "Insects," "Taxidermy." Beginnings with the Microscope. 50 cents.

This work is full of suggestions to teachers as to topics and methods in presenting this subject to beginners. It contains nine essays, full of valuable practical ideas for teachers. The subjects treated are: equipment; general characteristics of an animal; the bones; the muscles; the blood; respiration digestion; the brain and nerves. The author has wisely disregarded the exact order of the scientist, realizing that he has to interest beginners and teach them to observe. His directions are clear and simple, and in the hands of a good teacher the plan he outlines would be eminently inspiring.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Men, Women, and Manners in Colonial Times.

By Sydney George Fisher. Illustrated with four photogravures and numerous head and tail sketches. Two volumes. Satine, in a box, $3.00; half calf or half morocco, $6.00.

Abbott's Fireside and Forest Library.

Travels in a Tree Top.
The Freedom of the Fields.

With frontispieces by Alice Barber Stephens, and three photogravures in each volume. Two volumes in a box. Buckram, extra, $3.00; half calf or half morocco, $6.00. Sold separately or in sets.

"Mr. Abbott is a kindred spirit with Burroughs and Maurice Thompson and, we might add, Thoreau, in his love for wild nature, and with Olive Thorne Miller in his love for the birds. He writes without a trace of affectation, and his simple, compact, yet polished style breathes of out-of-doors in every line."—N. Y. Churchman.

Life of Wagner.

By Houston Stuart Chamberlain. Illustrated with many photogravures. Royal 8vo, $7.50. Published in connection with Messrs. J. M. Dent & Co., London.

The author is Houston Stuart Chamberlain, of Vienna. It is an intimate revelation of the character of Wagner, whose life was full of romantic episodes. Many rich photogravures and other illustrations, hard for the unelect to secure, enrich the text, and there are reproductions from the score of each opera, which will delight both music lovers and autograph collectors.

Picturesque Burma, Past and Present.

By Mrs. Ernest Hart. Illustrated with upwards of eighty reproductions of photographs and sketches, including many full-page pictures, about twelve photogravures, and two maps. Super-royal 8vo. Cloth, ornamental, deckle edges, gilt top. $7.50. Published in connection with Messrs. J. M. Dent & Co., London.

In addition to detailing the personal incidents of travel, Mrs. Hart has written with some fulness on the people, religion, history, and resources of Burma, and the book will thus, it is hoped, be of more lasting value than one occupied merely with the events of a journey through the country.

Cabot's Discovery of North America.

By G. E. Weare. With numerous maps and illustrations. Large crown 8vo. $3.50.

It is four hundred years since Britain, by discovering Newfoundland, began to build her Colonial Empire. To-day that Empire is the greatest in the world. Every day the Imperial feeling of the people is growing and deepening. The four hundredth anniversary of the Empire coincides with the sixtieth year of the greatest reign in English history.

Mr. Weare's volume is among the worthy memorials of a year thus doubly auspicious.

Comic History of Greece.

By Charles M. Snyder. With illustrations. Crown 8vo. Cloth, $2.00.

Montaigne and Other Essays, chiefly Biographical.

By Thomas Carlyle. Now first collected, with foreword by S. R. Crockett. Cloth, $3.00.

These essays were contributed by Thomas Carlyle to Brewster's "Edinburgh Encyclopædia" between 1820 and 1823,—and have not previously appeared in book form. The essay on Montucla has not hitherto been noticed by bibliographers; but as it is, like some of the others, signed "T. C.," and from internal and other evidences, the proofs of authorship seem conclusive, it has been deemed advisable to include it as an appendix.

The Life and Adventures of Robinson Crusoe.

In this work the subject is developed as logically as possible along essentially practical lines, the principles of the science being elucidated by reference to familiar facts of observation and to experiments of the simplest kind.

Electric Smelting and Refining.

A Practical Manual of the Extraction and Treatment of Metals by Electrical Methods. Being the "Elektro-Metallurgie" of DR. W. BORCHERS. Translated from the second German edition by WALTER G. MCMILLAN, F.I.C., F.C.S., Lecturer in Metallurgy at Mason College, Birmingham. In large 8vo. With numerous illustrations and three folding-plates.

The publishers beg to call attention to this valuable work. Dr. Borchers's treatise is practical throughout. It confines itself to ONE branch of Electro-Chemistry, viz., ELECTROLYSIS, a subject which is daily becoming of more and more importance to the practical metallurgist and manufacturer. Already in the extraction of aluminum, the refining of copper, the treatment of gold and other metals, electrical processes are fast taking the place of older methods. Dr. Borchers's work is acknowledged as the standard authority on the subject in Germany, and the English version, from the able pen of Mr. W. G. McMillan (author of the well-known treatise on Electro-Deposition and Electro-Plating) will, it is believed, take equal rank in English-speaking countries.

A LIST OF THE PUBLICATIONS

. . . OF . . .

LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY,

92 PEARL STREET (cor. High Street),

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.

ALPHABETICALLY ARRANGED BY NAMES OF AUTHORS.

ABBOTT, BENJAMIN VAUGHAN, LL.D.

The Travelling Law School. 12mo, $1.00.

The author employs the method of a journey from Boston to New York, Philadelphia, and Washington for giving rudimentary lessons in government and law. The book also contains "Famous Trials," twelve short and simple narratives.

"Is intended chiefly for the use of young readers, but there is much in it which may be profitably read by almost anybody outside of the legal profession." — Chicago Times.

ADAMS, EMILY.

Six Months at Mrs. Prior's. Illustrated, 12mo, $1.00.

"A widow with scanty means makes a home happy for a group of children. The influence of the Christian household is widely felt, and the quiet transforming leaven works in many homes." — The United Presbyterian.

ADAMS, OSCAR FAY.

Dear Old Story-Tellers. 12mo, $1.00.

Fascinating biographies of twelve popular children's authors.

Poets' Year (The). Edited. Oblong quarto, gold cloth, $6.00; full morocco, $10.00.

A sumptuous presentation of some of the best and choicest poems, descriptive of Nature in her varying moods.

Post-Laureate Idyls. 16mo, gilt top, $1.00.

Through the Year with the Poets Edited. 16mo, finely illustrated, each half-vegetable parchment, $1.00; cloth, $.75; half morocco, $1.50; half calf, $1.75.

JANUARY.	MAY.	SEPTEMBER.
FEBRUARY.	JUNE.	OCTOBER.
MARCH.	JULY.	NOVEMBER.
APRIL.	AUGUST.	DECEMBER.

"Its editor has not attempted a compilation of month-poetry solely. The field he has sought to occupy is a wider one, and includes the verse expressing the relation of the mind of man to the varying seasons, and representing the aspects of nature from month to month." — Preface.

"Mr. Adams has been far from confining himself to a ransacking of anthologies. He has evidently made a close and thorough study and search through contemporary and especially periodical literature, and it is due the editor to recognize that the originality of the idea has been equalled by the skill of its execution." — Christian Union.

ADAMS, ROBERT C.

History of England in Rhyme. 16mo, $.50.

History of the United States in Rhyme. 16mo, $.50.

On Board the Rocket. 12mo, illustrated, $.75.

A series of blue-water yarns, spun by an old sailor, who makes as effective use of the pen as the mate of a Liverpool liner — in the days when sails ruled — did of the belaying pin.

AIDS TO ENDEAVOR. 12mo, $.75; gilt edges, $1.00. Introduction by Rev. F. E. Clark, D. D.

A handbook for the use of members of the Y. P. S. C. E., and a splendid volume for the home table.

ALDEN, MRS. G. R. (PANSY).

"I understand, I think, the reasons for the perennial popularity of the 'Pansy books.' They waken the music of the noble chords of the soul. In their influence, as compared with that of the usual Sunday-school book or work of light fiction, lies the difference that exists between waltz and oratorio." — S. K. BOLTON.

Bernie's White Chicken. 16mo, illustrated, $.75.

Browning Boys (The). 16mo, illustrated, $.50.

The story of two poor boys who desire to do something to help keep the family together. What they achieve, both through their own earnest efforts, and through the trust they learn to place in a higher power, is well told. Each chapter aims to illustrate a Bible text.

Chautauqua Girls at Home (The). 12mo, illustrated, $1.50.

"These young ladies in their developing lives represent four classes of Christians. Social amusements for Christians, the Sunday-school — in short, the whole case of spiritually dead churches is diagnosticated, and the reviving remedies prescribed." — Christian Advocate, N.Y.

Chrissy's Endeavor. 12mo, $1.50.

The experience of a bright society girl who joins the Christian Endeavor Society.

Christie's Christmas. 12mo, illustrated, $1.50.

"Christie's parents, by dint of much careful planning, are able to send her for her Christmas to Uncle Daniel's. The precious hours are spent in the weather-bound train; yet they are well improved, and the happy results of that day's usefulness fill this book." — Watchman.

Cunning Workmen. 12mo, illustrated, $1.25.

Docia's Journal. 16mo, illustrated, $.75.

Dozen of Them (A). 16mo, illustrated, $.50.

"A Sunday-school story, written in Pansy's best vein, and having for its hero a twelve-year-old boy who has been thrown upon the world by the death of his parents. An excellent book for the Sunday-school." — Christian Standard, Cincinnati.

Eighty-Seven. 12mo, illustrated, $1.50.

"It was written especially for the members of the Chautauqua class of '87. It is a bright, healthful, encouraging story, practical and impressive, and it deserves, and will secure, a wide popularity." — Congregationalist.

Endless Chain (An). 12mo, illustrated, $1.50.

Mr. Brooks does this deliberately, because it is his aim to do this very thing; and we know of no writer of stories for young people (or for old people either, for that matter) who understands better how to mix these two elements so that they shall not seek to instruct too much or to entertain too little." — Brooklyn Times.

In No-Man's Land. With seventy-two pen-and-ink character drawings by Hassam. 12mo, $1.00.

Ruthie, the little heroine, is a similar creation to little Alice, the heroine of "Alice in Wonderland." Ruthie begins her journey in a horse-car, apparently falls asleep, and then her adventures begin. A squirrel and a billy-goat accompany her with many jests and puns to the jumping-off place, a little leap from which brings her into "No-Man's Land," where all the games live. The incidents and characters here are all on the marvellous, and related with a keen sense of fun.

"Mr. E. S. Brooks's 'In No-Man's Land' sparkles all over with glee. The pages bristle with jests and quips and puns. There is not a dull line in the book. The author has not labored over his conceits; they were spontaneous, and therefore natural and buoyant and fresh." — The Dial, Chicago.

Longfellow Remembrance Book. Edited. Illustrated. Square 12mo, gilt, in box, $1.25.

A book of biography and reminiscence compiled from various sources. An attractive reminder of the favorite American poet.

New York (The Story of). 8vo, illustrated by Bridgman. $1.50.

(Vol. I. of "The Story of the States" Series.)

"A story of the beginnings and of the marvelous development of what has come to be the Empire State of America. The dull matters Mr. Brooks leaves for the antiquarian to dwell upon in detail, while he devotes more attention to the romantic, the heroic, with which the history of every State in the American Union abounds." — Boston Traveller.

"The narrative is more like a charming fireside legend told by a grandfather to eager children, than the dry and pompous chronicles commonly labelled 'history.' Having already digested the writings of the experts — historians, novelists, and philosophers — who have studied and written upon New Netherlands and Colonial, Revolutionary, and modern New York, Mr. Brooks proceeds to tell a good story." — Critic, New York.

Recommended by the State Boards of Wisconsin and other States for their public school libraries.

The complete story of Jack's daring endeavor and achievement from prehistoric times to the days of the "Brave Old Salt" and the yacht Volunteer. The result of much study and careful research, it is nevertheless as dashing, as brilliant, as picturesque as Jack himself, when Jack is at his best. As the first consecutive account ever attempted, it will appeal to all lovers of blue water and to all admirers of the exploits of American seamen.

Soldier (The Story of the American). Uniform with "The Story of the American Sailor." 8vo, illustrated, $2.25. In neat library binding at same price.

A list of the best hundred books on the American Soldier is included in the work.

Like "The Story of the American Sailor," this book seeks to weld into a consecutive narrative the deeds and progress of the fighting men of America from the earliest days to the present time. Mound-builders and Indians, Spanish conquistadores and colonial volunteers, minutemen and Continentals, the defenders of 1812, the men of the Mexican War and the "Boys of '61" find their appropriate place. The result is an entertaining and connected narrative, spiced with anecdote, lighted up with deeds of heroism, and so mixing statistic with story, and description with detail, as to give a picturesque but practical record of the doings of the American soldier, both in war and peace.

Storied Holidays. Illustrated by Howard Pyle. 12mo, $1.50.

"It was a happy thought to take the holidays of the year, from Christmas to Thanksgiving, connect each with some picturesque event in history, and then tell the story in terse and forcible English. The result is a contribution to the literature of Romance — a book for buying and keeping, that the children, as they grow up, and the parents, too, may dip into and read." — Sunday-school Times, Phila.

BROWN, E. E.

Cheerful Words. From the writings of George MacDonald. Edited. With a biographical introduction by James T. Fields. 12mo, $1.00.

"As a novelist, an essayist, a poet, and preacher he stands always in broad sunlight, and no dark shadow ever rests upon the dial of his pure and healthy inspiration. . . . It must be a very remote corner of America indeed where the writings of George MacDonald would not only be known but ardently loved." — JAMES T. FIELDS, in Introduction.

Grant, General U. S. (Life of). 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

"A biography of Grant, which is a plain and clearly told consecutive narrative, circumstantial, but not too much elaborated in detail." — N. O. Times Democrat.

Holmes, Oliver Wendell (Life of). Illustrated, 12mo, $1.25.

The author had the sanction of Dr. Holmes, and received direct from him fresh and authentic data. After his death the volume was revised and enlarged.

"One of those gossipy biographical works which give to the general reader a far more clearly defined notion of its subject than a much more labored and critical work would. It simply presents to the reader the personality of its subject, takes the public into his house, tells a multitude of anecdotes about himself and his books, and makes liberal quotations from his writings wherever, in the opinion of the author, these illustrate his life, his character, or the aims and ends of his thought." — Chicago Times.

Living Truths. From the writings of Charles Kingsley. Edited. With an introduction by W. D. Howells. 12mo, $1.00; holiday binding, gilt top, $1.25.

Lowell, James Russell (Life of). 12mo, $1.00.

After an account of Mr. Lowell's ancestry, the author goes on to his boyhood and student life, touches lightly the short if unproductive period when he was finding his vocation, and skims along his earlier work till the hero appears with the "Biglow Papers." From this time on the story is told chiefly by Lowell and his friends. By the first, through his letters and books; by the latter, through many interesting interviews. Rich in anecdotes and new details of Lowell's public and private life.

Might of Right (The). Selections from W. E. Gladstone. Introduction by Ex-Governor Long of Massachusetts. 12mo, $1.00.

"The Christian Union has made no secret of its admiration for the genius, intellectual and moral, of Mr. Gladstone, and we are glad to see some of his thoughts put in this form for readers who might not be attracted to his longer writings. The selections have been made with discretion, and are inspiring for the spare minutes for which they are avowedly made." — Christian Union, New York.

Recommended by the State Board of Wisconsin for all the school libraries.

Thoughts That Breathe. Selected from the writings of Dean Stanley. With an introduction by Phillips Brooks. 12mo, $1.00.

"The character of those writings of the Dean of Westminster which are best known among us, makes them perhaps especially suitable for the purposes of this volume. They are historical. They are full of the vivid interest which belongs to the most sacred or the most romantic scenes in the history of our race. At the same time, no books are richer in the assertion and illustration of those principles of thought and action which are universal and eternal. To those who know the writings of Dean Stanley, it need not be said how largely his character pervades them, and the power which his character involves will be felt in these extracts, even separated, as they are, from the historical events by which they were suggested." — Rev. Phillips Brooks.

True Manliness. From the writings of Thomas Hughes. Edited. Introduction by James Russell Lowell. 12mo, $1.00.

"Many of Miss Brown's selections are from the 'Tom Brown' books; and what hearty, honest reading they are! That, in fact, seems to be the tone of all Mr. Hughes has ever written. Profoundly religious in the best sense; sincere and truthful; without pretence of any sort or cant of any kind; healthy, happy, and whole-souled, he is, on the whole, one of the best lay preachers who use the English tongue; a specimen man, whom we wish we might see multiplied by the thousand." — Literary World, Boston.

The venerable Dr. Peabody, writing of "Sonnets from the Portuguese," edited by W. J. Rolfe, says, "The volume — beautiful in its mechanical execution, and doing ample credit to the taste and enterprise of the publishers — shows the work of accomplished scholarship, superior critical discernment, and profound poetical feeling. I know no better editor than Mr. Rolfe for such poems as need an interpreter."

BROWNING, ROBERT.

Christmas Eve and Easter Day and Other Poems. Edited with notes and introduction by Heloise E. Hersey. Preface by W. J. Rolfe. 16mo, cloth, $.75; vegetable parchment, $1.00.

The poems are printed from the most recent text, and each has a brief introduction and explanatory notes. These are in the most direct and simple style. They aim only to explain difficult allusions and constructions.

George MacDonald says of Christmas Eve: "The poem is full of pathos and humor, full of beauty and grandeur, earnestness and truth."

"Christmas Eve, Easter Day, Saul, and the strange experience of Karshish, are widely dissimilar in their structure, but they form part of a constituent whole in the illustration of Browning's idea of immortality. As a comment upon these poems, Miss Hersey contributes an exceedingly clear and valuable introductory essay upon Browning's theory of personal immortality, in which she suggests the poet's use of scientific truth, and the insight with which he has given that truth a spiritual interpretation. Miss Hersey makes very clear, not only the poet's idea of personal immortality, but his idea of life under its present conditions as determining the direction and quality of personality. The essay is one which no lover of Browning will care to leave unread." — Christian Union.

BUCKLEY, J. M., D.D.

The Midnight Sun, The Land of The Tsar and The Nihilist. New and enlarged edition. 8vo, illustrated, $2.25.

Moscow, St. Petersburg, Poland, each has one or more chapters; customs, manners, religions, superstitions, social and political conditions, all come in for a share of attention. The study of Nihilism is made a specialty, and the four chapters devoted to this subject form the most valuable part of the work. Never before, we believe, have the causes, character, methods, and objects of this great conspiracy been set forth so clearly and fully before American readers." — New York Observer.

CHAMPNEY, LIZZIE W.

The Bubbling Teapot. 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

Flossy Tangleskein was an imaginative little girl who was so discontented with her "hum-drum-bread-and-butter-spelling-book, American child-life, that she even said to herself she would gladly change to a little Zulu savage, or an almond-eyed Oriental." One day she fell asleep in the studio of an artist friend, to whom she was posing for a picture of a Breton peasant child. In her dreams she had many adventures, and underwent many transformations, becoming in turn a child of almost every nation on the globe. She had thus a chance to test her wish, but returned to reality quite satisfied that to be a little American girl was about the best of all.

It sympathizes with his love of the horse, with one of the noblest type of the few that American fiction can show, and it places the Indian question in a manner to impress the old as well as the young with the duty of protection of the Indians. It is just the book for parents to remember and select." — Boston Globe.

"A charming idyl of the Blue-Grass country. It tells of a Puritan's effort to improve the manners and customs of Kentucky society. Miss Connelly's work is not to be stamped as 'a novel with a purpose,' or an historical novel, and so robbed of its popularity; but it is a delicate and powerful delineation of a social life as charming as it is strange to Northern readers." — American Bookseller, N.Y.

He poured his life out for thirty years into the life of his time." — HENRY WARD BEECHER.

COWAN, REV. J. F.

Endeavor Doin's Down to the Corners. Square 12mo, illustrated, $1.50.

DAVIS, M. E. M.

In War Times at La Rose Blanche. 12mo, illustrations by Kemble, $1.25.

"The really good book of Southern war stories for children waited until it appeared in the shape of 'In War-Times.' It is all there; it is all in the little book with its twelve stories, some gay and some sad, and its delightful tale of doll-keeping; and if there be any child, or indeed, any older reader, who will not cry over the 'Cunnel's Valley,' let North and South both reject him. ''Twas a long, long time on de way;' but 'La Rose Blanche' means that the good time for the children is here, and that the Southern side of the war story is going to be written for them." — Boston Herald.

Far From Home. Translated from the German by Katherine Hamilton. 12mo, $1.25.

"It is a lively picture of society life in a small German town. Among recent German novels, 'Far From Home' is the most acceptable for readers of unvitiated taste, since it deals with everyday people, instead of mystics, transcendentalists, and the like." — Chicago Tribune.

DIAZ, Mrs. A. M.

Bybury to Beacon Street. 12mo, $1.25.

"Sensible and humorous is Mrs. A. M. Diaz's 'Bybury to Beacon Street.' The villagers of Bybury are supposed to meet together, and to talk and write about their experiences, as well as to discuss various subjects. Sunlight in the house, simplicity in dress and diet, self-respect instead of the worship of wealth and fashion, education of women in skilled labor, are among the things Mrs. Diaz advocates by the mouths of her speakers. These and other topics are touched with the bright insight and penetrating common-sense which are the worst enemies of stupidity and folly. The social lump needs plenty of such leaven. We hope that both in city and country the book will be widely read." — New York Nation.

Chronicles of The Stimpcett Family. 8vo, boards, $1.25.

". . . The 'Chronicles' are fifteen in number; and two which contain descriptions of old-fashioned schools will interest older readers, and will seem incredible to children accustomed to receiving their education with modern improvements." — Boston Budget.

Domestic Problems. Work and culture in the household. Two volumes in one. 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

"It is not a series of theoretical essays, but a plain hand to hand discussion of the questions which come up every day in every home in the country, particularly in those homes where it is necessary to keep an eye upon the expenses of living; where much of the burden and brunt comes upon the 'woman folks;' where there are children to be fed, clothed, and educated, and where an ambition exists to live in respectable style." — Boston Transcript.

Jimmyjohns and Other Stories (The). 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

"This volume comes at a time when there is a demand for something brief, exact, and authoritative in the way of Chinese history. The author of the volume before us had exceptional advantages for making such a book as the public demand and need. He was for several years a resident of China in an official capacity, and studied the people and their mode of life from actual observation. The various chapters of the work deal with the history of the empire in brief,—its government, religions, its educational system, the nurture of the young, superstitions, funeral and wedding rites, the language, food, and dress, honors, architecture, music, medicine, and other subjects." —Journal of Education, Boston.

Her style is characterized by quick movements, sparkling expression, and incisive knowledge of human nature.

"The heroine of the present book is the daughter of a clergyman, 'a girl who was neither all good nor all bad, but partly the one and partly the other;' and the narrative of her trials and experiences is intended as a guide and help to other girls who have those of the same kind to contend with, and to impress upon them the lesson that 'the only road to happiness lies through the land of goodness.'" —New England Journal of Education.

A Queer Little Princess. 4to, illustrated, $1.50.

Henrietta Minerva Longstreet Nelson is her full name. She is not a royal-blood princess, but the "queerest, dearest, best little girl in the world," nicknamed "Little Princess," because — as the nurse expresses it — she is so "fine and pretty." A fair-haired, prattling, whimsical, self-sacrificing little peace-maker is her "Royal Highness," by her artless ways bending everybody to her own sweet will.

Pathetic and humorous by turns, filled with lessons of life, this story is destined to become a "child classic."

Few English clergymen are better known in this country than Frederic D. Girl's Money (A). 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

"Work is always a cure for morbidness" is the burden of this story. A young lady has a violent sickness and is paralyzed for life. Though surrounded with all the comforts that wealth can give, she is nervous, petulant, a burden and a sorrow to kind friends, until her sensible grandmother resolves to stop petting and pitying and try stirring. The morbid girl at once rouses from her lethargy and becomes a blessing to those about her.

Good-for-nothing Polly. 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

"Polly" is not a girl at all, but a boy — a slangy, school-hating, fun-loving, wilful, big-hearted boy. "Nagged" continually at home, he wastes his time upon the streets and finally runs away. The book tells of his adventures. Mrs. Pratt has a keen insight into the joys and sorrows of the little-appreciated boy-life. Like Robert J. Burdette, she is a master of humor, and often touches a tender chord of pathos. Every boy will be delighted with this book, and every mother ought to read it who is, all unwittingly perhaps, "freezing" her own noisy boy out of the home.

How Two Girls Tried Farming. 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

A narrative of an actual experience. "The two girls who tried farming solved a problem by taking the bull by the horns, and that is often as effectual a means as can be resorted to. They had for capital one thousand dollars. With this they bought thirty-five acres of scraggy farm land. Then they hired out as lady help for the winter, and laid by enough money to buy clover-seed, and a horse, and a few other necessities. Dolly had learned to plough and harrow and make hay, and even to cut wood. Both girls worked hard, and it is pleasant to chronicle their success. Now they have a prosperous farm, and raise cows, sheep, pigs, and chickens; and as they do everything to the best of their ability, their products are in constant demand." — St. Louis Post-Despatch.

Little Woman (A). 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

A fourteen-year old girl has the responsibilities of a household thrown upon her shoulders, and it seems at first more than she can bear. But she proves herself a "little woman," for she depends not on her own weakness, but upon Him who strengtheneth. The record of her trials and her triumphs is so captivating that any girl who begins the book is sure to finish it.

Mrs. Hurd's Niece. 12mo, illustrated, $1.25.

while the moral of the story from beginning to end is pure and elevating. It is one of the books which bear fruit in better lives and better deeds."— Chicago Standard.

The chapters devoted to Germany, describing household life, the condition of music, the life of American students in Berlin, the religious state of the country, and like topics are also exceedingly readable." — Christian Union, N.Y.

Family Flights. 8vo, illustrated, boards, $1.75; cloth, $2.25 each.

Recommended by the State Boards of several States for their public school libraries.

Fresh, piquant, graphic, full of delicate humor, marked by grace in diction and thorough scholarship, these books are not only unsurpassed, but unequalled by any books of similar character. They comprise:

A Family Flight Around Home.

This "Flight" around home takes in the principal towns and localities in Northern New York, and in the Eastern States, to which belong historical reminiscences of the Revolutionary War.

A Family Flight Over Egypt and Syria.

The family — four in number this time — make their flight from New York, landing at Bordeaux, and pushing on without stop to Marseilles, which they reach just in time to catch the steamer for Alexandria. At Alexandria they remain for two days, and then hurry on to Cairo. Here the Nile journey begins, and an entertaining record of each day's experiences is given. After their return to Cairo and a few days' rest they start for Suez, where they traverse the one hundred miles of the famous canal to Port Saïd, on the Mediterranean. From there they take the steamer to Jaffa, the most ancient town in the world. From there they push on to Jerusalem, and after an exhaustive exploration of the sacred city extend their travels to other historical localities of the Holy Land.

A Family Flight Through France, Germany, Norway, and Switzerland.

A month is spent in Paris, affording opportunity not only for general sight-seeing, but for study of the French language, the historic monuments, and the famous works of art. A winter in the cities of Germany gives a like opportunity for studying the language and history of Germany, and for enjoying a German Christmas. In Norway, "the land of the midnight sun," they meet with much that is novel and quaint, and in Switzerland they roam over the mountains associated with the name of William Tell.

A Family Flight Through Mexico.

This time the scene chosen for the flight of Miss Lejeune and her fellow-travellers is Mexico, where they visit the principal cities, see the noteworthy features, and learn some of the history of that Republic.

A Family Flight Through Spain.

In no respect inferior in interest or attractiveness to its predecessors. The country it describes is one of the most romantic and picturesque of any in Europe, and there is hardly a locality in its whole territory that has not some historic association to engage the attention of the traveller.

Glimpses of Great Fields. 12mo, $1.25.

The author's style is remarkably simple and direct, and the work is wholly free from dogmatism or assumption." — Boston Transcript.

Little twelve-year old Gregory Brace, the real hero, is driven from the only home he ever knew by an uncle's cruelty, and finds a refuge with some German Jews in New York City. His one ambition is to earn money enough to get to Paris, there to join his Uncle Florimond, a French nobleman, about whom he has always dreamed and pondered. Very unexpectedly, however, Uncle Florimond comes to him, and the boy becomes the protector of the man. The story is exceptionally fine in its portrayal of character.

MACDONALD, GEORGE, D.D., LL.D.

"He clenches the heart and soul of his reader with an iron grasp. Yet the power thus exerted, though the story is its vehicle, is independent of the story. It is in the man himself, and in the medium through which he beholds the world and its Creator, — things seen and unseen. He is pre-eminently realistic; not in the material, but in the spiritual, sense of the word. He looks directly and always into the soul of things, and that soul is to him the immanent God." — DR. A. P. PEABODY.

Dorothy Barnes, whom he marries and takes to the city, is a girl of high aspirations and loving character, and with little experience in the ways of the world. Both were professed and earnest Christians. They accepted the fact at the outset that it would be a struggle to live as their desires would tempt them to live on ten dollars a week. Their experiences during the first year are interestingly told, their little trials and temptations, common to all, are touched upon, and the story can but be helpful to readers who are in a like position." — Morning Star, Boston.

TROWBRIDGE, J. T.

Adventures of David Vane and David Crane (The). 12mo, $1.00.

A strong, homely, humorous story of the every-day life of American country-bred boys, by one who is acknowledged to be the best living story-teller in his peculiar vein. As good as anything Trowbridge has written.

Lost Earl (The); With Other Poems and Tales in Verse. 8vo, illustrated, $2.00.

This volume will be warmly welcomed by the admirers of Mr. Trowbridge — and they are legion. Although he is better known as a successful novelist and writer of juvenile stories, he is one of the truest of our American poets. His themes, though not ambitious, are always high, and his poems are marked by feeling, naturalness, and exquisite finish.

UPTON, MRS. HARRIET TAYLOR.

Our Early Presidents, Their Wives and Children. From Washington to Jackson. With one hundred and fifty portraits, pictures, and autograph letters. Quarto, gold cloth, $3.00.

The only work of the kind in which any attempt has been made to trace the history of the descendants of the American Presidents, or to give any picture of the fireside life in the White House. The six Presidents in the present volume are known as the "historic Presidents," and were those concerned in the early making of our Republic; the book, therefore, covers a most exciting and interesting period of our existence as a nation. It has been made thus full and complete and enriched from every possible source, that families may feel that they have an authentic volume, corrected from all errors and misstatements that have from time to time appeared in print — a book which they and their children and children's children may possess and regard as a valuable historical work.

The story of their pranks and their sorrows, their visits to Boston, and summers by the sea in Massachusetts, with the sombre war cloud hanging over all, and giving an undertone of pathos to the narrative, is charmingly told. Glimpses are caught here and there of President Lincoln, General McClellan, and other famous persons." — Worcester Spy.

NEW BOOKS—SEASON OF 1896.

THE ADMIRAL'S AID: A Story of the New Navy. By H. H. CLARK, Chaplain U. S. N. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Boys and girls all over the land will welcome this new volume in the "Joe Bently" series. In it, Chaplain Clark tells the story of life on one of the great cruisers of the White Navy, and continues the delightful sea experiences already so delightfully told in "Boy Life in the United States Navy" and "Naval Cadet Bently."

BIBLE BOYS AND GIRLS: How They Looked, Where They Lived, What They Did. By CALVIN DILL WILSON and JAMES KNAPP REEVE. Illustrated by George Foster Barnes. 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

This unique and original study of the boys and girls who occupy leading positions in the Bible story has been prepared by its writers after years of research. The young people whom it describes are studied from modern standpoints and in the light of modern information; but all this is made subservient to the Bible record, and the book, besides being intensely interesting, is one of the best aids to Bible study ever prepared for young people.

THE BOYS OF CLOVERNOOK: The Story of Five Boys on a Farm. By MARY B. BEAL. Illustrated by Etheldred B. Barry. 4to, cloth, $1.50.

A charming home story of five little boys who came, by one odd way or another, to the care of Aunt Rachel and Uncle John at Clovernook. Their doings and experiences, funny, serious, pathetic and exciting, make up the story, which is as fresh and breezy as it is strong and sympathetic. It is a book that young readers will return to with pleasure, again and again.

MOPSY: A Girl's Story. By KATE TANNATT WOODS, author of "Six Little Rebels," "Dr. Dick," etc. Illustrated by Schumacher. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A delightful story of a brave-hearted little city girl who took upon herself the care of her invalid mother, and, from keeping a boarding-house for working people, finally came to her own again. It is a charming story, full of all sorts of people, drawn in Mrs. Woods's delightful style, and certain to be as popular as her other stories.

THE GINGHAM BAG: A New England Story. By MARGARET SIDNEY. Illustrated by Amy Brooks. 12mo, $1.25.

This is Margaret Sidney's latest story, and is told in the quaint and realistic way characteristic of all her New England tales. No writer to-day more closely touches this element than does the entertaining author of "Five Little Peppers." The ups and downs of her country children in "The Gingham Bag" will be found enlivening and helpful.

GRACE HOLBROOK. By PANSY. Cloth, 50 cents.

A volume of charming short stories by this ever-popular author.

MAKING FATE. By MRS. G. R. ALDEN (Pansy). 12mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.50.

A new story by Pansy, in her earnest, direct and forceful style, in which the truths inculcated and the moral to be gathered are alike so skillfully treated in the telling that the reader is carried along irresistibly to the end, moved by the sentiment and held by the interest. "Making Fate" is the story of the spiritual development of certain young people who are acted upon by influences for good and by religious environments, against which they attempt to struggle, but in vain, for good must triumph.

THE CHILDREN'S HISTORY BOOK. Tales of the history of our native land, by the best writers of historical stories. 4to, illustrated, $1.50.

This artistic volume is devoted especially to the romance of American history. The stories are all bright, attractive, dramatic, absorbing, instructive and inspiring; and this beautiful book should make the boys and girls who read it better Americans and real patriots.

WORLD'S LITERATURE SERIES—Greek, Roman, English and American Literature Papers. By ELIZABETH ABBOTT. 4 vols., in box. Each volume, cloth, 50 cents.

An entertaining and instructive series of talks on the great writers of the world and their works.

THE PONKATY BRANCH ROAD. By SOPHIE SWETT. Illustrated by Bodfish. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

No story-teller of the present day is more popular with boys and girls than Sophie Swett, who has been for years one of the "star" contributors to St. Nicholas, Wide Awake, Harper's Round Table and the Youth's Companion. The three stories included in this new book are tales of country life and adventure, told by Miss Swett in her brisk, charming and attractive manner. This book will be a great favorite with all boys and girls.

RHYMES AND SONGS FOR MY LITTLE ONES. By ADOLPHINE HINGST and ESTHER RUSKAY. Profusely illustrated by G. W. Picknell. Small 4to, $1.50.

One of the most delightful and artistic books of rhymes and pictures for the nursery and the kindergarten. Certain to be a favorite with mothers and children.

THEIR VACATION. By PANSY. Cloth, 50 cents.

THROUGH THE FARMYARD GATE. Verses by EMILIE POULSSON. Illustrated by L. J. Bridgman. 4to, cloth, $1.25.

This is a new compilation of delightful verses by the author of the vastly popular "Nursery Finger Plays." It is a book that will be used in every kindergarten and nursery in the land, to the delight alike of parents and children.

THE TRUE STORY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN, The American. By ELBRIDGE S. BROOKS. Fully illustrated. 4to, cloth, $1.50.

This is the third volume in the "Children's Lives of Great Men," written by the author of "Historic Boys," "The Century Book for Young Americans," "The Story of the United States," etc. The book does not talk of war or politics, but tells for young Americans the real, true, sympathetic, wonderful story of one of the greatest men that ever lived,—Abraham Lincoln, the American.

WHAT THE DRAGON FLY TOLD THE CHILDREN. By FRANCES B. COURSEN. Illustrated by Amy Brooks. 4to, cloth, $1.50.

Something entirely new and original in children's books. It is designed to introduce young readers to the work of famous poets; but it is told in delightful story form, and deftly mingles love of nature with love of literature. It is profusely illustrated by charming designs and by portraits of the great writers to whom the dragon fly introduces the children of Edgehurst.

THE BOOKS OF 1897.

CAMP AND TRAIL. A Story of the Maine Woods. By ISABEL HORNIBROOK. Illustrated by George Foster Barnes. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A story for boys and girls who delight in adventure. But it is a peculiar book of adventure. Two English boys with their friend, an American collegian, go into the woods of Maine to hunt deer and moose. But they never kill wantonly or for mere sport, — only for food, or in self-defence. They study the ways of the great game of the woods, and breathe in health, inspiration, and noble thoughts with the odor of the pines and the air of lake and mountain. A famous guide and hunter is their factotum; and they make delightful acquaintances of boys, trappers, guides, and sportsmen, taking only the best results from their outing, and, with many exciting adventures, gaining health and experience.

THE READY RANGERS. A Story of Bicycles, Boats, and Boys. By KIRK MUNROE. Illustrated by W. A. Rogers. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A story of land and sea, — bicycling, canoeing, and all healthy athletic sports. A "set" of wide-awake village boys form a sort of club, designed at first for mischief, but drifting unconsciously, and of the members' own accord, into a company of helpers. But they have lots of fun and learn much. They are a fire brigade, a bicycle corps, a helping-hand society, an amateur dramatic association, a crew of practical sailors; in fact, as they call themselves, "Ready Rangers." The book bubbles over with action, fun, adventure, and plot, mingled with much practical information on things all boys should know.

MODERN FAIRYLAND. By ELCY BURNHAM. Illustrated by L. J. Bridgman. Small 4to, cloth, $1.25.

The amusing and charming story of an up-to-date fairy princess who, having been educated among end-of-the-century mortals, returns to Fairyland to reform, modernize, and improve it. This novel fairy-tale is a quaint conceit, delightfully told, and daintily illustrated, while it is full of incident, humor, and entertainment.

PHRONSIE PEPPER. The last of the Five Little Peppers. By MARGARET SIDNEY. Illustrated by Jessie McDermott. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This closing book of the now world-famous series of the "Five Little Pepper Books" will be enthusiastically welcomed by all the boys and girls of America to whom the Five Little Peppers have been dear ever since they first appeared in the "Little Brown House." This new book is the story of Phronsie, the youngest and dearest of all the Peppers. But Polly and Joel and Ben and Jasper and Mamsie, too, are all in the story.

THE TRUE STORY OF U. S. GRANT, the American Soldier. Told for young people by ELBRIDGE S. BROOKS. 4to, cloth, profusely illustrated, $1.50.

This fourth volume in the series of this author's Children's Lives of Great Men is a clear, concise, truthful, and inspiring account of the life of the greatest American soldier. But it is not alone a story of war and battle. It traces the development of this sturdy character from boy to man, from scholar to hero, from the tan-yard to the White House, — one of the most unique figures in the history of the world. A great book for every American boy and girl.

HIS FIRST CHARGE. By FAYE HUNTINGTON. 12mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.25.

This is a curious study of right and wrong as they face the young minister in "his first charge." He builds on right as well as righteousness; and though the evil he confronts is the corner-stone of the prosperity of the section in which he rules, and is the pet pride of some of his chief parishioners, he never flinches, and is helped into success by the best and bravest of his parish. Incidentally, it is a temperance story of the strongest and most practical kind.

ONCE UPON A TIME, and other Child Verses. By MARY E. WILKINS. Square 12mo, cloth. Illustrated by Etheldred B. Barry. $1.00.

A volume of poetry for children by one of the foremost American story-tellers. Here are fairy stories, ballads, nursery rhymes, jingles, everything, in fact, that a verse-loving child will enjoy. They are delicious in fancy, musical in rhythm, perfect in literary skill, deftly and charmingly illustrated by one in sympathy with the singer. A beautiful book, beautifully executed.

OVERRULED. By MRS. G. R. ALDEN (Pansy). 12mo, cloth, illustrated, $1.50.

This entertaining story, while complete in itself, is still, in its way, a sequel to, or a continuation of Pansy's searching romance "Making Fate." The study of Ralph Bramlett, — the man who conquers destiny, — of the pure-souled Marjorie and the Maxwell brothers, and of the other leading characters, is worthy of all praise, and will be deeply enjoyed by Pansy's host of readers.

THE GREAT ISLAND; or, CAST AWAY ON NEW GUINEA. Third volume in "Camp and Tramp" series." By WILLIS BOYD ALLEN. Illustrated, 12mo, cloth, 75cts.

A story of adventure in New Guinea, the greatest island in the world. Some of the boys, already familiar to readers of Mr. Allen's "Camp and Tramp" series, start for a trip around the world, but are shipwrecked in the China Sea, and drift upon the great island of New Guinea. They endeavor to tramp across the island; they have many exciting adventures and hair-breadth escapes by the way. They are captured by "head-hunters," discover gold-mines, engage in battle, and finally escape, and reach the settlement and their friends. Full of information about an almost unknown land, and intensely entertaining and absorbing.

TOM PICKERING OF 'SCUTNEY: His experiences and Perplexities. By SOPHIE SWETT. Illustrated by H. D. Young. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A story of a boy and his mates — boys and girls alike — in a country village and by the seashore. Tom is a bright, active, go-ahead fellow, who gains wisdom only by experience, and through sundry mishaps and perplexities, most of which are occasioned by his own heedlessness, or by differences of opinion between himself and his conscience. He is a pleasant fellow to know, however, and young readers will like him immensely before they sever acquaintanceship. His sister Luella, his partner in the printing enterprise, Macurdy Green, with Minty and Delilah and Pheny Jecks, and Milt, and all the other girls and boys in this bright and healthful story, will all be attractive and entertaining acquaintances. Sophie Swett always tells a good story, and this is one of her best.

Fatherland Books. Translated from the German, and among the best Sunday-school Library Books published.

The genuine religious sentiment, the touching pathos, the heartsomeness, as well as the dramatic interest of these stories of Hoffman, of Horn, and of kindred writers, are well known to the German reader; and we trust by our translation to make German thought better known to the youthful English reader, whom we hope to familiarize with scenes and incidents of the Fatherland.

A DESCRIPTIVE LIST

OF THE PUBLICATIONS OF

A. C. McClurg & Co.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

1897

OF

A. C. McCLURG AND COMPANY,

CHICAGO.

A Fearless Investigator. 12mo, 353 pages, $1.00.

In this fascinating novel the author has cleverly introduced the mysterious and the occult amidst the everyday affairs of a jolly company. The occultism is only a detail; and while adding zest to the story, it is not to be taken seriously, as the quite unexpected but thoroughly satisfactory dénouement shows. The development of the story is skilful and the language and style charming.

A. In Maiden Meditation. By E. V. A. 16mo, 217 pages, $1.00; half morocco, gilt top, $2.75.

Here is a pleasant little volume of essays, of the "Ik Marvel" school and style, although up to date in thought, quotations, and references. It is something of a revelation and a privilege for the "gentle reader" to be thus led by a gentle maiden hand into many of the confidences of her thoughts, both in society and in her boudoir. These thoughts are always chaste as well as bright. . . . The thoughts upon religion are sound and helpful. The argument against according women the right to propose is delicate, feminine, and conclusive. This bouquet of pretty essays is tied by these strings: "After the Ball," "After Dinner," "After Church," "After a Wedding," "After One Summer." — The Evening Telegram, New York.

ABBOTT. Alexia. By Mary Abbott. 12mo, 177 pages, 75 cents.

As a piece of exquisite literary art, this little book deserves the attention of those who can appreciate what is unsophisticated in fiction. — The Beacon, Boston.

ABBOTT. The Beverleys. A Story of Calcutta. By Mary Abbott. 12mo, 264 pages, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

This story introduces a more interesting set of characters than usually are found in the Anglo-Indian novel. . . . That pet and despair of novelists, the harum-scarum girl, is handled with remarkable success by the author, who writes throughout with good taste and with a quick eye for the picturesque. — The New York Herald.

ACKERMAN. The Price of Peace. A Story of the Times of Ahab, King of Israel. By A. W. Ackerman. 12mo, 390 pages, $1.00.

Ahab's reign suggests good materials for an historical story, with such romantic characters as Elijah, Jezebel, and Ahab, its strong contrasts of religion, and its stirring events. These have been well wrought together in this book. Micaiah is the hero, Obadiah is skilfully presented, and Elijah appears at intervals. We regard this as an excellent work, alike as a story, a study in character, and a picture of the time. — The Sunday Journal, New York.

ADAMS. The Poets' Praise. From Homer to Swinburne. Collected and arranged, with Notes, by Estello Davenport Adams. Crown 8vo, gilt top, 407 pages, $1.00 net.

It is excellent in execution and artistic in design. To literary people, works like these are not only of value, but most acceptable, and should be read by many. The extracts are intelligently arranged, and selected with judgment.

ARNOLD. The Life of Abraham Lincoln. By the Hon. Isaac N. Arnold. With an Introduction by the Hon. E. B. Washburne. Steel portrait. Seventh edition. 8vo, 471 pages, $1.50; half calf or half morocco, gilt top, $3.50.

It is the only Life of Lincoln thus far published that is likely to live, — the only one that has any serious pretensions to depict him with adequate veracity, completeness, and dignity. — The Sun, New York.

ARNOLD. The Life of Benedict Arnold: His Patriotism and his Treason. By the Hon. Isaac N. Arnold. With steel portrait. 8vo, 444 pages, gilt top, $2.50.

Mr. Arnold has accomplished his task wonderfully well. There is a striking absence of personal bias; and if he has succeeded in removing some of the blots upon the character of Benedict Arnold, the impartial reader cannot but think that he is justified, and respect him for his denunciation of treason, while he maintains that the traitor was a man, and possessed at one time of a noble character. The book is notable for the range of historical information displayed. — The Traveller, Boston

B. A Book of the Heavenly Birthdays. By E. V. B. Illustrated. 16mo, 218 pages, gilt top, vellum paper, in box, $1.50 net.

A collection of short verses on the rose taken from the literature of various nations. Many of the foreign verses are given in the original language, together with their English translation, the whole making a delightful anthology of this queen of flowers.

BACON. The Essays or Counsels, Civil and Moral, of Francis Bacon, Viscount St. Albans, Baron Verulam. Fourth thousand. Edited, with an Introduction and Notes, by Prof. Melville B. Anderson. 16mo, 275 pages, gilt top, $1.00; half calf or half morocco, gilt top, $2.50.

This is the only edition of Bacon I have ever seen which looks as though one would take pleasure in reading it through at a single sitting. No other would be likely to appeal so strongly to the person of literary proclivities and refined taste who reads merely for the pleasure it yields, or to acquire certain general notions of an author, his style, and times. — Prof. Albert S. Cook, of Yale University, in The Dial.

BACON. "Thoughts that Breathe and Words that Burn," from the Writings of Francis Bacon. See Elizabethan Library, page 10.

BALCH. The Bridge of the Gods. A Romance of Indian Oregon. By F. H. Balch. 12mo, 280 pages, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

The author is undoubtedly a literary artist of a high order. In the construction of the plot, in the description of scenery and character, in the analysis of motives, in the handling of the dramatic scenes, and in the use of historical material, he evinces great ability. . . . The story is not only pure in tone, but instructive, and teaches a noble lesson of self-sacrifice. — The School Journal, New York.

BALDWIN. The Book-Lover: A Guide to the Best Reading. By James Baldwin, Ph.D. Eleventh edition. 16mo, gilt top, 222 pages, $1.00; half calf or half morocco, gilt top, $2.50.

This is a delightful little book, and amply justifies both of its titles. The author writes in an entertaining and chatty style, not undignified by any means, and shows a thorough familiarity with the treasures of literature. His pages are adorned with choice bits of prose and verse culled with excellent taste from the best writers. — The Examiner, New York.

BARINE. Bernardin de St. Pierre. By Arvède Barine. With a Preface by Augustin Birrell. See The Great French Writers, page 12.

BAZAN. Russia: Its People and its Literature. From the Spanish of Emilia Pardo Bazan, by Fanny H. Gardiner. 12mo, 293 pages, $1.25.

It is acute in analysis, broad and sagacious in reasoning, appreciative of the peculiar qualities of Russian character, and remarkable for a penetration and aptness of expression in literary criticism which are rare in the case of critics of a nationality different from that of the author considered. — The Congregationalist, Boston.

BIART. The Aztecs: Their History, Manners, and Customs. By Lucien Biart. Authorized translation from the French by J. L. Garner. Third Thousand. Illustrated, 8vo, 343 pages, $2.00.

M. Biart is the most competent authority living on the subject of the Aztecs. He spent many years in Mexico, studied his subject carefully through all means of information, and wrote his book from the view-point of a scientist. The style is very attractive, and it has been very successfully translated. — The Pittsburg Chronicle.

BIGOT. A Foreign Match. By Madame Bigot (Mary Healy). 16mo, 246 pages, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

Few stories of the experience of vulgar American families abroad have been better managed in fiction than this. — The New York Herald.

BIKÉLAS. Tales from the Ægean. By Demetrios Bikélas. Translated by Leonard Eckstein Opdycke. With an Introduction by Henry Alonzo Huntington. 16mo, 258 pages, $1.00.

The stories are delightfully told; humor and pathos in turn call forth our admiration, and we owe our thanks to the publishers for having introduced this new author to the English reading public. — The Boston Times.

BLADES. The Enemies of Books. By William Blades, author of "The Life and Typography of William Caxton," "The Pentateuch of Printing," etc. Fully illustrated. 8vo. $3.50 net.

When we recently re-read this book we put it down with a vivid sense of the injury wrought by the enemies of books, but we almost forgave our enemies for the pleasure the story of their naughty deeds has given us. — The Antiquary.

BLAKELY. Fairy Starlight and the Dolls. By Elizabeth S. Blakely. Illustrated by Lucy F. Perkins. Small 4to, $1.00.

The cheerful history of a little girl's excursions into doll-land and her various experiences there, so vividly and pleasantly told that it will be sure to entertain all the small mothers of dolls who make the acquaintance of the adventurous Bianca and her family. — Atlantic Monthly.

BOISSIER. Madame de Sévigné. A Biography. By Gaston Boissier. See The Great French Writers, page 12.

BROWNE. Golden Poems. By British and American Authors. Edited by Francis F. Browne. Crown 8vo, 464 pages, full gilt, in box, $1.50.

I have taken pains to examine with some care your "Golden Poems." I am charmed to see how well you have proved that there was room for still another volume of poetical selections. I shall keep your book hereafter within reach; for it is pleasant to see, easy to hold, and refreshing to read. — Prof. Moses Coit Tyler, in letter to Editor.

BOUTELL. The Life of Roger Sherman. By Lewis H. Boutell. Crown 8vo, gilt top, 361 pages, $2.00.

It is a timely and valuable contribution to the biographical literature of the country, not only for the record it gives of a distinguished statesman of the eighteenth century, but for the contrasts it offers to some of the features of the present time. — The Nation, New York.

BOUVET. A Little House in Pimlico. By Marguerite Bouvet. Illustrated by Helen Maitland Armstrong. Small 4to, $1.50. (In press.)

This is another admirable example of Miss Bouvet's skill in drawing vivid pen-pictures of child-life. One of the leading characters is a wealthy old man of low origin, whose great ambition is to ally himself with the nobility, but whose chief scheme for this end is frustrated by the impulsive action of his nephew and heir, who hastily marries a lovely girl of comparatively humble station, and suddenly leaves her a widow with a little son. This boy is the hero of the tale, — a child whose affectionate, gentle, and manly character gradually work such a salutary change in the old man that he ceases to bear a grudge against the young widow, and makes the boy his heir.

BOUVET. Pierrette. By Marguerite Bouvet. Illustrated by Will Phillip Hooper. Small 4to, 203 pages, $1.25.

Miss Bouvet presents another of her dainty stories, which will, we think, confirm the hold she already has upon the story-readers and story-lovers of the day. Miss Bouvet in "Pierrette" has drawn a child-portrait which is almost ideal. True, she is a French child, which brings her into the realm of real flesh and blood. . . . The book is very fascinating, and Miss Bouvet certainly excels in this sort of writing. — The Churchman, New York.

BOUVET. A Child of Tuscany. By Marguerite Bouvet. Illustrated by Will Phillip Hooper. Small 4to, 207 pages, $1.50.

One of the prettiest stories of the year is "A Child of Tuscany." It tells of a little Italian boy, stolen in babyhood by a woman of the people, who brought him up and loved him. It begins when he is six years old and trying to sell flowers in the city. Miss Bouvet weaves a graceful tale about his adventures and his strange restoration to his own family, — one that keeps the interest throughout. — The Dial.

BOUVET. My Lady: A Story of Long Ago. By Marguerite Bouvet. Illustrated by Helen Maitland Armstrong. 16mo, 284 pages, $1.25.

The author of "Sweet William" has but to write, and she is read. There is no more universally beloved volume in the children's library, and none with more reason. "My Lady," a tender love story, is as charming as anything she has ever written. . . . It is exquisite. — The Chicago Herald.

BOUVET. Sweet William. By Marguerite Bouvet. Illustrated by Helen and Margaret Armstrong. Eleventh thousand. Small 4to, $1.50.

It is told with a grace of style that has not been surpassed in any of the juvenile fiction of the year. "Sweet William" is a charming little figure. The author has given her story a marked individuality that must ensure its wide popularity. — The Boston Advertiser.

BOUVET. Little Marjorie's Love Story. By Marguerite Bouvet. Illustrated by Helen M. Armstrong. Sixth thousand. Small 4to, $1.00.

The story is charmingly told. . . . The opening description of Little Marjorie gives evidence of the writer's style, — the crisp, telling manner which fixes the person or thing described as no other way can. It is enough to read just those few words to see the strong character whose love gives title to the story, and the grace of words with which the author is certainly gifted. — The Boston Times.

BOUVET. Prince Tip Top. A Fairy Tale. By Marguerite Bouvet. Illustrated by Helen M. Armstrong. Fifth thousand. Small 4to, $1.00.

It is a charming little fairy story. . . . Little folk will enjoy the tale hugely, and it will do them no harm. The style is simple and engaging, and the illustrations are all conceived in the spirit of the text, and daintily executed. — The Commercial Advertiser, New York.

Well as the name of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts is known in this country, we venture to say that there are few on this side the ocean to whom the facts in this little book are familiar. — Baltimore Telegram.

BURT. A History of Modern Philosophy (From the Renaissance to the Present). By B. C. Burt, Ph.D. 2 vols., crown 8vo, 689 pp., $3.00.

Admirable in form for the order, clearness, and compactness of presentation. For the rapid reader who cannot study philosophy at first hand, there is no book in the English language which would put him so quickly at the right point of view in order to see the meaning of systems and their relation to one another. — The Christian Register, Boston.

BYRON. Childe Harold's Pilgrimage: A Romaunt. By Lord Byron. See Laurel-Crowned Verse, page 21.

CARGILL. The Big Horn Treasure. A Tale of Rocky Mountain Adventure. By John F. Cargill. Fully illustrated. (In press.)

Young fellows in their teens may look far before finding better holiday reading than this book affords. There are four heroes, — all honest, guileless, hearty lads, — who form themselves into a company to undertake gold-mining in Colorado. One has some practical knowledge of mining, another has book-learning, and the remaining two have money; and, as they club these resources, avoid the society of "tough" characters, shun all kinds of vice, and work with a will, they enjoy life among the mountains, and in a few years return home with gold galore. The story is clean, healthy, and full of interest, and evidently written by one who is thoroughly familiar with the events and scenes of which he writes.

CARLYLE. On Heroes and Hero-Worship and the Heroic in History. By Thomas Carlyle. Finely printed and bound. 16mo, 286 pages, gilt top, $1.00; half calf or half morocco, gilt top, $2.50.

This marvellous piece of analysis, of satire, of portraiture and eloquence, is so vitally characteristic, so intensely Carlylean, that this one work would alone enable a reader to form a very just idea of its author's literary quality and of his intellectual standpoint. It is here offered in a single elegant and inexpensive volume.

CHENEY. That Dome in Air. By John Vance Cheney, Librarian of Newberry Library. 12mo, 236 pages, gilt top, $1.25.

"That Dome in Air" is the happy title of a volume of essays — "thoughts on poetry and the poets" — by Mr. John Vance Cheney. In the introductory chapter Mr. Cheney says some good and true things about the relation of poetry to life. He then proceeds to a series of special studies, their subjects being Emerson, Lowell, Whittier, Longfellow, Bryant, Whitman, Blake, Cowper, and Wordsworth. These papers are pleasant, discursive, almost familiar in tone, the reflection of a cultivated mind that loves literature and likes to talk over with friends the books it has been engaged upon. — The Dial, Chicago.

CHESTERFIELD. The Best Letters of Lord Chesterfield. See Laurel-Crowned Letters, page 19.

ENGLISH EPITHALAMIES. Edited by R. H. Case, 12mo, deckle edges, 198 pages, $1.75 net.

. . . The term Epithalamium, originally used to denote the song at the bridal chamber as distinguished from those sung during the wedding procession or at the feast, has long been attached to every kind of nuptial poem, provided it be supposed to precede or even immediately succeed the nuptial night, and concludes with a few good wishes more or less allusive to the occasion. The present collection is meant to include nearly all English poems so styled by their authors, or that may plausibly be classed as such — whether brief songs or longer poems, whether original or translated — to the close of the seventeenth century, with a few admissions from the early years of the eighteenth. — From the Introduction to the book.

FISHER. Out of the Woods. By George P. Fisher, Jr. 12mo, 270 pages, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

Mr. George P. Fisher, Jr., has written a lively and entertaining story of camp life, with the title — appropriate, literally and symbolically — of "Out of the Woods." . . . It is not so much the plot and construction of the narrative that are interesting, as the fresh piney atmosphere and gay incidents of the out-of-door life, of which the author writes with such evident zest. — Chicago Journal.

FLETCHER. When Charles the First was King. A Romance of Osgoldcross, 1632–1649. By J. S. Fletcher. 12mo, 418 pages, $1.50.

The story is capitally told. The descriptions are alert and vivid. There are a number of taking battle pieces, as, for instance, that of Marston Moor. Taken all in all, "When Charles the First was King," is good, bluff, honest fiction, and you will read it to the last page. — New York Commercial Advertiser.

GODKIN. Stories from Italy. By G. S. Godkin. Illustrated. 12mo. (In press.)

Whether these stories be viewed with regard to the excellence of their literary quality, the wholesomeness of their moral atmosphere, or the novelty and variety of their incidents, they can with perfect confidence be recommended to all classes of readers. They present to us human nature under environments altogether different from our own, yet touched with those feelings that make the whole world kin; they sustain the attention by means of swift, continuous action; and, unlike many short stories, they are written in a style that is both vigorous and chaste.

This is a very charming book. . . . Mrs. Griswold has a very happy faculty of weaving literary illustrations from the different authors into her descriptions of their domestic lives. GUNSAULUS. Songs of Night and Day. By Frank W. Gunsaulus, D.D. Small 4to, 144 pages, deckle edges, $1.50.

Eloquence of a very musical sort, picturesque thought, decorated with phrasing which sometimes fairly shoots forth rays of rainbow colors, and a pure, high aspiration informing every line, are the chief features of these poems. Dr. Gunsaulus is a man of power. He is not a great poet, but he is a "delightful doer of rhymes and rhythms," that go to the good parts of the understanding and sweetly linger there. — New York Independent.

GUNSAULUS. Monk and Knight: An Historical Study in Fiction. By Frank W. Gunsaulus, D.D. 2 vols., crown 8vo, $2.00.

Let no one attempt to read "Monk and Knight" at a sitting. That way madness lies. Take time. Pick it up at leisure moments, keeping the thread in the memory. Treat it as the author apparently means it, — less as a novel than as a vehicle for a mind full of the times and the ideas of the times. . . . It is more stirring than any history. There is no novel dealing with the dawn of the Reformation which gives us a succession of such splendid pictures. — The Sun, Baltimore.

GUNSAULUS. Phidias, and Other Poems. By Frank W. Gunsaulus, D.D. Large 12mo, 89 pages, gilt top, white and gold, with silk slip cover, in box, $1.25; 16mo, cloth, 75 cents.

A new poet enters the lists in the person of Frank W. Gunsaulus. His "Phidias" is a majestic poem, founded upon an incident of Athenian history about 430 B. C. It is followed by a group of sonnets, among which the "Statue of Gordon in Trafalgar Square" is pre-eminent for nobility of thought and the calm beauty of expression. — Philadelphia Public Ledger.

HALL. The Power of an Endless Life. By the Rev. Thomas C. Hall. 16mo, 190 pages, $1.00.

Having carefully read the book, our verdict is that it is able, timely, and eminently adapted to do good. The discussion of the various types of Christianity is very finely wrought out, and is suited to instructing and broadening those who read it. — Free Methodist, Chicago.

HARRIS. The Dignity of Man: Select Sermons by Samuel Smith Harris, D.D., LL.D., Late Bishop of Michigan. With a Memorial Address by Bishop Potter. Portrait. 12mo, 266 pages, $1.50.

For the two brief memorial papers alone the volume would be a very valuable treasure; but as followed by this noble series of sermons it is indeed a possession for all well-endowed libraries. — The Churchman, New York.

HEALY. Reminiscences of a Portrait Painter. By George P. A. Healy. With 21 half-tone illustrations after original paintings by Mr. Healy. 12mo, gilt top, $1.50; half calf or half morocco, $4.00.

HOLDEN. Audiences. A Few Suggestions to those who Look and Listen. By Florence P. Holden. Illustrated. 12mo, 222 pages, $1.25.

A book which will prove a boon to many readers who, not having time for extended investigation, yet desire assistance in the formation of judgment on things literary, musical, and artistic. Those who look at works of sculpture or architecture, at the works of the master painters or engravers, and those who listen to poetry, music, or literary work of any sort, will find much to assist them to a just estimate, much to help in laying a good foundation store of critical knowledge in this book. — The Post, Hartford, Conn.

HOLMES AND STEVENSON. Pictures from Nature and Life. Poems, by Kate Raworth Holmes. Illustrated by Helen E. Stevenson. Small quarto, $2.00.

One of the finest books of poetry that have appeared during the holiday season is "Pictures from Nature and Life." The verses are well written, and are filled with bright thoughts and fancies, while no less admiration will be bestowed on the artistic work. — The School Journal, New York.

HOY. Eating and Drinking. By Dr. Albert H. Hoy. 12mo, $1.50.

The book is written with such freedom from technicalities of medical science, and in a style so clear and direct, as to prove interesting and attractive reading. The directions are plain and practical. — Boston Evening Transcript.

HUDSON. The Law of Psychic Phenomena. A Working Hypothesis for the Systematic Study of Hypnotism, Spiritism, Mental Therapeutics, etc. By Thomson Jay Hudson, LL.D. Eleventh Edition. 12mo, 409 pages, $1.50.

Throughout Mr. Hudson is discreet, candid, and reverent. His pages impress the fact that there is a wide realm of truth bearing upon his subject in which but the most incipient discoveries have been made as yet, and into which earnest thinkers may well endeavor to penetrate further. — Congregationalist, Boston.

HUDSON. A Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life. By Thomson Jay Hudson, LL.D. 12mo, $1.50.

One of the most interesting works of the season is "A Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life," by Thomson Jay Hudson, whose previous book, "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," caused such a stir, and was so eagerly read. . . . The entire subject is treated in a firmly scientific manner; nothing of theory or vague arguing is admitted; and there is no doubt that the book will be as widely read and discussed as was its predecessor. — Chicago Daily News.

HUGO. William Shakespeare. Translated from the French of Victor Hugo, by Prof. Melville B. Anderson, M.A. 8vo, 424 pages, gilt top, $2.00; half calf or half morocco, gilt top, $4.00.

This volume is much more than a study of Shakespeare. All history, all theology, and all philosophy are grasped and handled with Titanic force, the Bard of Avon furnishing the text, or as we should say, the pretext, for magnificent speculation. — The Evening Bulletin, Philadelphia.

HUTSON. The Story of Language. By Charles Woodward Hutson, author of the "Beginnings of Civilization." 12mo. (In press.)

The general reader who has not hitherto given his attention to the study of language need have no fear of finding this "Story" dry. He will soon find that his attention is absorbed in the contemplation of language, not as a multitude of arbitrarily formed words, but as a living organism subject to the laws of evolution. The book gives abundant evidence that the author is acquainted with the best works on ethnology and philology; and, while well suited to the wants of the general reader, it would be an admirable text-book for schools and colleges.

JÆGER. Henrik Ibsen, 1828–1888: A Critical Biography. By Henrik Jæger. Translated from the Norwegian by William Morton Payne. Illustrated. Crown 8vo, 275 pages, gilt top, $1.50.

JORDAN. Science Sketches. By David Starr Jordan. New and Enlarged Edition. 12mo, 287 pages, $1.50.

Of Dr. Jordan's ability and his attractive manner of putting things, every one who has read any of these sketches is ready to testify. We have read some of them aloud to a party of young people on several occasions, and always found them to be listened to with great interest. Among essays on so-called popular science we know of none more charming. — Living Church, Chicago.

JULIAN. Political Recollections, from 1840 to 1872. By the Hon. George W. Julian. 12mo, 384 pages, $1.50.

Like Wraxall's "Historical Memoirs," this book infuses dry details with a personal interest, a biographical charm, which makes it by far the most attractive account of the anti-slavery reform that we have yet seen. — The Boston Transcript.

KEBLE-LIDDON. The Christian Year. By the Rev. John Keble. The St. Paul's Edition. With the Collects and a Series of Meditations and Exhortations selected from the works of the Rev. H. P. Liddon, D.D., D.C.L. Large 12mo, 453 pages, $1.50.

KEYSER. In Bird Land. By Leander S. Keyser. 16mo, 269 pp., $1.25.

This is one of those extremely agreeable books about birds which we read in winter and remember in summer. Mr. Keyser is a keen observer and a sympathetic reporter, and his book will be as fresh as cut flowers in the library. — The Independent, New York.

Mr. Keyser's poetic interpretation, as well as scientific insight, of bird-life, is not only highly attractive, but keen and original. . . . These descriptions are full of thought and tenderness, and are not smothered in artistic phraseology. . . . It is very evident that the author is a man of unusual observant powers, and possesses a true feeling of sympathy for all feathered creatures. The book is a poet's as well as a naturalist's. — The Journal of Education, Boston.

KIRKLAND. A Short History of Italy. By Elizabeth S. Kirkland. 12mo, 475 pages, $1.25.

The general reader will find in this book perhaps the best complete account of the events that have occurred in that peninsula whose priceless contributions to the world's civilization make its history of perennial interest. — The Dial, Chicago.

The author, who has written before short histories of England and France and of English literature, has a masterly method of grasping her subject, selecting the great characters and leading themes, and condensing the whole into an entertaining and instructive history. . . . Like Green, in his "Short History of the English People," she writes of the people. It is not a successive series of battles and descriptions of rulers, or dates of events, but an epitome of the spirit of the nation, with leaders in the front, the people as a background, and the whole a beautiful picture. — Inter Ocean, Chicago.

KIRKLAND. A Short History of English Literature for Young People. By Elizabeth S. Kirkland. With eleven portraits. 12mo, 398 pages, $1.50.

The story of English literature has rarely been more delightfully told than in these pages. Miss Kirkland goes boldly back to the dawn when English was first written, and not only tells about Caedmon, and Alfred, Chaucer and their contemporaries and followers, but gives a few short examples of their language, such as can most easily be interpreted. From this time down to Tennyson, Miss Kirkland has picked out the important writers and schools, and treats them in a way that should interest every young student, not only in the men, but in their writings even more. — The Journal of Education, Boston.

KIRKLAND. A Short History of England for Young People. By Elizabeth S. Kirkland. 12mo, 415 pages, $1.25.

"A Short History of England" is never trite, never dull; while its brief explanations of intricate systems — as, for example, the feudal system — and of great movements — such as the developments which led to the Restoration — are almost flawlessly clear. — The Evangelist, New York.

KIRKLAND. A Short History of France for Young People. By Elizabeth S. Kirkland. 12mo, 398 pages, $1.25.

Miss Kirkland has admirably succeeded in her "Short History of France," in making a book both instructive and entertaining. It is not a dry compendium of dates and facts, but a charmingly written history. Children can hardly fail to be interested in it; and if used as a text-book, it will be found by all competent teachers an important addition to the school library. — The Christian Union, New York.

KIRKLAND. Six Little Cooks; or, Aunt Jane's Cooking Class. By Elizabeth S. Kirkland. 12mo, 236 pages, 75 cents.

KNOWLES. To England and Back: A Winter Vacation. By Canon Knowles. Portrait. 16mo, 231 pages, $1.00.

Canon Knowles writes as he talks, and he is an entertaining conversationalist. These letters lose none of their freshness in book form. They are full of keen observations, graphically recorded. — The Churchman, New York.

KRASINSKA. The Journal of Countess Françoise Krasinska in the Eighteenth Century. Translated by Kasimir Dziekonska. With portrait and other illustrations. 16mo, gilt top, deckle edges, $1.25.

Not for a long time have we seen so entertaining a book as this. It gives with charming naïveté a picturesque account of high life in Poland at the middle of the last century, — a life still pervaded by feudal traditions and customs. . . . The countess writes with all the vivacity of a girl who does not suspect that the glamour will pass; but withal she has very keen eyes that see just those details which posterity is most interested in and rarely finds in formal histories. — The Nation.

Few men knew Lincoln more intimately than did Mr. Lamon. His "Recollections," edited by his daughter, form a fresh contribution to the feast of biographical and anecdotal materials grouped about the personality of that one among our Presidents of whose life the American people can never learn enough. — Review of Reviews.

LATIMER. Spain in the Nineteenth Century. By Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer. Handsomely illustrated. 8vo, $2.50. (In press.)

Mrs. Latimer has achieved a signal success in this, the latest one of her very popular nineteenth century histories, which gives information about the recent history of Spain that cannot be found in any other volume now accessible.

The history opens with the inglorious reign of Charles IV., and depicts with considerable minuteness the doings of Godoy, Duke of Alcudia, his incapable minister, commonly called The Prince of Peace. Next comes the turbulent reign of his son, Ferdinand VII., whom Napoleon displaced in favor of his own brother, Joseph. The struggles between absolutism and constitutionalism, between the Carlists and the Christinos, and the many revolutions during the reign of Isabella, make up a lively and interesting, though turbulent story. The history is brought down to the present day, and a chapter is devoted to Spain's colonies in South America.

The history of Cuba is brought down to the present year, and facts are revealed which would seem to show that Cuba would not be a desirable acquisition for the United States; but the author abstains from entering into the rights and wrongs of the present embroglio.

LATIMER. Italy in the Nineteenth Century. By Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer. Handsomely illustrated with twenty-four full-page half-tone portraits. 8vo, 436 pages, $2.50.

"Italy in the Nineteenth Century" is as fascinating as a romantic novel. Indeed every chapter is a romance from history made almost in our own day. It is hard to imagine a more difficult task than to compress into a single volume the richly varied stories of States and men and women that went to the making of the United Italy of to-day. The author says truly that "there is nothing more bewildering in the varied history of the nineteenth century than the story of Italy, and nothing at the same time more picturesque, soul-stirring, and affecting. — The Press, Philadelphia.

LATIMER. Europe in Africa in the Nineteenth Century. By Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer. Handsomely illustrated with twenty-three full-page half-tone portraits. 8vo, 456 pages, $2.50.

Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer has made a valuable condensation of the history of European exploration and conquest. She calls her book a volume of "short yarns," but this modest characterization does not do justice to the skilful summing up of achievement in the Dark Continent. The classification is by the great names of this history. Livingston, Stanley, Gordon, Arabi Pasha, Mehemet Ali, Emin Pasha, Cecil Rhodes, and others are the figures around which are grouped the stories of exploration, conquest, and development. — The Advance.

LATIMER. England in the Nineteenth Century. By Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer. Handsomely illustrated with twenty-five full-page half-tone portraits. 8vo, 452 pages, $2.50.

What a lot she knows! And how brightly she tells it all! We seem to be reading contemporaneous confidential letters to an intimate friend, written not for publication" by any means, — the style is too good for that, — but simply because the writer is interested, and never imagines the reader to be otherwise. . . . Two things are certain, — that Mrs. Latimer enjoyed writing this book, and that every one who reads it will share her enjoyment. It is admirably printed, as it deserves, and is illustrated with many good portraits. — The Mail and Express, New York.

LATIMER. Russia and Turkey in the Nineteenth Century. By Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer. Handsomely illustrated with twenty-three full-page half-tone portraits. 8vo, 413 pages, $2.50.

The work is an excellent one, its references and quotations being judiciously selected from reliable sources, and it is an interesting and readable story in its every part. Poland, Servia, Roumania, and other collateral governments are presented in their proper sequence, forming in the story a well-balanced and harmonious whole. The volume is praiseworthy in that it presents to us in concise and interesting form much information of value to us, the political opposite of the Muscovite form of government. The work is admirably printed, and is embellished with many full-page portraits which add much to the value of the text. — The Boston Times.

LATIMER. France in the Nineteenth Century, 1830–1890. By Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer. Beautifully illustrated with twenty-two full-page, half-tone portraits. 8vo, 450 pages, $2.50.

The story of "France in the Nineteenth Century" as told by Mrs. Latimer is as absorbing as a work of fiction. Indeed, for rapid changes of front, for picturesque situations, remarkable vacillation of public opinion, no period of European history is more remarkable than this. . . . For telling situations and for startling effects she certainly does not lack. . . . She is always picturesque. In her analysis of character she displays a thorough mastery of her subject. . . . Mrs. Latimer has written an extremely interesting book, which will be read with eagerness. — The Daily Advertiser, Boston.

Amid the great flood of ephemeral literature that pours from the press, it is well to be recalled by such publications as the "Laurel-Crowned Letters" to books that have won an abiding place in the classical literature of the world. — The Independent, New York.

The Best Letters of Horace Walpole. Edited, with an Introduction, by Anna Benneson McMahan.

Nowhere else can one get so readily, and almost with the pleasure of reading fiction, so good an interior view of English life at the most interesting period to American readers. — The Atlantic Monthly.

The Best Letters of Charles Lamb. Edited, with an Introduction, by Edward Gilpin Johnson.

The editor has aimed to include those letters which exhibit most fully Lamb's distinctive charm and quality; and the result is a volume of convenient size, containing ample material for the reader to spell out the power and lovableness of Lamb's nature, even if all other helps toward such understanding were wanting. — The Christian Register, Boston.

The Best Letters of Percy Bysshe Shelley. Edited, with an Introduction, by Shirley Carter Hughson.

There is a grace of expression, a beauty of sentiment, a touch of quick, deep feeling that mark them with the warmth and exquisite charm of the poet's soul, and make us wonder whether he excels in prose or poem. — Public Opinion, Washington.

The Best Letters of William Cowper. Edited, with an Introduction, by Anna Benneson McMahan.

Cowper might be called, with little exaggeration, the prince of letter-writers, so elegant and classic are his epistles. Apart from their literary charm, these letters give a more satisfactory picture of the man than any "Life" of him that has yet been written. — The Daily Advertiser, Boston.

LAUREL-CROWNED TALES.

16mo, cloth, gilt tops, per volume, $1.00; half calf or half morocco, per volume, $2.50. The eight volumes, in neat box, per set, $8.00; in half calf or half morocco, $20.00.

The publishers have shown excellent discrimination in their choice of material for their projected library of choice fiction, and they have certainly given these initial volumes a form that bespeaks the warmest praise. — The Beacon, Boston.

Abdallah; or, The Four-Leaved Shamrock. By Edouard René Lefebvre-Laboulaye. Translated by Mary L. Booth.

The story is one of perennial charm for both young and old, and is delightful in its lofty morality, and in its grace of style, its wit, and its imaginative delicacy. — The Saturday Evening Gazette, Boston.

Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia. By Samuel Johnson.

For a model of grave and majestic language, "Rasselas" will claim, perhaps, the first place in English composition. — The School Journal, New York.

Raphael; or, Pages of the Book of Life at Twenty. From the French of Alphonse de Lamartine.

A capital translation of one of Lamartine's fiery, impassioned, yet pure love stories. Already read by scores of thousands, it will have full as many readers in the future as it has had in the past. — The Republic, St. Louis.

The Vicar of Wakefield. By Oliver Goldsmith.

The principal characters in this tale are as immortal as any in Shakespeare, while its pictures of old-time persons and incidents in the rural life of England are delightful in a way that entices one to the reading of the story again and again. — The Standard, Chicago.

The Epicurean. A Tale. By Thomas Moore.

This curious romance is one of Moore's most interesting works. It has the characteristic brilliant power, finish, and style of the unrivalled song writer. — The Journal of Education, Boston.

Picciola. From the French of X. B. Saintine.

Nobody ever read this charming tale without surrendering quietly and entirely to its charm. — The Congregationalist, Boston.

It is a gem of the purest ray, a lovely idyl, whose strength is drawn from what is best in human life. — The Philadelphia Inquirer.

Paul and Virginia. By Bernardin de Saint-Pierre. Translated from the French by Professor Melville B. Anderson.

A new translation, very faithful and conscientious, yet lively, and presented in good idiomatic English. The translator has been careful to catch the author's spirit and meaning, and the reader will find the charm of this classic prose idyl wonderfully preserved.

LAUREL-CROWNED VERSE.

Edited by FRANCIS F. BROWNE. 16mo, cloth, gilt top, per volume, $1.00; half calf or half morocco, per volume, $2.50. The seven volumes, in neat box, per set, $7.00; in half calf or half morocco, $17.50.

All the volumes of this series are from a specially prepared and corrected text, based upon a careful collation of all the more authentic editions.

The special merit of these editions, aside from the graceful form of the books, lies in the editor's reserve. Whenever the author has provided a preface or notes, this apparatus is given, and thus some interesting matter is revived; but the editor himself refrains from loading the books with his own writing.—The Atlantic Monthly.

The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott.

"The Lady of the Lake" appeared in 1809. . . . It took the world by storm. The public was unanimous in its favor; the reviews vied with each other in celebrating this greatest poem of the age. — MRS. OLIPHANT, in The Literary History of England.

Childe Harold's Pilgrimage. A Romaunt. By Lord Byron.

Lalla Rookh. An Oriental Romance. By Thomas Moore.

Moore has shown, in the poetry selected for the "Irish Melodies," and more so in his celebrated "Lalla Rookh," how beautifully the feelings of a delicate passion can be conveyed in language of the most brilliant and powerful description. — Dibdin's Library Companion.

Idylls of the King. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson.

It is the epic of chivalry, the Christian ideal of chivalry which we have deduced from a barbaric source, — our conception of what knighthood should be, rather than what it really was; but so skilfully wrought of high imaginings, fairy spells, fantastic legends, and mediæval splendors, that the whole work, suffused with the Tennysonian glamour of golden mist, seems like a chronicle illuminated by saintly hands. EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN.

Paradise Lost. By John Milton.

The physical universe of Dante's great poem would go into a nutshell as compared with that to which the imagination must stretch itself out in "Paradise Lost." Vastness of scene and power of story together, little wonder that the poem should have so impressed the world. — DAVID MASSON.

The Iliad of Homer. Translated by Alexander Pope. 2 vols.

Pope's translation of the Iliad occupies a position in literature which no other has ever approached. It is the one poem of the kind that has obtained a reputation beyond the limits of the country in the language of which it is written, and the only one that has fascinated the imagination of the unlearned. — W. I. COMTHOPE.

The boys and girls of this book are just as natural as the boys and girls we know, just as interesting as the heroes and heroines of our best story-writers; and it is a pleasure to come across a book which can be so heartily recommended from several different points of view. — Christian Register, Boston.

Numerous autographs are interspersed throughout the book, as well as pictures of Nature's wonderful formations, fortresses, and churches in the many Spanish colonies. The conquest of Peru is admirably described, giving the reader a keener insight than the average history furnishes. Altogether the book is an instructive, well-written history of comparatively unexplored fields. — The Boston Journal.

This book is by far the best and most interesting account of the discovery of the Western world which has yet appeared. The author has not followed in the beaten track of his predecessors in this field of work, but has preferred to deal only with the accounts left by Columbus himself and those directly associated with him in his unique enterprise. . . . The book bids fair to rank as the standard popular account of the great Western voyage. — The Churchman, New York.

MAC KIE. The Last Voyages of the Admiral of the Ocean Sea. As related by Himself and his Companions. By Charles Paul Mac Kie. Crown 8vo, 518 pages, gilt top, $1.50.

This is altogether an interesting book and a valuable contribution to Columbian literature. . . . Mr. Mac Kie has devoted himself in this volume to the declining years of Columbus, and we are not overpraising his work when we say that it must be found in every well-selected library. MATSON. Knowledge and Culture. 12mo, 170 pages, 75 cents.

The author is the librarian of a great university library, and, from necessity, knows a good book. His volume, "Knowledge and Culture," is among the best works extant for practical use for literary workers. Doctor Antonio. By Giovanni D. Ruffini. 1 volume.

"Doctor Antonio" was the popular work of its gifted author, who wrote it in exile, after sharing the vicissitudes of the political troubles of his day in Italy. "The true and touching interest of the story would carry a reader through a much heavier medium. . . . The outline of the story is simple; it derives its charm from the grace and delicacy with which the details are filled in, and the strong individuality impressed upon every point of character, scenery, or incident."

Portraits of Women, by C. A. Sainte-Beuve. Translated by Helen Stott. Portrait. 1 volume.

The essays on Mesdames de Maintenon, de Sévigné, de Staël, and de la Fayette, with those on Marie Antoinette and Joan of Arc, can never be read in any form without delight and profit. — The Athenæum, London.

"It is Goldoni's supreme merit, and one of his chief titles to fame and glory, that he released the Italian theatre from the bondage of the artificial and pantomime performances that had passed for plays, and that, together with Molière, he laid the foundations of the drama as it is understood in our days."

MORLEY. Life and Love. By Margaret W. Morley. Illustrated. 12mo. 214 pages, $1.25.

Margaret Warner Morley has written in "Life and Love" a book which should be placed in the hands of every young man and woman. MORTON. Men in Epigram. Views of Maids, Wives, Widows, and Amateurs and Professionals. Compiled by Frederick W. Morton. 16mo. $1.00.

This is a companion volume to the same compiler's successful little book, "Woman in Epigram"; it follows the same plan, and is similarly spiced with wit, wisdom, and humor. Very many of the epigrams being from the pens of women, "the lords of the creation" may now have the pleasure of learning what is thought of them by the ladies.

MORTON. Woman in Epigram. Flashes of Wit, Wisdom, and Satire from the World's Literature. Compiled by Frederick W. Morton. 16mo, 212 pages, $1.00; half morocco, gilt top, $2.75.

Be the reader an enthusiastic worshipper of the sex or a woman-hater of the most pronounced type, he will here find some literary oracle who has aptly expressed his view. Epigrammatic, crisp, and highly amusing, with occasional crumbs of real wisdom, the little book will doubtless find many friends. — Public Opinion, Washington.

MÜLLER. Memories: A Story of German Love. From the German of Max Müller. See Tales from Foreign Lands, page 34.

MUSA PISCATRIX. Sixty Poems on the Renowned Art of Angling. Selected and prefaced by John Buchan. With six full-page etchings. 12mo, deckle edges, 134 pages, $1.50 net.

The editor claims for this work, not that it is a serious collection of all the fishing songs of merit in the English language, but only a small sheaf of some sixty shorter and choicer verses gleaned from a narrow field. Some of the poems are isolated stanzas, some have a touch of the humorous, others an admixture of the pathetic, — all, however, having "the fragrance and piquancy of poetry which busies itself with things not far removed from the tastes of human kind." The work is illustrated with six full-page etchings of characteristic angling scenes and places.

NEMEC. The Grandmother. A Story of Country Life in Bohemia. By Bozena Nemec. Translated from the Bohemian, with a Biographical Sketch of the author, by Frances Gregor, B. L. 12mo, 352 pages, $1.00.

A simple sketch of the daily life of a family of Bohemia, for whom the dear, pleasant grandmother is a fountain of cheer and good-will, and an ark of the quaint and pious traditions of the people. It is charming in its narrative, and full of local color and folk-lore. — The Literary World.

NESBIT: A Pomander of Verse. By E. Nesbit. With ornamental title-page and cover designed by Laurence Housman. 12mo, $1.00.

At the first opening of E. Nesbit's book of poems, the title and the division of the volume into sections, distinguished by such headlines as ambergris, lavender, rose, myrrh, bergamot, and so on, occur to one as perhaps a somewhat far-fetched poetic conceit; but when the book is laid aside, it is with the thought that, after all, it is not inappropriately named. It does not need the nose of a poet to detect and enjoy the delicate and varied aromas that arise from this delightful pot-pourri. Their charm is all-pervading; it is sweet and soothing, like the odor of flowers; or similar in its effects, we might suppose, to a stroll in the old Kentish garden of which the author sings. — The Edinburgh Scotsman.

NIXON. With a Pessimist in Spain. By Mary F. Nixon. Illustrated. (In press.)

Since Washington Irving "discovered" Spain that country has ever been a source of delight to the American tourist; and this by no means pessimistic book will enhance the pleasure of every traveller or non-traveller who reads it. Legends and tales are here abundantly and prettily combined with descriptions of cities, castles, and natural scenery; in short, the story brings in by the way all the history, myths, poetry, romance, and art that the traveller needs. The vast fund of information combined with the beautiful illustrations makes the book a most desirable acquisition either for the tourist or for the "tarry-at-home traveller."

PARKER. Familiar Talks on Astronomy, with Chapters on Geography and Navigation. By William H. Parker. 12mo, $1.00.

Even the little mathematical explanations on which he now and then enters become quite readable under his facile pen. — The Nation, New York.

PEARCE. Tales of the Masque. 16mo, 198 pages, 75 cents.

These "Tales of the Masque," by J. H. Pearce, are sketches rather subtle in spite of their serene simplicity. There is a kind of delicate poetry running through them; they are condensed, vivid, suggestive. Marked by a certain calmness, they yet startle one now and then with a deep tragic note. A keen knowledge of the influences uniting nature and humanity is in such sketches as "Joanna," "The Calling of the Sea," "The Valley of Vanished Sunsets," "The Sorcery of the Forest." Such witchery is hard to convey in words, and these will not easily detach themselves from the memory. — The Critic, New York.

PEEL. Polar Gleams. An Account of a Voyage on the Yacht "Blencathra." By Helen Peel. Illustrated. 8vo, 211 pages, $1.00.

A number of considerations lent romance and picturesqueness to this voyage. The destination was remote, the route novel, the object practical, the company pleasant, the experience untried, and the result successful. Miss Peel has the distinction of being the first European woman to make this trip, and her account of it is entertaining and instructive reading. — The Literary World, Boston.

PHELPS AND NORTH. The Bailiff of Tewkesbury. By C. E. D. Phelps and Leigh North. Illustrated. 12mo, 199 pages, 75 cents.

The authors are to be congratulated upon the achievement of a decided success. The time of the story is three hundred years ago, the scene is laid in Shakespeare's country at Tewkesbury and Stratford, and Shakespeare himself, as a lad of twenty or so, is one of the characters in the opening portion of the narrative. The tale has plenty of incident, the dialect is well done; and altogether it is, in its way, a most ingenious and entertaining literary performance. The book is effectively illustrated. The Beacon, Boston.

POETRY OF THE GATHERED YEARS. Compiled by M. H. 16mo, 169 pages, white vellum cloth, $1.00.

It is a lovely, charming, dear, delightful book. . . . The poems selected are, almost without exception, admirable and worthy of their place. . . . It should be said that this book has been made as beautiful as its contents deserve; and we are sure that if those who are seeking a lovely gift for an aged friend, or one beginning to grow old, would look at this, they would be satisfied that nothing better could be found. — The Christian Register, Boston.

In every case the original Greek text is given, together with the best translation which existed or could be procured.

Among the more pretentious biographies of Lincoln, this simple story stands forth by the strength of its merits as the best yet written for children and young people. It bears marks of much care, and is written in clear, scholarly English. . . . It was a good work to write this book; it will be one to which children will turn again and again. — The Evening Transcript, Boston.

RABB. National Epics. By Kate Milner Rabb. 12mo, 398 pages, $1.50.

The last two of these items make the book valuable as a work of reference. The author has performed her heavy task with such diligence and literary ability as will certainly win much credit to herself, and be the means of edifying and entertaining many a grateful reader.

This is an excellent guide to a knowledge and appreciation of the world's great epic poems. The Hindu, Greek, Roman, Finnish, Saxon, German, French, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, English, and Persian epics of distinctively national importance are all represented. . . . The volume, a large one, is a collection of out-of-the-way odds and ends, relating to subjects that are constantly spoken of, but of which very many people do not understand the meaning. In gathering these floating items and giving them a permanent form, Mr. Reddall has performed a genuine service, and his book is one that can be read with profit and amusement at any odd moment, and is of permanent value as a handbook of reference.— The Saturday Evening Gazette, Boston.

The collection of literary curiosities is large and entertaining in a high degree. What might by another writer have been made a mere dry-as-dust compilation is by Mr. Roberts infused with spirit and life. In form the book is really delightfully choice. SARGENT. The Campaign of Marengo. With Comments by Herbert H. Sargent, author of "Napoleon Bonaparte's First Campaign." Crown 8vo, 240 pages, with maps, $1.50.

After the very high encomiums passed by the press and by the highest military authorities both in this country and in Great Britain on "Napoleon Bonaparte's First Campaign," it is hardly necessary to say more about this new work by the same author than that it is marked by the same conspicuous merits which distinguished the former. It is compact, direct, acute, and singularly lucid. It awards no praise which it does not amply justify, and ventures no criticism which it does not even more amply support. Its narrative is admirably clear and understandable, and its commentary is conclusive as well as logical.

SARGENT. Napoleon Bonaparte's First Campaign. With comments by Herbert H. Sargent, First Lieutenant Second Cavalry, United States Army. Crown 8vo, 231 pages, with maps, $1.50.

I have been reading Lieut. Sargent's book on Napoleon's first Italian campaign all the morning, and was much interested. I hope it may be studied closely by all our young officers, for it is easily understood and tells its own story. May I ask you kindly to thank Mr. Sargent for his kindness in sending me a copy. — LORD WOLSELEY, Commander-in-Chief of the British Army, in a letter to the publishers.

So carefully and accurately written is this volume, that the London Times pays our compatriot the compliment of begging him to continue his history through the other campaigns of Napoleon. — The Outlook, New York.

SAY. Turgot. By Léon Say, of the French Academy. See The Great French Writers, page 12.

SCHMID. The Theories of Darwin, and their Relation to Philosophy, Religion, and Morality. From the German of Rudolf Schmid, by G. A. Zimmermann, Ph.D. 12mo, 410 pages, $1.50.

We pronounce it the best and strongest discussion of the relations between science and religion now existing in an English dress. — The Christian Advocate, New York.

SCOTT. The Lady of the Lake. By Sir Walter Scott. See Laurel-Crowned Verse, page 21.

SEVEN DAYS AFTER THE HONEYMOON. By S. A. B. Small quarto, 52 pages, gilt edges, tied with cord, in a box, 50 cents.

SEELEY. The Spanish Galleon. Being an Account of a Search for Sunken Treasure in the Caribbean Sea. By Charles Sumner Seeley. 12mo, 290 pages, $1.00.

This story is one of the best of its kind ever printed. Its moral tone is excellent, the love episode is handled discreetly, and the reader will see the value of self-possession and energy. We commend it heartily to the boys. — The Congregationalist, Boston.

SEELEY. The Lost Canyon of the Toltecs: An Account of Strange Adventures in Central America. By Charles Sumner Seeley. 12mo, 275 pages, $1.00.

This Crusoe-like tale is told in so straightforward a fashion that one is half convinced of its truth, and follows the Northerners through their hairbreadth escapes with active interest. It is a book which will make any boy breathless with excitement. — The Critic, New York.

SEYMOUR. Government & Co., Limited. An Examination of the Tendencies of Privilege in the United States. By Horatio W. Seymour. 16mo, 148 pages, 75 cents.

It is like the blast of a trumpet. An "examination of the tendencies of privilege in the United States," it is clear, forcible, and penetrating. Mr. Seymour does not compromise with his subject nor with his opponents; his blow is straight from the shoulder, and his courage is prodigious. It is just the kind of document we need in this country, — one which looks a political question squarely in the face, and judges it as a question of right, and not as a question of expediency. — The Critic, New York.

SHELLEY. The Best Letters of Percy Bysshe Shelley. See Laurel-Crowned Letters, page 20.

SHELDON. The Crucifixion of Phillip Strong. By Charles M. Sheldon. 12mo, 267 pages, $1.00.

It is an argument, a plea, a panorama, and a story all in one. . . . . The ideal which it upholds should be accepted by all true believers. . . . . The story is one of intense vigor and pathos. It will secure a very wide reading, and it should make a deep impression upon every reader, and produce lasting fruit. — The Congregationalist, Boston.

SHELDON. Notes on the Nicaragua Canal. By Henry I. Sheldon. With maps and illustrations. 8vo, 214 pages, $1.25.

This is a practical business man's view of what may soon become the battlefield of one of the most important problems of modern times. . . . A reading of Mr. Sheldon's graphic and fact-bristling pages, embellished handsomely with the specimens of his industrious camera, and bearing so many evidences of sincerity, is certainly very convincing. Good maps down to date, and a clear, detailed consideration to the main objections likely to be brought against the stupendous project, make this a timely and very readable volume. — Daily Globe, Boston.

SHEPPARD. Charles Auchester. By Elizabeth Sheppard. With an Introduction and Notes by George P. Upton, author of Upton's Handbooks on Music. Two portraits of Mendelssohn. 2 vols., gilt tops, $2.50.

We need hardly remind any one that the story was written as a memorial to Mendelssohn, the composer, and is a remarkable story merely as such, while it also is a classic among students and interpreters of music. This is a particularly neat and tasteful edition, and Mr. Upton, the editor, is an eminent musical expert. — The Congregationalist, Boston.

SHEPPARD. Counterparts. By Elizabeth Sheppard. With an Introduction and Notes by George P. Upton. With portraits. 2 vols., 12mo, gilt tops, $2.50.

The story, on its first appearance, nearly forty years ago, made a great sensation and achieved a remarkable popularity. Its merits are marked and brilliant, and the story, despite its age, and the great change that fiction has undergone since it was written, remains a work that can still be read with interest and pleasure. — The Saturday Evening Gazette, Boston.

SHEPPARD. Rumour. By Elizabeth Sheppard. With an Introduction and Notes by Harriet Prescott Spofford. With portraits. 2 vols., 12mo, gilt tops, $2.50.

Miss Sheppard's theme is always music, — music seeking expression in creative power, as in Mendelssohn, the hero of "Charles Auchester," and in Beethoven, the hero of "Rumour;" and music as a power of deep and spiritual influence over persons peculiarly susceptible. . . . One of the greatest charms of Miss Sheppard's books is their spontaneity. — Journal of Education.

Bishop Spalding has struck a note which must vibrate in every heart which loves the glory of Christianity and the progress of humanity. . . . "Education and the Higher Life" is a stimulant, a tonic, a trumpet-call to higher things, a beacon light for better days. — The Catholic Union and Times.

SPALDING. Things of the Mind. By the Rt. Rev. J. L. Spalding, Bishop of Peoria. 12mo, 237 pages, $1.00.

Bishop Spalding is already known to our literature as a poet with a genuine gift of song. . . . He stands first in the Roman Catholic hierarchy of America as the representative of literary culture. . . . Out of a disciplined and fertile mind he pours forth epigrammatic sentences and suggestions in a fashion which recalls Emerson. . . . He is always and everywhere American, and the last chapter is at once wisely critical and soundly laudatory of our country. — The Sunday School Times.

SPALDING. Means and Ends of Education. By the Rt. Rev. J. L. Spalding, Bishop of Peoria. 12mo, 232 pages, $1.00.

Bishop Spalding comes nearer being an essayist in education than any other American. He has that rarest of educational gifts, — the ability to throw light brilliantly, and yet softly, making his paragraphs both bright and mellow, all without "preaching," without pedantry, and without being cranky . . . When we agree with him, it is delightful, and when we differ, we respect his convictions, honor his courage, and enjoy his spirit. — Journal of Education, Boston.

SPALDING. Songs, chiefly from the German. Translated by Bishop Spalding. 16mo, gilt top, $1.25.

It is seldom that one finds translations of poetry so well done as these contained in this volume presented by Bishop Spalding. There is sympathy in his labor. He has gathered the flowers from the German garden of song and translated them, giving a literal rendering, but still preserving the melody, — an art which was thought to have been lost with Longfellow. — The Chicago Record.

SPENSER. The Poet of Poets. The Love-Verse from the Minor Poems of Edmund Spenser. See The Elizabethan Library, page 10.

STARRETT. Letters to a Daughter. By Helen Ekin Starrett. New and enlarged edition, with portrait. 16mo, 148 pages, 75 cents.

STARRETT. Letters to Elder Daughters, Married and Unmarried. By Helen Ekin Starrett. 16mo, 165 pages, 75 cents.

The author has brought thoughtfulness, practical discernment, and wide knowledge to the consideration of problems that relate to the home and to the home-keeper. . . . There is a large amount of experience, and a still larger amount of common-sense and wholesome suggestion, in these healthful pages. — The Christian Register, Boston.

STARRETT–ALLISON. The Future of Educated Women, by Mrs. Helen Ekin Starrett; and Men, Women, and Money, by Mrs. Frances Ekin Allison. 16mo, 75 pages, 50 cents.

The two essays deal intelligently and practically with the great question of employment for women, the care of property, etc. They are eminently sensible and helpful in their general suggestions, and will do real good. — The Congregationalist, Boston.

STEVENS. How Men Propose: The Fateful Question and its Answer. Love-Scenes from the Popular and the Classic Works of Fiction. Collected by Agnes Stevens. 12mo, 343 pages, $1.00.

Since "all the world loves a lover," this book ought to find many interested readers. The range of its choice is wide, and includes nearly every modern writer of fiction. — The New York Evangelist.

SWIFT. Love's Way, and Other Poems. By Martin Swift. (In press.)

"Love's Way" is a touchingly pathetic story of the course of true love, which, though it does not run smooth, ends in this case happily. The form into which the tale is cast is that of a series of songs, or short poems, composed in accord with the ever-varying moods and hopes and fears of the lover. It evinces remarkable facility of versification, sympathy with Nature and human nature, and power to awaken responsive chords in the heart of the reader. Both the leading poem and the others afford evidence that they come from the hand of one who is not a mere verse-maker, but a man of original thought.

Memories. A Story of German Love. Translated from the German of Max Müller by George P. Upton. Twenty-sixth thousand.

The touching story of "German Love," whose tender pathos lacks only the harmonies of verse to make it one of the most exquisite poems in the German language, is here reproduced in an English costume of chaste and delicate beauty. — The New York Tribune.

Graziella. A Story of Italian Love. Translated from the French of Alphonse De Lamartine, by James B. Runnion. Twelfth thousand.

The purity, the sadness, and the gentleness of the tale leave an impression upon the mind of having listened to a strain of sweet music. The literary style is faultless in its grace. — The Christian-at-Work, New York.

The whole spirit and atmosphere of the story is fresh and bracing; and we promise the readers of the book a new treat. — The Independent, New York.

Madeleine. A Story of French Love (crowned by the French Academy). Translated from the French of Jules Sandeau by Francis Charlot.

Jules Sandeau's "Madeleine" is a love story that approximates very closely to perfection. It is a theme of exceeding purity and beauty, treated by an artist whose style is as finished and delicate as it is firm, and whose French is a model of elegant simplicity.—The Philadelphia Times.

Marianela. A Story of Spanish Love. Translated from the Spanish of B. Perez Galdos by Helen W. Lester.

The story is attractive for its purity, sweetness, and pathos. It is worthy of its place in this rare collection of representative national classics. — The Evening Telegram, New York.

Cousin Phillis. A Story of English Love. By Mrs. Gaskell.

It is as pure and noble a love story as ever was written. It is a good one to put into the hands of young girls, for it refines and elevates their youthful ideals. — Public Opinion, Washington.

Karine. A Story of Swedish Love. Translated from the German of Wilhelm Jensen, by Emma A. Endlich.

This latest addition to "The Tales from Foreign Lands" Series is a thrilling tale of the time of Gustave Vasa, and mingles delightfully the sweet love story of Karine of Sweden with the warlike deeds of that eventful time.

TAYLOR. Is Protection a Benefit? A Plea for the Negative. By Prof. Edward Taylor. 12mo, 274 pages, $1.00.

The book is certainly characterized by marked ability, by evidently careful study of the whole subject; and is written in a style so manly and bright that one will be sure to read it with pleasure. — The Standard, Chicago.

TAYLOR. With Edge Tools. By Hobart Chatfield-Taylor. 12mo, 315 pages, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

It is the cleverest society novel which has come out of the West. . . . Taken as a whole it is a far abler story than several of its kind that have been written in the East by more practised pens. — The New York Herald.

TAYLOR. An American Peeress. By Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor. 12mo, 293 pages, $1.00.

In it is portrayed an American woman in all the brilliancy of her truest colors, and with a character whose strength and honesty, together with a natural grace, make her worthy to adorn any title to which she might aspire. . . . It is in every respect a charming story. — The Baltimore American.

TAYLOR. On the Red Staircase. By M. Imlay Taylor, 12mo, $1.25.

"On the Red Staircase" is a well-planned and well-written story of seventeenth century Russia. The scene is Russia, and the time is the exciting period of the childhood of Peter the Great. One gets an extremely vivid picture of the anarchy into which Russia was plunged by the contending factions that sought for power after the death of the Tsar Alexis, and is at the same time privileged to follow the course of a romantic love-story, quite absorbing in its interest. — The Dial, Chicago.

A strong, bracing story it is, and one which gives us a clear view of an exceptionally interesting epoch in Russian history. — Herald, New York.

TENNYSON. Idylls of the King. By Alfred, Lord Tennyson. See Laurel-Crowned Verse, page 21.

THACKERAY. The English Humorists. By William Makepeace Thackeray. 16mo, gilt top, $1.00; half calf or half morocco, gilt top, $2.50.

These celebrated lectures, delivered by their author in England, Scotland, and America, and first published in 1853, have ever held a place in the front rank of English literature, and have won the admiration of all who have read them. This they do, not only because of their unaffected simplicity and naturalness, but also because they give an idea of the great English writers and humorists, such as Swift, Pope, Fielding, and Goldsmith, that can nowhere else be obtained.

THOMPSON. The Humbler Poets: A Collection of Newspaper and Periodical Verse. 1870 to 1885. By Slason Thompson. Crown 8vo, 459 pages, gilt top, $2.00; half calf or half morocco, gilt top, $4.00.

The high poetic character of these poems as a whole is surprising. As a unit, the collection makes an impression which even a genius of the highest order would not be adequate to produce. . . . Measured by poetic richness, variety, and merit of the selections contained, the collection is a rarely good one, flavored with the freshness and aroma of the present time. — The Independent, New York.

THURBER. Quaint Crippen, Commercial Traveler. By Alwyn M. Thurber. 12mo, 253 pages, paper, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

Quaint Crippen is a gossipy drummer for a Boston house. He makes friends in the railroad cars, after the manner of his kind, and is an all-around good fellow. He is pleasant, and so is the book. You will feel all the better for reading "Quaint Crippen," because it sketches human nature cleverly. — Halifax (N. S.) Daily Echo.

THWAITES. Historic Waterways: Six Hundred Miles of Canoeing down the Rock, Fox, and Wisconsin Rivers. By Reuben Gold Thwaites, Secretary State Historical Society of Wisconsin. With two maps of the routes, and a table of distances. 12mo, 298 pages, $1.25.

Mr. Thwaites is an enthusiastic canoeist, combining in "Historic Waterways" historic lore and vacation pleasuring in a very agreeable manner. The "historic waterways" are the Rock, Fox, and Wisconsin Rivers. He has traversed them all from fountain-head to mouth in his canoe, and what he does n't know about them, present and past, is hardly worth knowing. — The Epoch, New York.

THWAITES. Our Cycling Tour in England. From Canterbury to Dartmoor Forest, and back by way of Bath, Oxford, and the Thames Valley. By Reuben G. Thwaites. Illustrated. 12mo, 315 pages, $1.50.

. . . The descriptions are graphic, and show the close and loving observer of Nature and man in every page; and they are worthy of the pen that gave us "Historic Waterways." — The Saturday Evening Gazette, Boston.

TOMLINS. The Child's Garden of Song. Selected and arranged by William L. Tomlins, Musical Director of the Apollo Club, of Chicago, and of the Children's Choruses of the World's Fair. With beautiful colored designs by Ella Ricketts. Quarto, $2.00.

LIMITED EDITION. Extra gilt and gilt edges, each copy signed by Mr. Tomlins. $3.00 net.

The songs are all such as jingle with the innocent fancy of childhood; and one can picture the little ones crowding around their mother or elder sister as she sits at the piano and plays the accompaniment for their fresh young voices. — New York Evening Advertiser.

The songs have been selected and arranged by Mr. William L. Tomlins, whose remarkable success with children's classes is well known. It is not unsafe to assert that it is by far the most beautifully illustrated book of its class ever published in the United States. Musically it takes the same high rank. No more exquisite gift for the young people could be selected. — MR. GEORGE P. UPTON, Chicago Tribune.

TOPELIUS. THE SURGEON'S STORIES.

Translated from the Swedish of Prof. Z. Topelius. 12mo, 75 cents a volume. The six volumes in neat box, $4.50.

As many of Scott's novels give vivid and truthful pictures of English history, so these stories present a galaxy of historical portraits more life-like than any drawn by the historian. — The San Francisco Chronicle.

The author has a genuine enthusiasm for his subject, and stirs up his readers' hearts in a lively manner. The old times live again for us; and, besides the interest of great events, there is the interest of humble souls immersed in their confusions. "Scott, the delight of glorious boys," will find a rival in these "Surgeon's Stories." The Christian Register.

Times of Gustaf Adolf: An Historical Romance of the Times of the Thirty Years' War.

Its vivid descriptions and thrilling episodes commend it to the lovers of romance, while its historical truthfulness and charming style make it attractive to literary readers of all classes. "The Story of the Thirty Years' War" is a fascinating chapter in history, and Topelius writes of it with great imaginative power and charm of style. — The Journal of Education, Boston.

Times of Battle and of Rest: An Historical Romance of the Times of Charles X. and Charles XI.

It gives a stirring and graphic account of the conquests of Charles X. in Poland and Denmark, . . . and the more peaceful but important events of the reign of Charles XI. . . . Topelius deals with the rich material before him like a true master of historical romance. — Good Literature, New York.

Times of Charles XII.: An Historical Romance of the Times of Charles XII.

Under an enthusiasm caught from the study of the times of which he writes, with a rare tact for an artistic grouping of characters, and with an equally rare talent for powerful delineation and description, Professor Topelius has given us a work which will both delight and instruct the reader. — The Interior, Chicago.

Times of Frederick I.: An Historical Romance of the Period succeeding the Reign of Charles XII.

It is simply wonderful, the way in which the attention is arrested and held, and the varied and apparently inexhaustible resources which the writer has at his command. He tells us of the actions and sayings of kings and peasants with the same unsurpassed ease and naturalness, with an air of vraisemblance, as the French would say, which is very enchanting. — The National Baptist, Philadelphia.

Times of Linnæus: An Historical Romance of the Times of the Great Naturalist Linnæus.

The author has proved himself a master of the art of combination, or of putting old things into new forms, and exhibiting them in new relations and associations. His stories are so full of stir and movement, and events are described with such spirit and minute circumstantiality, as to practically disarm the critic and convert him into an absorbed reader. — The Chicago Times.

Times of Alchemy: An Historical Romance of the Dawn of the Gustavian Period of Swedish History.

"The Surgeon's Stories" are at an end. . . . The story of the nation closes with the beginning of the present era of peace and stability, while the careers of the heroes and heroines who have helped to tell it, terminate where all well-ordered fictitious careers should, — at the marriage altar. The completion of "The Surgeon's Stories" forms an event in modern literature. — The Buffalo Express.

TOLD IN THE VERANDAH. Passages in the Life of Colonel Bowlong, set down by his Adjutant. 12mo, 271 pages, $1.50.

These stories of the impossible in Indian life first appeared in the "Madras Mail." One on the naked tiger was reprinted and widely copied in American newspapers; the others are like it, and they are all told by the wonderful Colonel Bowlong, alias Munchausen. The colonel relates his adventures and experiences with an abandon and defiance of nice accuracy of truth which adds immensely to the interest of the story in hand. — Philadelphia Press.

UPTON. HANDBOOKS ON MUSIC.

The Standard Operas: Their Plots, their Music, and their Composers. A Handbook.

Among the multitude of handbooks which are published every year, and described by easy-going writers of book-notices as supplying a long-felt want, we know of none which so completely carries out the intention of the writer as "The Standard Operas," whose object is to present to its readers a comprehensive sketch of each of the operas contained in the modern repertory. — R. H. Stoddard, in The Mail and Express, New York

The summaries of the plots are so clear, logical, and well-written that one can read them with real pleasure, which cannot be said of the ordinary operatic synopses. The Nation, New York.

The Standard Oratorios: Their Stories, their Music, and their Composers. A Handbook.

Like the valuable art handbooks of Mrs. Jameson, these volumes contain a world of interesting information, indispensable to critics and art amateurs. The volume under review is elegantly and succinctly written, and the subjects are handled in a thoroughly comprehensive manner. — Public Opinion, Washington.

The Standard Cantatas: Their Stories, their Music, and their Composers. A Handbook.

There is a study of the cantata in its various forms, from its early simple recitative or aria style down to its present elaborate construction. The selections include quite all of the cantatas that rank high in merit. It is the only handbook and guide for musicians and their friends, and is as valuable as either of the two admirable works preceding it. — The Boston Globe.

The Standard Symphonies: Their Stories, their Music, and their Composers. A Handbook.

The usefulness of this handbook cannot be doubted. Its pages are packed full of these fascinating renderings. The accounts of each composer are succinct and yet sufficient. The author has done a genuine service to the world of music-lovers. The comprehension of orchestral work of the highest character is aided efficiently by this volume. — Public Opinion, Washington.

UPTON. Woman in Music. By George P. Upton. 16mo, $1.00; half morocco, gilt top, $2.75.

Mr. Upton, in a series of comparatively brief chapters, has given us a kind of interior history of the domestic and heart relations of such composers as Bach, Handel, Beethoven, Mozart, Schumann, Chopin, and Wagner, filling in the larger sketches of these masters by lightly drawn but very interesting pictures of their relations with various gifted and unselfish women, who helped on their individual development, and laid the world under obligation by materially assisting in the production of some of their great compositions. — The Book-Buyer, New York.

UZANNE. The Book-Hunter in Paris: Being Studies among the Bookstalls of the Quays. By Octave Uzanne. With an Introduction by Augustine Birrell and 144 characteristic Illustrations interspersed in the text. Large 8vo, $5.00 net.

M. Uzanne has utilized the stores of a long experience, and has imbued the whole with his characteristic vivacity. The pages are sprinkled with anecdote, with observation of the casual and altogether entertaining sort. He is erudite, sympathetic, enthusiastic, — everything but sentimental or dull. — New York Tribune.

VON SUTTNER. "Ground Arms!" The Story of a Life. By Bertha Von Suttner. Translated from the German by Alice Asbury Abbot. 12mo, 286 pages, $1.00.

Entire absence of self-consciousness lends to her fiction so illusive a semblance of fact that, regarded simply as a story, the work must rank high. The imagination of the authoress has been kindled at the fire of intensest feeling, guided by a virile faculty of reasoning closely and logically. She pierces to the marrow of the thing that has taken hold of her. — International Journal of Ethics.

WALPOLE. The Best Letters of Horace Walpole. See Laurel-Crowned Letters, page 19.

WALTON. The Complete Angler; or, the Contemplative Man's Recreation, of Izaak Walton. Edited, with an Introduction, by Edward Gilpin Johnson. 16mo, gilt top, $1.00; half calf or morocco, gilt top, $2.50.

LARGE-PAPER EDITION. With Original Border Illustrations, printed in colors. Limited to 500 numbered copies, $2.50.

"The Complete Angler" has been printed in many different forms since its first appearance in 1653, but has never received a prettier or more attractive dress than that furnished by Messrs. McClurg & Co. — Journal of Education, Boston.

WATT. The Law's Lumber Room. By Francis Watt. 16mo. deckle edges, $1.00.

To use his own metaphor, the author brushes the dust from a number of antiquated customs and legal fictions, and shows, not without a pleasant humor, how they arose, what uses they served, and how they came to be discarded. — The Nation, New York.

WHARTON. Sappho: Memoir, Text, Select Renderings, and a Literal Translation. By Henry Thornton Wharton, A.M., Oxon. With three illustrations in photogravure, and a cover designed by Aubrey Beardsley. Third Edition. 16mo, 217 pages, $2.25 net.

The book is a tribute, an exposition, a monument. To thousands who know not a letter of the Greek alphabet, it is a revelation; and for those thousands Sappho ceases henceforth to be a mere name, and becomes a splendid reality. — The Academy.

WHEELER. Our Industrial Utopia and Its Unhappy Citizens. By D. H. Wheeler, Ex-President of Allegheny College. 12mo, 344 pages, $1.25.

Prof. David H. Wheeler has had varied editorial and educational experience, besides long residence abroad; and in his mature years he has written a book embodying his views of society and life. It is pleasant to note that he remains an optimist of the truest type. The discussions are by no means confined to barren idealities; for our author takes up the well-worn themes, competition, capital, money, labor, government, and ethics, and he treats them in anything but a well-worn way. The book is wholesome reading, and its attractive style makes dull themes attractive and difficult themes plain to the unskilled intelligence. — St. Paul Globe.

WOLF. The Joy of Life. A Novel. By Emma Wolf, author of "Other Things Being Equal." 12mo, 253 pages, $1.00.

One of the best stories presented this winter is "The Joy of Life," by Emma Wolf. The book is a strong contrast of life from two points of view. One brother sees that everything is to be gained through money; therefore he shuts himself off from everything but money and the influence of money. Another brother views life from the humanitarian standpoint, and totally abstains from money and money influences. The two extremes are so subtly worked out that the book is well worth the reading. — The Sentinel, Indianapolis.

It is an interesting novel. It has a story to tell, and the manner of the telling is pleasing. The strength lies in the individuality of the characters, in the realism of their different qualities, different ambitions, different deeds. It is a story worth reading, and one which will make an impression. — The Times, Boston.

WOLF. Other Things being Equal. A Novel. By Emma Wolf. 12mo, 275 pages, $1.00.

It is a romance, pure and simple, and has the rare merit of artistic unity. . . . It is a relief to find an unspoiled story of pure sentiment, without sensationalism, mawkish sentimentality, affected eccentricity, or the least sign of pandering to the too popular compromise with immorality. — The Boston Post.

ZAHM. Sound and Music. By the Rev. J. A. Zahm, C. S. C., Ph.D., Professor of Physics in the University of Notre Dame. With 195 Illustrations, Royal 8vo, 452 pages, $2.50; half calf or half morocco, gilt top, $5.00.

I was much pleased, as you know, with the work when I read it in manuscript; but its worth has impressed me more in its present garb. To my mind, it is by far the most accurate and complete of books on modern acoustics and on the acoustic bases of harmony. — PROF. ALFRED M. MAYER, of Stevens Institute of Technology.

"Certainly the best book ever written by its author is the 'Myths of the New World,' by Dr. Daniel G. Brinton. For nearly thirty years it has profoundly influenced ethnological thought, and has done much to kindle interest in the psychology, mythology, and religion of the native Americans.
